FOR THE WORLD

The First Ordination

The theme of this book is the sublime dignity of the priesthood. Dedicated to the first son of Brooklyn Preparatory School to receive the fulness of the priest's heavenly powers, the members of the graduating class hope that it will not only serve as a record of many happy days at the School, but will instil into the hearts of all her sons an even greater love for Christ's priesthood and gratitude to Him for His favour in raising one of their number to the exalted dignity of a successor of the Apostles.

THE FEBRUARY CLASS OF 4-B-1

THE FEBRUARY CLASS OF 4-B-1

*All the world's a stage,
And all the men and women merely players;
They have their exits and their entrances,
And one man in his time plays many parts,
His acts being seven ages.*

As You Like It — Act II, Scene 7

NEVER have we read any famous verse which better describes our high school years than the above oft quoted lines of the celebrated bard of Avon. Perhaps England's most famous playwright had not the slightest idea of our interpretation of his words, yet they apply perfectly to our days at Prep. Now after four years of strenuous study we are realizing the fruits of our labours and a last minute analysis of our sojourn at the Prep would, no doubt, bring back many fond and happy memories.

Our world at the Prep began when we entered room 208 as humble freshmen. The stage for our entrance was fittingly set by Mr. George Bahlman, S.J., under whose capable direction most of us were initiated into the intricacies and pitfalls of high school life. During the first six months, a period of auditions and tryouts, the parts shifted rapidly in order that each one in the cast might adapt himself to the role for which he was best qualified. As the members of the class gradually assumed the appearance of a unified group, we settled down to the long performance which would finally determine our thespian capabilities. In the brief intervening semesters, which Shakespeare metaphorically likens to ages, from our tyro term to the final curtain of our last act, many of us played stellar roles and enacted flawlessly the duties assigned to us.

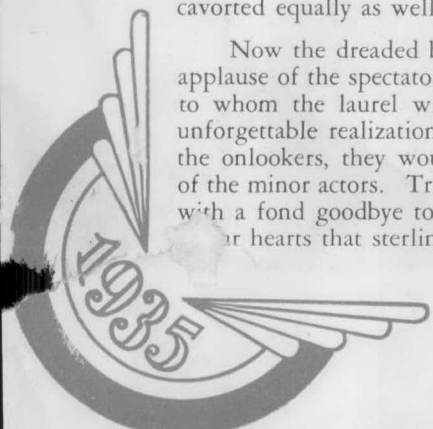

Certainly we cannot mention all in the short space allotted us. However, we are able to review partially the work of the more outstanding characters.

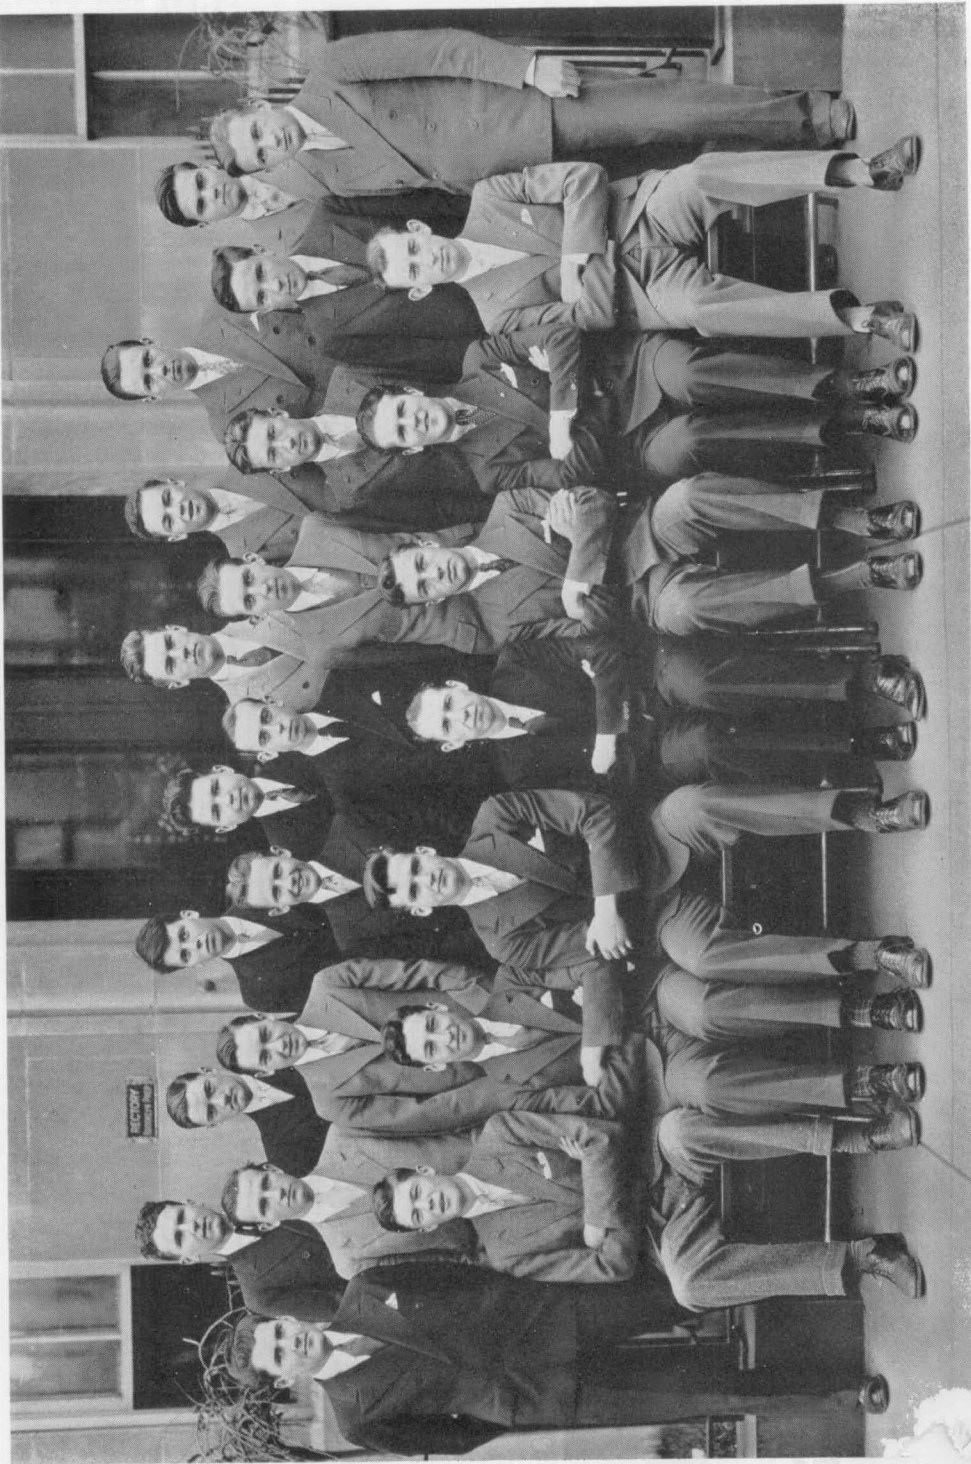

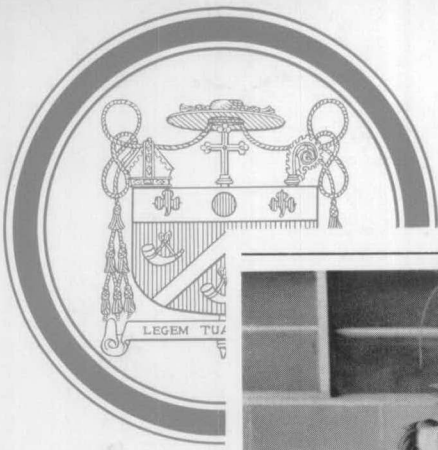

Looming foremost, not only in size, but also in sports, we perceive "Gerry" Biggins, three letter man and captain of basketball for two seasons. Next to Gerry in size, but his equal in versatility, there appears George Rafter, sports editor of both the Blue Jug and the Blue Book, George also found time to captain the swimming team. Now we come to a man, John Britt by name, whose extra-curricular record, unprecedented, we believe, in the history of the school, entailed such arduous roles as student council president, senior prefect of the sodality and senior debating president. Dick Leonard and George Brueckner, our intellectuals, adhered faithfully to the more studious lines of activity.

Vin McNally, student council secretary, pitched the baseball varsity to many victories, while Dick Kelaher unceasingly attempted to better 5 ft. 9 in. in the high jump. Bud Clark, Matt Shannon and George Geary, our "Three Musketeers" of the gridiron, cavorted equally as well in the classroom.

Now the dreaded bane of every actor, his exit, has arrived, entailing also the fickle applause of the spectators and the dreaded verdict of the critics. However, it matters not to whom the laurel wreath is awarded, for mark upon our memory and with it an unforgettable realization of one fact. It is that even though some gain the plaudits of the onlookers, they would prove exceedingly helpless without the constant cooperation of the minor actors. True friendships can never cease, they languish but never die. Now with a fond goodbye to old Prep, we go forth upon another stage of life, ever keeping our hearts that sterling motto of our Jesuit teachers, "Ad Majorem Dei Gloriam".

THE FEBRUARY CLASS OF 4-B-2

THE FEBRUARY CLASS OF 4-B-2

ON a clear February morn in '31, the yacht of 1-A-2 sailed away from the Freshman Port, to start a four years race for the "Cup of Graduation". Under the guidance of our experienced pilot, Mr. Thomas A. Duross, S.J., and his assistant officers, we twenty-odd able seamen soon learned all about the shallows, shoals and crags of Latin, Algebra, and Ancient History. All went calmly and we sailed on with cheerful hearts forgetful of the perils that lay before us, and the hidden dangers that threatened destruction to our sturdy craft. Before us lay the whirlpools and sandbars of "Examinations", and although all our efforts could not save the entire crew, we finished the first lap of our race.

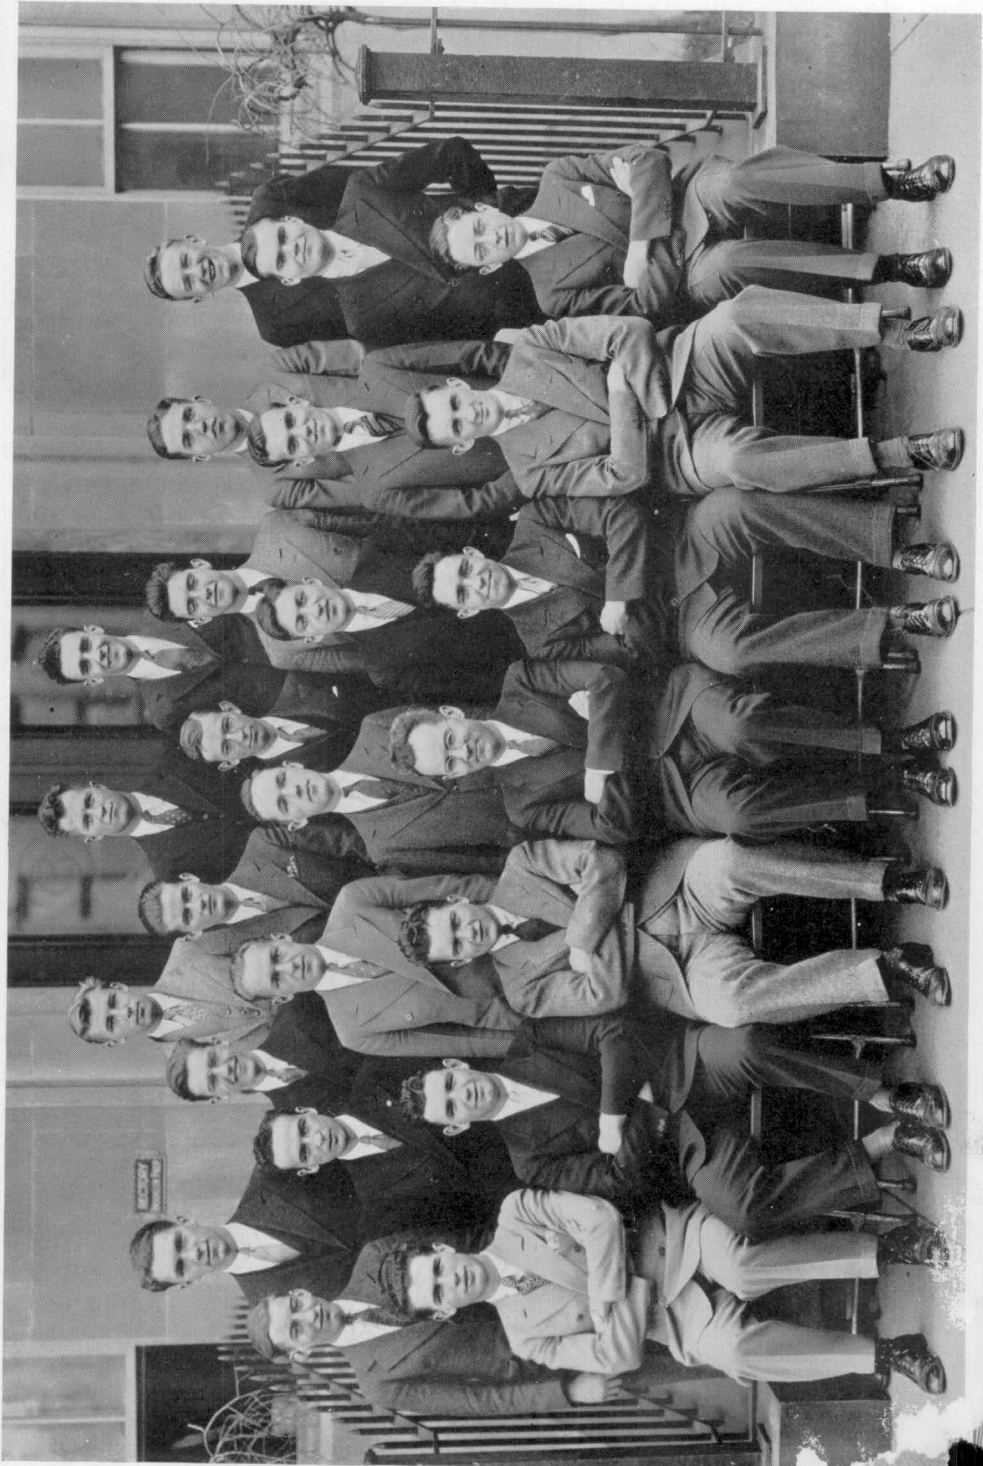

We resumed the race advancing into a better position with a new yacht 2-A-2, the Captain of this vessel being Mr. Francis J. O'Rourke. During this year the expert seamen assumed their respective duties, Bill Gestal, Ed. Kelly, and George Dillon, to football; Vin Curley and Bob Wolfram to the "cannons", while Ed Burke and "Jake" Scannell practiced on the ice; in the meantime, Bill Chandler, John Aylward, and Tom Tollner supported the track team.

We again advanced another lap because of the expert seamanship we displayed now 3-A-2 with Mr. Thomas P. Shaughnessy directing the ship to its destiny. This time the treacherous waters of Geometry claimed a few more of our crew.

Jumping into the leading position, the yacht now 4-A-2, was off for the final lap and home ports. For this voyage, two Captains were assigned, Mr. William F. Lahey, to guide us through the channels; and Mr. James J. Walsh, to pilot us into the safe waters of the harbor.

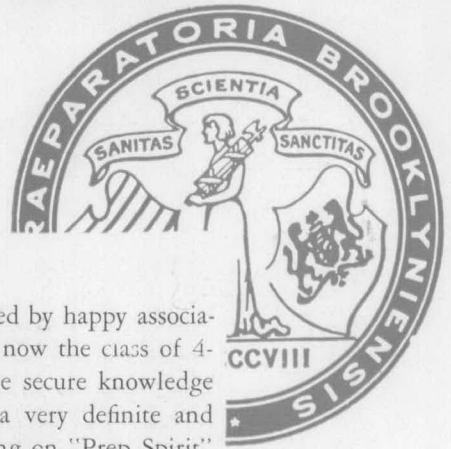

Here we happily drop our anchor, because the race is ended and the "Cup" is ours. The race has been a long and hard one but the victory compensates for the months and years of study and "plugging". There were many storms caused by certain estimable gentlemen who go by the name of Caesar, Cicero, Virgil, Hadgi Stavros and others, but with the help of our professors we managed to weather them successfully. The old crew is disbanding now and there is a lump in many a throat as we shake hands for the last time at dear old Prep.

THE FEBRUARY CLASS OF 4-B-3

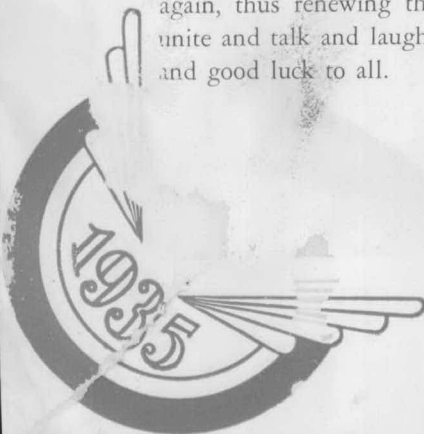

THE FEBRUARY CLASS OF 4-B-3

THE road has finally ended! The journey which has been attended by happy associations and memories that will live with us forever is over. And now the class of 4-B-3 can look back on these fruitful years at Brooklyn Prep with the secure knowledge that in every phrase of the school activities, its members formed a very definite and important part. When we were Freshmen, the importance of carrying on "Prep Spirit" and "Prep Action" was stressed time after time. During the ensuing four years we took that idea to our hearts and in turn by our example have endeavored to instil it into the minds of those who have started after us.

However, it seems now that it is the memories which are the most important. It has been fine to watch the gradual development and the ultimate triumphs of our four varsity captains, Ray Lawlor, Bill Dobbins, Dick Fennelly and Homer Leppien in football, track, hockey and shooting respectively. It has given us real pleasure to observe the scholastic attainments of Bob Fairbanks and Joe Zoller. Those "Three Musketeers", Rip Riches, Leo Logan and Joe Kennedy, have made varsity basketball a class monopoly. Many a time we've seen Jack Kelliher blast a hole through the fence with his tremendous clouts on the diamond while each Fall has witnessed the gradual prefecting of O'Neill, Leary Treacy and Fennelly on the gridiron. Outside of sports, what could give one more pleasure than hearing Jim Carniaux and Jack Campion warble sweet notes at the Glee Club Concerts or viewing the success of George Leonard in the Prep Play. Yes, these are all individual performances but they have united in making the name of 4-B-3 and of Brooklyn Prep a byword for activity and success. Each fellow in the class has made his contribution to the happiness of our stay at Brooklyn Prep.

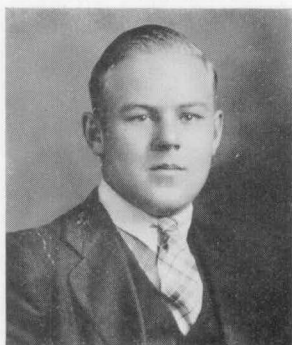

Of humor and laughter too, there has been much during the years. Mr. Flynn hears Kister reading "On Rend L'Argent" and consoles himself with the realization that, after all, this is America. Bob Dvorak spends so much time on his television that he would like to give a description of his new process when called on for Latin recitation. All this too, has been a part of Prep life. Whenever the classroom seemed to be in danger of becoming overwhelmingly dull, something usually turned up and saved the day. It is peculiar how incidental the studies seem when set against the strong friendship made here. Each fellow, each daily experience has become so united with our lives that the break is truly a great one. A year from today will find us all scattered into very different and widely separated fields. However, at this time, the earnest wish rises from each member of the class, that the guiding spirit of success will attend the advancing footsteps of everyone and that all through life our paths may cross again and again, thus renewing the happy ties bound here until some day we may once again unite and talk and laugh together over four priceless years at Brooklyn Prep. Good-bye and good luck to all.

THE JUNE CLASS OF 4-B-1

THE JUNE CLASS OF 4-B-1.

"Proud we march with measured tread, linked in loyalty."

Prep School Song

FOUR years ago we, the members of 4-B-1, heard these stirring words of our school song sung for the first time. Four years of intimate association have shown us how deeply they sank into each boy's heart. The resulting tie of loyalty, which joined us together, has not only stood the test of time but has been ever strengthened by the bonds of true affection.

As we look back it seems almost prophetic that we should have been called the number one class of our section. For our record of prominence in both scholastic and extra-curricular activities is one of which we are justly proud. Permanent niches in the school's hall of fame have been won by "Hilly" Renz, star of the gridiron and "Jasper" Kennedy, baseball wizard. Prep's victorious track team owes much of its success to our fleet footed luminaries, Gene McLaughlin, Bob Carruci and Louis Peterson. Jerry Holloway, our class president, has accompanied Prep's mermen to their frequent victories.

The staff of the Blue Jug, Prep's well known by-monthly publication, includes Frank McMahon, assistant editor, Bob Geoghan, Bill Igoe and Joe Kelly, while Joe Bier is president of the Student Council.

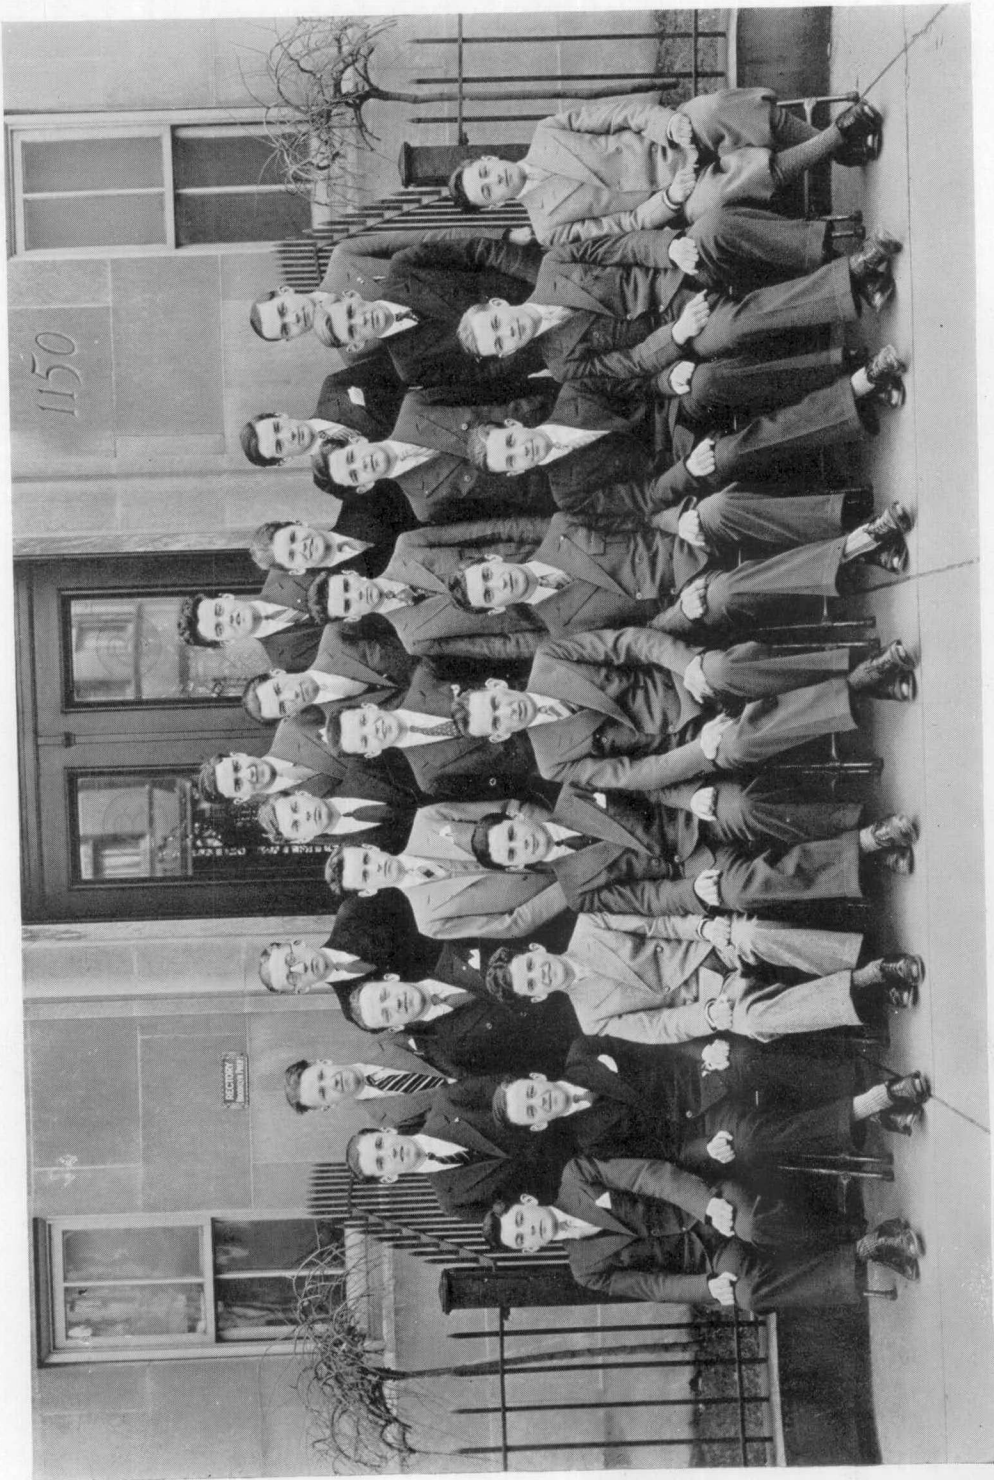

Our ardent debators, Al Michaelson, Charles McMahon and Jack Butler, may always be seen at the weekly meetings of the Senior Debating Society of which Joe Kelly is the president. Charles Fisher, Joe Bier and William Wildprett are on the staff of the Blue Book. Prominent sodalists of the class are Emil Dietz, John McCauley and Charles McMahon.

As we glance about the classroom we notice the smiling faces of Tom Redmond, Charlie Lynch and Roland Schaeffner. Frank Godfrey is a good extemporaneous speaker while Ed Delaney and Bill O'Connor translate Latin with great gusto aided and abetted by Paul Kearney.

Our last term at Prep has been a very pleasant one under the able leadership and guidance of Father Edward J. Kenna, S.J., and as we leave our Alma Mater we are resolved to cherish the memory of our Jesuit teachers and strive always to follow their example and counsel.

THE JUNE CLASS OF 4-B-2

THE JUNE CLASS OF 4-B-2

PERHAPS at no time during the course of life does one experience a more genuine joy than that which is felt on Graduation Day. For us, it is a red-letter day and we have looked forward to it with eagerness. We have seen these four years go by. We have been concentrating constantly upon that day, which would see the coveted document, praising our individual efforts, in our hands to have and to hold.

And what have we done to merit this award? Well, for the most part, we have given the best that was in us. Sometimes the best was only mediocre, nevertheless, perseverance was not lacking. How many times we have been stumped by some "bug-bear". For some, it was the dreaded spectre of mathematics; for others the macabre form of Latin and Greek syntax. But, with a little extra "plugging," we have routed these sinister visions and now call those things trivial, which haunted us in our Freshman and Sophomore years.

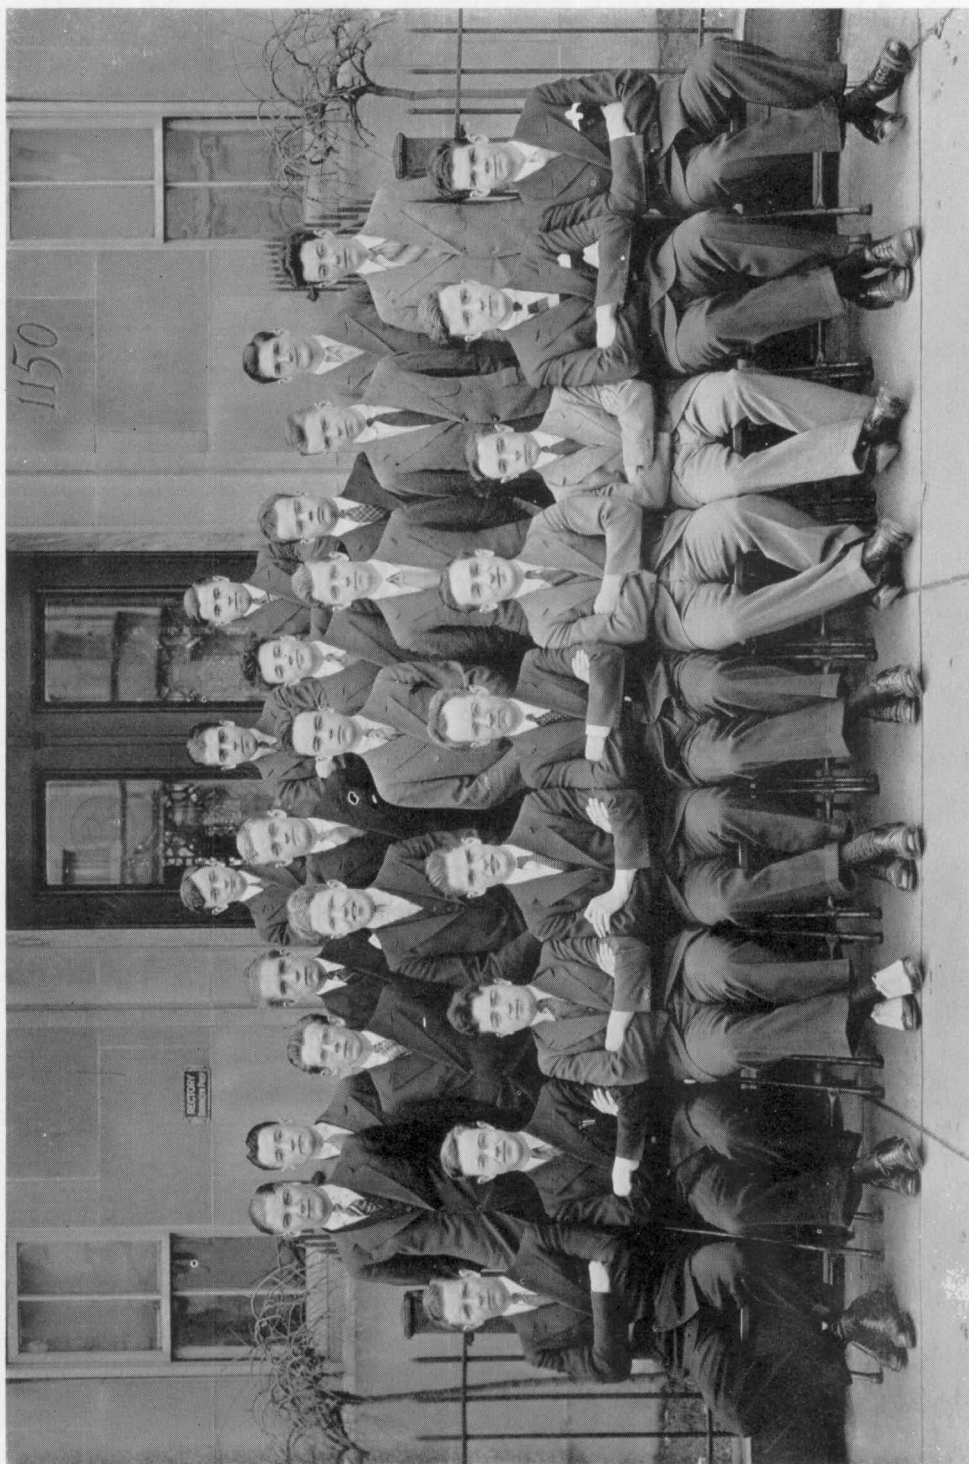

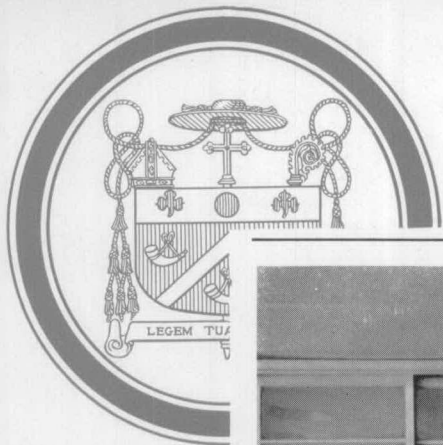

Guided by our good friends, the teachers, counselled in doubt, corrected in error, we have had, by their help, come along at a steady, even pace. We have had our share of fun in the proper place and at the proper time. That all of us will cherish our days here, one can well understand.

Four years ago, we entered Loyola Hall to attend the Mass of the Holy Ghost. Most of us at that time began our custom of going to confession and Holy Communion weekly. The Sodality of the Blessed Virgin and the Sacred Heart Devotions have strengthened us for the tasks we are to meet with in later life. Every Senior has reason to be proud of the Prep. Every Senior has shown what the Prep has meant to him by being imbued with what football enthusiasts call "Prep Spirit". Without a doubt, it will remain with all of us for many years to come and will permeate our every action.

It remains but to say "Farewell!" We used to think that the Seniors of former years were not sincere when, upon walking through the corridors for the last time, they would express genuine regret at their departure from the Prep. We know now that they were most sincere. We, the Seniors of Brooklyn Preparatory, although we are glad to move upward on the pathway of Life, still experience a feeling of poignant regret as we walk the corridors for the last time. Let us not forget what the Prep has meant to us but, let us go forth with the courage to that for which we have been trained—Catholic Manhood.

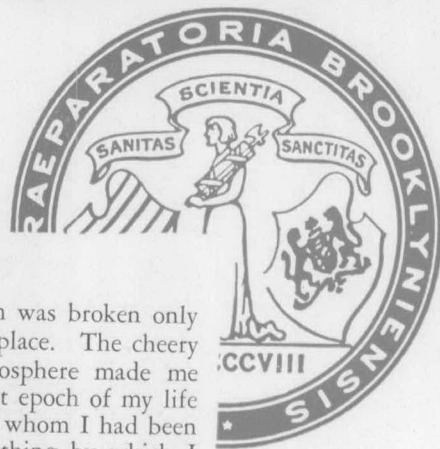

Frank Moriarty.

THE JUNE CLASS OF 4-B-3

THE JUNE CLASS OF 4-B-3

THE clock softly ticked off the hours and the stillness of my room was broken only by the crackling and recurrent sputtering of the spruce in the fireplace. The cheery blaze sent shimmering shadows about the room. The whole atmosphere made me thoughtful, especially when graduation was almost at hand and a great epoch of my life was drawing to a close. I thought quite naturally of the fellows with whom I had been associated for the past four years. Each one's name suggested something by which I would always remember him.

The kindly face of Henry Jakoby came up before me and I saw him once again in the classroom astounding us with the wizardry of his mathematics and his brilliant tennis. His stay with us was all too short, but the pleasant memory of his fine character will never leave us.

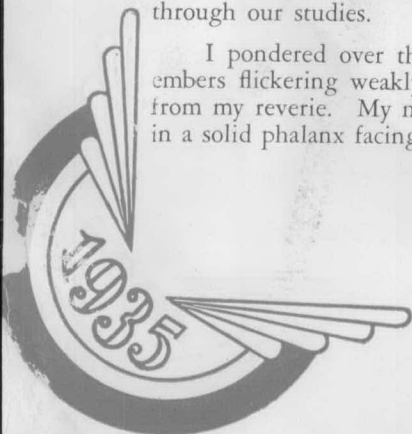

I recalled Walsh who could show a fleet pair of heels when necessary, and there was Welstead who was prominent in baseball and possessed a ready and facile wit. The names Scalfani and Whelan suggested fast low-charging linemen. Prag flickered before me as the smiling beadle, seeing but not remembering. I recollected that Hollenstein and McGuire (not a six-day bike team) were a pair of peppy cheerleaders, while Callahan, Peterson and Connelly tore up the cinders to help garner the Private and Catholic School Cross Country Championships. I'll never forget the sometime serious George Wittschen as the daring pilot of a madly charging horse and wagon bulging with fifty roaring Prepsters from the Poly game. Messina was remembered as a speedy forward of the Prep varsity quintet and Hurley, the tall, long-armed hurler of baseball renown. Hart's genial make-up caused many a hearty chuckle. I recalled a little fellow named McCreery, a mere six foot three in height, who was heading for Georgetown. Hogan was remembered as a member of the Senior Debating Team who planned to make tracks for South Bend. Keegan showed marked ability in debate. McGill had a distinct leaning towards anything scientific. Reil and Bohne cut up the ice in great style in hockey games. Fullam, the mirthful, goes serious for the nonce in his characterization of the westerner in "Buddies", flashed before me.

The flames are lower now, but before I can throw on another log I see Poster, who had a punch when he chose to deliver it. Sinnott was a sandy haired, smiling youth intent on going to Notre Dame. Lilly and Huisling were the bulwarks of Prep's championship swimming teams. McAloon was surely remembered as the boy who made bright any dull day of school life. They had all passed in review and but one straggler remained. As for him I remembered that he had emerged from retirement long enough to lend his voice to the Glee Club and hide behind a moustache in "Buddies".

We may not realize it now but we are about to complete one of the happiest periods of our lives and without doubt, as we pass on through life, we shall look back upon our days at Brooklyn Prep with fondest memories. However, we should not forget in all the excitement and joy of graduation those who made our stay at Prep possible—our parents. They are ever patient and generous with us and ask little in return. We salute our teachers who by their kindly interest and sustained efforts have guided us through our studies.

I pondered over these things in the profound silence. The fire sank lower, the embers flickering weakly, and the solitary chime of the clock in the hall startled me from my reverie. My mind had wandered far away for I saw the class of 1935 march in a solid phalanx facing the future unafraid.

THE CLASS OF 4-A-1

THE CLASS OF 4-A-1

OVER three years ago the class of 4-A-1 made its initial appearance at the Prep. Each member of the group gazed with awe at everything here and viewed the senior year as a very distant and difficult goal. But today we find ourselves in the middle of that longed for senior year at the school which has become so much a part of us, and we certainly realize now that "tempus fugit".

To neglect to mention our luminaries here would be unpardonable, for not a few of their class deserve recognition. During the past term the office of president of the class has been filled by yours truly, while the duties of class representative have been efficiently performed by Don Quinn.

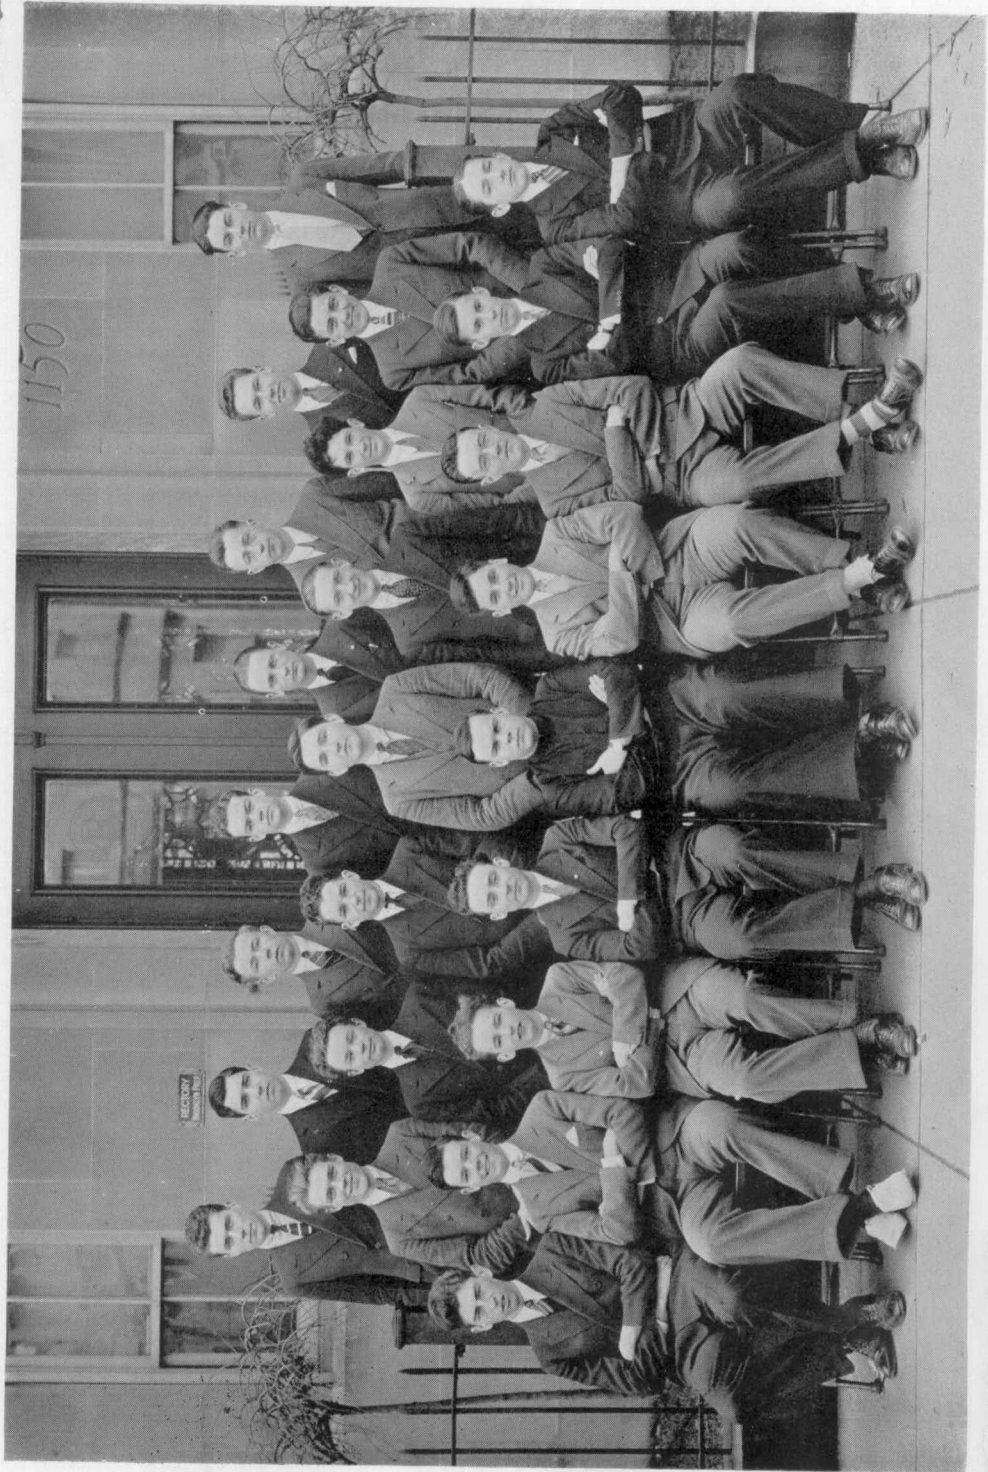

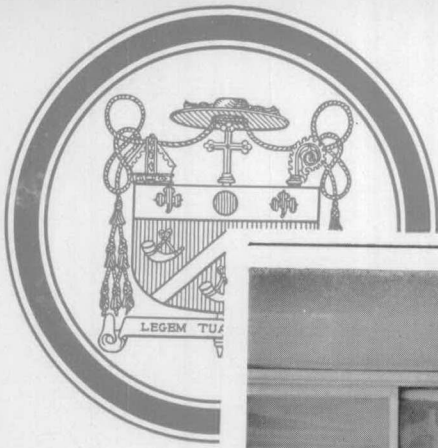

Among the proud possessors of the coveted letters are "Mal" Maloney, whose prowess in basketball brought him this honor, and whose ability on the gridiron won him a captaincy and end position on the junior varsity squad. Joe Scheid, whose unerring eye on that basketball hoop grows sharper and keener, is bringing favorable comment from all. Then there's "Sal" Ciafola whose likeable personalty and wide grin combined with a rare ability in basketball give us a monopoly on the honors of the court game. Jack O'Reilly, track mainstay, Murt Lawrence, the stellar miler, and Bill Stewart, star of jayvee basketball, complete the list of our athletic great ones.

As we turn away from these highlights we discern the class wizards, Dwyer, Westbrook, Maxcy and Charlie McCarthy with his excellent Latin translations. All of these lads receive high marks regularly. From the rear of the room a low murmur comes to the ears of everyone, and, turning around, we immediately recognize Bob O'Brien spreading a little ray of sunshine. And there is Diffley, Hildebrandt, Meneg & Co., great fellows one and all.

This little review brings us back to the sober reflection that at this time next year these fellows whose companionship has meant so much to us will have dispersed and gone their several ways. This thought carries with it a note of sadness. Nevertheless we are consoled by the fact that we have worked our way through and have faced our responsibility manfully. Moreover we have formed precious friendships with a group of splendid boys. So until our next and final writeup we bid you all a fond "au revoir"!

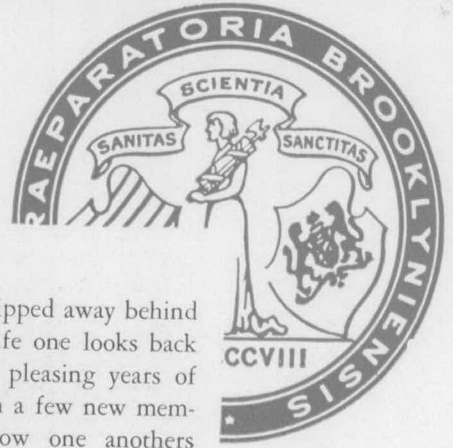

Peter Viscardi.

THE CLASS OF 4-A-2

THE CLASS OF 4-A-2

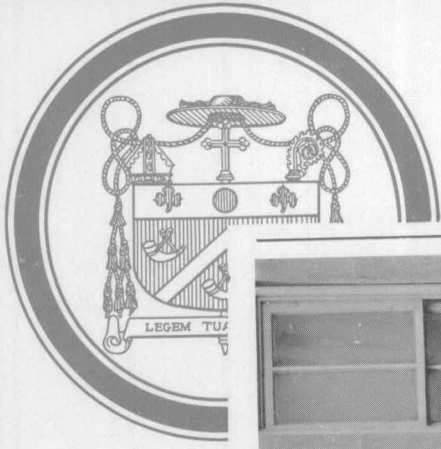

SENIOR! The goal of all who enter the school. The years have slipped away behind us and as we now stand on the portals of a new experience in life one looks back on the years at Brooklyn Prep with a strange feeling that the most pleasing years of our youth are nearly over. The original class is still nearly intact with a few new members. We have come to know one another quite well and know one another's characteristics.

I think it would be well to allow the class pass in review. This I shall do in what may be nearly alphabetical order. First comes Joe Behan, a fine student and quite prominent in intra-mural athletics. Joe's slight build has prevented him from becoming an inter-scholastic star. Then we come upon Joe Catalano, student extraordinary, class president and also quite an athlete. We will now pass on to Pierson Clair. Pierson plays a fine game of hockey and has been on the varsity team for the past two years. He also plays baseball well, although he has never played inter-scholastic ball; Roger Denehy upon whom the gods of Math have bestowed their gracious gifts. Roger is by far the best basketball player in the class and is the mainstay of the intra-mural team. From all reports Roger is also a remarkable roller-skater. Joe Goeller is a new member of the class having joined our group this term. Joe is prefect of the sodality and plays intra-mural baseball. Frank Keller is next in line for mention in our class eulogy. Frank is quite a football player, has a sharp wit and is a jolly fellow. Now comes Ed Kelly whose lawyer-like instincts have opened many discussions with the teachers. Ed played Jayvee baseball last season and will undoubtedly be a varsity pitcher this year. Vinny Liddy has added a touch of humor and friendliness to the class with his timely quips. Now we have the Great McGarry whose friends call him "Mac". Mac is the non-playing captain of the class ping-pong team. He is a fine center at football and a good outfielder who will also probably play varsity ball this year. In the limelight we see our little "G.E.M.", George E. Miles. An outstanding athlete and a fine student. "Garcon", as he is fondly known, is a three letter man. He was varsity catcher, varsity fullback and varsity goalie on the hockey team. A truly great athlete and a fine friend. "Buddy" Mills is one of the best liked fellows in the class. Bob O'Connor and Andy O'Loughlin along with Mills are the representatives of the Park Slope second. Ed O'Toole is a quick wit and a good student. Ed plays on all the intra-mural teams.

And now, in order to maintain the alphabetical sequence of this epistle, yours truly tells of his somewhat feeble efforts which resulted in two years of varsity swimming and two of Jayvee baseball although I fondly hope to play varsity ball this coming season. Aha! Joe Scavullo, our master of humor and frivolity! A good student who mixes fun with his work and derives a delightful concoction of knowledge and amusement! And last but not least, Joe Voelker, who hopes he will someday be an All-American center or a star short-stop with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

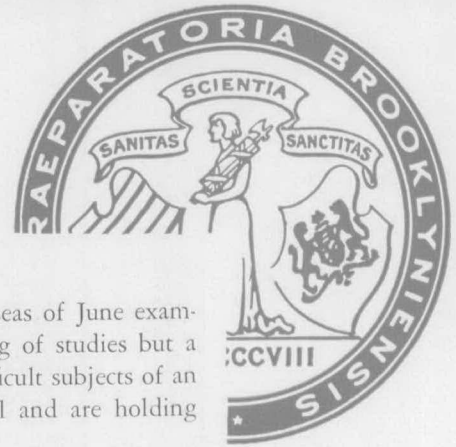

This, my dear reader, ends the class roll call. As you may have noticed I made no mention of our teachers. This excellent body of gentlemen has been praised countless times before, and may rest on their laurels. So just to be different and to give these gentlemen a chance to relax, I will not mention them here. And now my friends, until our next Blue Book publication, we bid you a fond farewell!

John Quinn.

THE CLASS OF 4-A-3

THE CLASS OF 4-A-3

"STRANGE as it seems" 4-A-3 is neither a leaky tug battling the seas of June examinations nor is it a soaring aeroplane struggling through the fog of studies but a sociable group of fellows attempting to overcome some of the more difficult subjects of an academic education. So far most of them have succeeded quite well and are holding forth high hopes for this last year.

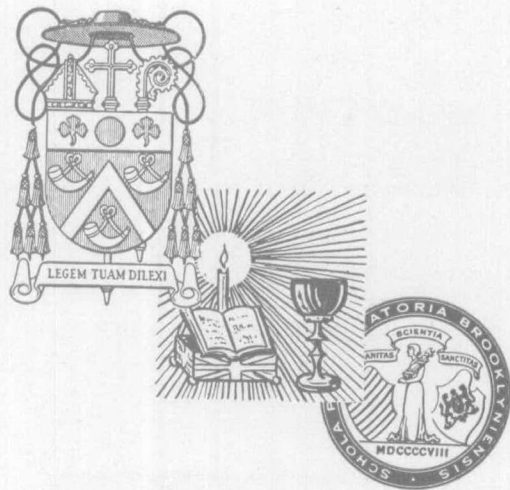

Concerning the fellows themselves. Well I'm in a quandary as to where to begin. First we have our brilliant scholars of whom, the inimitable Vollmerhausen heads the list, followed by Maher and Courtney. The latter is also our Student Council's vice-president. Next we have our athletes consisting of Shapiro, who excels as an end on the gridiron, center on the basketball court and a free-style artist in aquatic circles; Ottavino, basketball star, and, of course, our track men, Maher, Bukey and Courtney.

Now let us peek into the classroom and see what is taking place. The incomparable "Otto" is telling Mr. Henry M. McCabe, that the verb, since it is in present time, must be active. We proceed to the English class under the able tutelage of Mr. James J. Walsh, where we delve into the profound depths of Milton's "L'Allegro" and "Il Penseroso", helped by occasional comments from Oczko. Thence to the Physics class where Mr. William G. Perry, S. J., capably presides and attempts to persuade us that there are such things as molecules. After forty-five minutes of this we climb one flight of stairs, about twenty steps, follow our nose about fifteen feet down the corridor and then ease over the door-sill as the bell rings. Whom do we find waiting patiently for us but our esteemed Mr. Philip V. Sullivan, S.J., the French teacher who tells us of Hadgi Stavros, the well known Grecian brigand? The "DINNER at 12:30" and a rush to get the P.T. notes and find out the name of Xenophon's dog, while pausing to sink one's teeth into those "Home Sweet Home"-made potato sandwiches. Having completed the last two periods, the "Long Island Tourists and Commuters Association" makes a concerted dash for the outward bound "rattler", while the Flatbush "garkons", (pardon my French) take a run and jump off Crown Heights into their respective back yards. And so, if you'll forgive these unforgivable attempts at witticism I'll conclude this little narrative.

"Au revoir"!

John Fitzpatrick.

THE CLASS OF 3-B-1

THE 3-B-1

You may dream of a spot in the country:
Trees . . . a brook . . . and a pool,
A hedge that encircles a garden,
And stuff that goes big at a school—
Some place far out of the City . . .
(A picture in color and print.)
Graceful, wide-windowed, and gabled,—
A door that just welcomes you in 't.
Clutter your mind with these riches
That fall at Imagining's feet;
But leave me here with the 3-B
At Nostrand and Carroll Street.

For, I'm asking you, lad, from the shoulder—
What counts most in the end:
Is it the grass, the brick, and the mortar,
Or the boys that call you, Friend?
You'd know if you had our teachers:
Reiners, and the top-chemist, Quinn;
Sullivan who juggles with figures,
And that prince of leaders, Flynn.
Though there's ninety and nine above
you—
You can rest, all safe and fast,
Like the Master . . . they're out to help
you,
Till you're in the fold at last.

Consider the names in our classroom . . .
The extra-curricula bug . . .
In sports . . . the boys on the real teams. . .
For—we are even first in Jug.
Think what it means, if you've listened
To the cheers, and the bleachers call,
When the team's set for a touchdown . . .
With Titus back to pass the ball.
No crowd in town has been so swayed—
Except it was those nights indoors . . .
When the Players Club was acting,
And Hogan held the pit's applause.
Though mighty were the words of praise
You've heard as parents' voices rise
For Merolla, "Darb", and Zengel
When they've won a scholar's prize.

My point is worth repeating,
As I hope you'll plainly see,

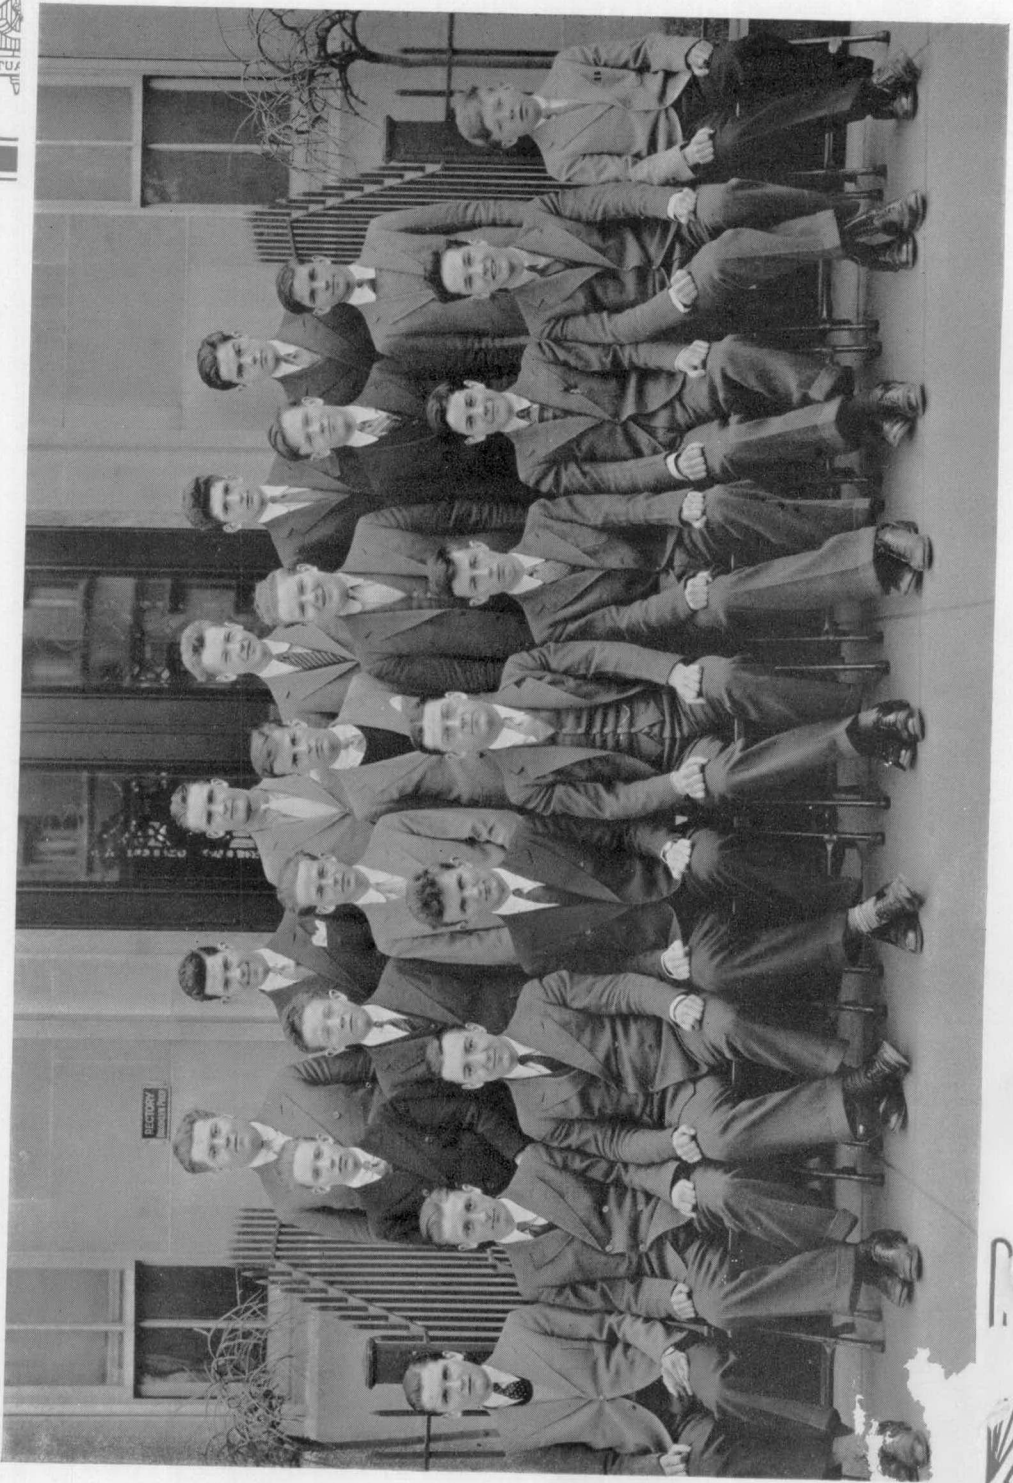

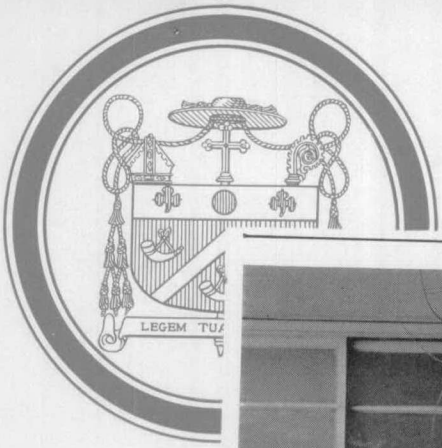

The boys you'd rate as A1,
Round here are all 3-B.

There's Randolph . . . you know . . .
the pitcher;
Fitzgerald who excels in track;
Callahan, a "John L." in football;
And McEvoy who starts at back.
O'Brien and Senese both look good
In any man's basketball game,
While "Fergie" and Grennan in swimming,
Have gone over the line of Fame.
There are others who've won their letters—
How? . . . Well, in ways you'd never guess:
But fairly earned,—like a B. P.
We are proud of the K. B. S.
We like also the gang "inside",
Dispenser Russell and his fare,
Who hopes Fitzmaurice someday will Translate his carte à déjeuner.

Read over the School's Prospectus,
Or turn the pages of this Book.
I will bet there's one of the 3-B
Wherever you stop to look.
Which brings me back to my question.
The stuff that goes big at a school—
Why I'm happy here in the City,
Without the trees, the brook, and the pool.
You've told me about the country—
The schools you've seen "how" and
"when";
But is the lay-out the answer—
Are your buildings bigger than men?

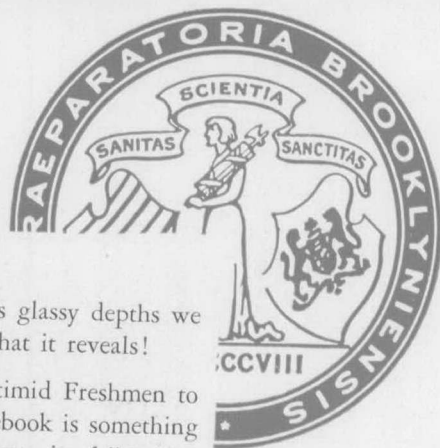

I point with pride to our class-rooms.
Our history's the history of them.
Study our School from these class-rooms.
Its history's the history of them.
Then listen, lad, from the shoulder—
This counts most in the end:
To be one of the boys in Brooklyn Prep
Whom 3-B-1 calls, Friend.

Norman Noble.

THE CLASS OF 3-B-2

THE CLASS OF 3-B-2

GAZING into the crystal ball we see the class of 3-B-2 and in its glassy depths we see our past accomplishments at the Prep. Come, let us see what it reveals!

Slowly the haze clears and out of it emerges a group of green, timid Freshmen to whom "Jug" is some kind of earthenware receptacle and a "P.T." notebook is something every good student should have. However, they seem eager for the pursuit of "sanitas, scientia et sanctitas"—but the vision fades.

Behold! A strange sight greets our eyes. We see a band of youths, Sophomores now, strolling about giving good advice to the younger students. Is that not the basketball team of old 2-B-2 receiving honours in the intra-mural basketball tournament? Surely that figure on the stage of the Academy of Music which holds the attention of a large audience is Vinnie Doyle! But, alas, the picture clouds and disappears!

Ah! A third vision rises out of the mists. It is the same group, but they are Juniors now. Indeed they have been somewhat jarred by the examinations, but they are still striving eagerly in quest of the coveted diploma. I see them waging desperate battles with Cicero and Ovid and trying to unravel involved chemical formulae. There is Stone, our varsity football star, and "Big Dan" sallows contributing a harmonious note to the Glee Club, while Dies and Walsh prepare for their daily prank.

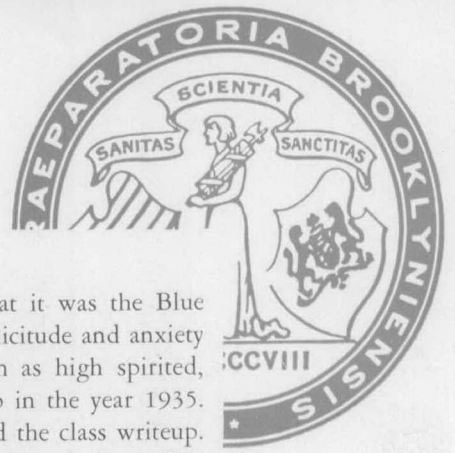

And now a new scene appears. The time is the last half of third year. First to catch the eye is Sheehan, our class president and beadle, constantly answering imaginary knocks at the door. After him comes Steinbugler whose name has never been off the honor roll. There is Ferguson smiling pleasantly, while leaning dejectedly on their desks are Hayden, McAteer, Anderson and Pfizenmayer (or Phizzy if you prefer), waiting for Mr. John E. Devlin to ask them to render the fulminations of Cicero into idiomatic English. Carr, Doyle and Ross often find their report cards decorated with nineties and in a few years will have annexed some letters to their names denoting high scholastic proficiency.

The crystal ball is clouding now but the memories of many happy hours during the past year will never cloud. They will ever remain bright and shining in our memories and we look forward to many more of them when we return as dignified seniors to spend our last year at Prep.

Joseph J. Braun.

THE CLASS OF 3-B-3

THE CLASS OF 3-B-3

UPON taking an old dusty book from the shelf I discovered that it was the Blue Book of 1935. Its pages were worn with age, and with great solicitude and anxiety I turned to the class picture of 3-B-3. Their photos depicted them as high spirited, youthful, and light hearted boys, within the portals of Brooklyn Prep in the year 1935. After reviving old memories and closely examining the pictures I read the class writeup. Each sentence brought back pleasant memories and the desire to live my school days over again. But to refresh your memories of the class of 3-B-3 let me read aloud some of the paragraphs of the class history I think you will enjoy hearing. You will have to excuse my poor reading as the page is badly torn and the print rather faint. The first paragraph has to do with those who have been greatly responsible for the high scholastic standing of the class, namely, the teachers.

"There is Mr. James Webster who familiarizes us with the more complicated parts of Latin, Mr. John J. Cummings who explains the puzzling theorems of Euclid, Mr. William J. Quinn who dabbles with the elements, and Mr. James J. Walsh who enlightens us on the archaic usages of Shakespeare as well as English composition.

"In the highlights of sports we have those two hard hitting backs of the gridiron, Jim Regan and Herb Whelan. Jim has served two years as a regular, while Herb has played a great game of football for the junior varsity. Jim Coyle and Dan Carroll who brought glory to Prep as doughty mermen. Then to make the light brighter we have 'Syl' Russo and Dick Moses, the two cinder and pine board stars who find it most enjoyable running through cornfields and jumping fences for the track team. 'Syl' Kenny knocks out bulls eyes for the rifle team."

But wait, permit me to read some more before I grow hoarse. The next paragraph has to do with our scholastic standing.

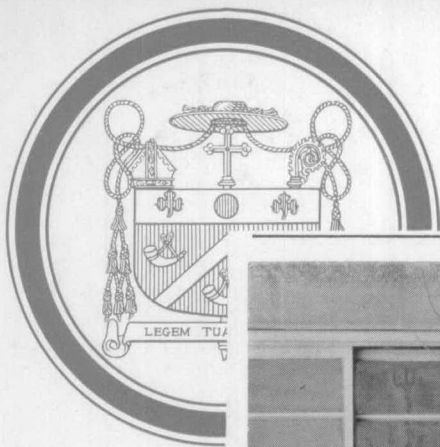

"Not only does the class rank high in athletic ability but we also have youths who are great students. John Finnegan, Robert White and Ed Grant not only show remarkable ability in geometry and chemistry but also easily master the languages. By the way, Ed Grant is a member of the Glee Club and class president. Then Bill Kelly does quite a lot of playing on the typewriter for the Blue Jug."

But now my voice is getting hoarse, but I shall do my best to read these statements so that you will be able to understand me.

"Under the heading of comedy we may list Frank McPadden, Dan Lynch, Harry Martin and Anthony Gallagher as the boys who mix humor with learning and get results. In the way of travel the class is gifted with those four brave commuters Douglas, Savage, Tyler and Cleary who find travelling on the different subways exciting as well as comfortable. Phil McFarland is the lad who has thrilled large audiences at the last two plays in which he took leading parts. So now you can readily see that the class of 3-B-3 has a hand in practically every activity at the Prep."

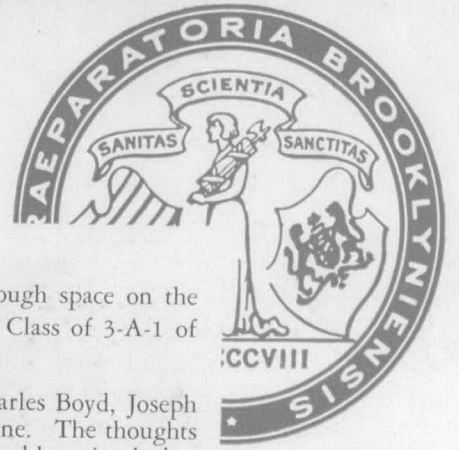

I have to stop now as my throat feels like the surface of a file. Next year I hope to read to you more about the famous class of 3-B-3.

Daniel Carroll.

THE CLASS OF 3-A-1

THE CLASS OF 3-A-1

CLIMB aboard friends, and hold tight as we are on our way through space on the Magic Carpet! We are going to be silent, unseen guests of the Class of 3-A-1 of Brooklyn, Prep.

Our first destination is room 203 at the Prep. There we find Charles Boyd, Joseph Peck and William Thoet discussing Cicero's fulminations against Cataline. The thoughts of this great orator are as easily understood by these lads as our simple problems in algebra would be by the great Einstein.

Leaving the Prep we wing along through the ozone and descend at the Ice Palace. As we make our way into the rink we see two speeding bodies collide with a bang. One falls limply to the ice, the other, a tall lad, goes darting along on a pair of silvery skates. He dodges around the goalie and we hear the puck as it hits the net for a tally. John Smith has just chalked up another point for the hockey team, and Tom Humphries, a Prep goalie, is dancing with joy while Bill Buell and Dick Everroad look on from the bench with expressions of awe and bewilderment on their faces.

Since we do not wish to see the downcast faces of the rival hockey team, we board our carpet and, borne by a gentle breeze, we make our way to the Academy of Music. On the stage a domineering old Frenchman has succeeded in becoming the perfect villain. It is difficult for the younger members of the audience to control their feelings about this selfish old man and finally their exhausted patience is given utterance in audible hisses. The cause of this outburst is Jerry Dalton, outstanding Prep Player.

Let us return now to the Prep. As we silently slip into the classroom we notice four boys gathered together in the rear benches. They are Joe McMullen, George Wiseman, Bernard Rasmussen and Frank Valentino. These are the mathematicians of the class. Geometry is so simple to these lads that, if it were not for their age, we would say that Euclid was their teacher.

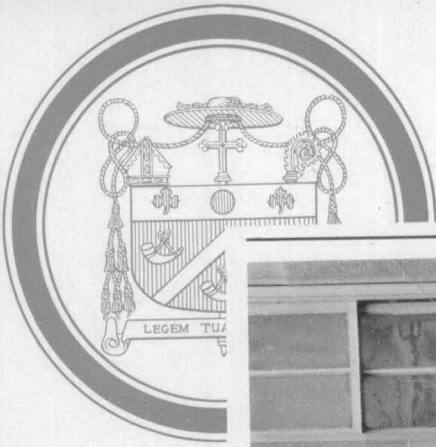

As we reflect on the ability of these mathematically inclined students our meditations are disturbed by dull thuds which seem to be coming from the lower floor of the school. Upon arriving at the gymnasium we discover that a basketball game is in progress. Two young men make themselves conspicuous by their fine playing. They pass, dodge and shoot with such skill that at first we think they are professionals. They are not, because they are two members of our class, Mario Garcia and Frank Young!

Let us now fly over to radio station WLWL to see and hear John Reynolds in the play "Father John's Boys". After listening to him play his part we are convinced that he will become one of the great "mike stars" of the future.

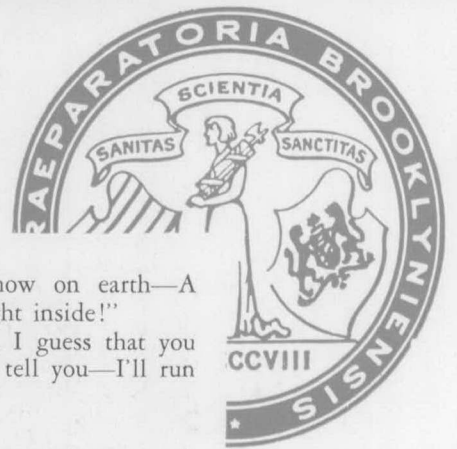

For the last time we return to the scene of our first visit. This time, however, we do not go into the Prep but remain outside on the field. Nearby two boys are finishing up the football season by kicking long, accurate punts to each other. Tom Lund jumps high in the air to snare one that a few seconds earlier has left Bill Milton's foot. And on the other side of the field three boys are getting ready for baseball. John Flaherty is batting to Bill Martens and Joe Caufield, who, like the true ball players that they are, pull 'em out of the air with incredible skill.

So at last, dear friends, we come to the end of our journey, and blown down to earth by a gust of wind, the Magic Carpet comes to rest and we take leave of the Class of 3-A-1 for another year.

Luke S. Hayden.

THE CLASS OF 3-A-2

THE CLASS OF 3-A-2

"RIGHT over here folks. Buy your tickets for the greatest show on earth—A Presentation of Class 3-A-2! Show starts in a minute, step right inside!"

"Now that we are all gathered together, ladies and gentlemen, I guess that you are curious to know what the show is about. But I'm not going to tell you—I'll run it on and you can judge for yourselves.

"Curtain!—the big show is about to begin!"

We lean forward in our seats, fascinated by the novelty of the entertainment. A few skeptics mutter about it being all a "racket." But the lights are dimmed and the billboard sign announces the first number to be a musical group, composed of singers,—Fagan, McSherry and Appel, and musicians,—Hickey and Pingerra,—playing the overture.

Suddenly it dawns on us that this must be some famous class of boys—so famous indeed that their services had been enlisted in this traveling show to demonstrate their incredible ability. "What class do they represent?" we ask. "3-A-2?" But at this point another sign is thrust on the stage—it reads, "Acrobatic Wonders of the Age." Again the lights dim, and a new act goes on.

A large troupe of athletic looking youths prance out upon the stage and immediately they organize into different groups. One group, Kinane, O'Hara, Carroll, Smith and Harvey vigorously throw a football about in a circle. Another, Kircher, Hartz, Masterson, Leonard and Higgins shoot baskets with unerring skill. But what is this? In the far corner of the stage a pistol cracks—two grim faced boys, Appel and Flynn are off on the mile run!—May the best man win! A lonely looking fellow in the shadows of the curtain drop is disconsolately shooting a puck against the wall; it is McLaughlin wishing there was someone to join him. As a grand finale, four boys come running across the stage hitting ping-pong balls before them. The program card says that they are, Birmingham, Campion, Cavagnaro and Zacharewicz—everyone of them a future champion.

Loud bursts of applause greet the end of the act and the troupe takes several curtain calls before the next act is flashed.

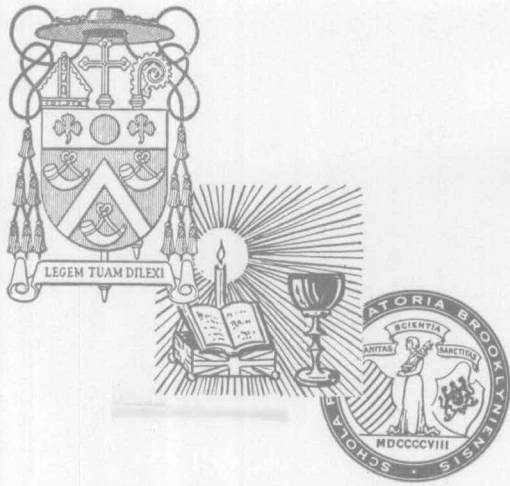

The scenery for this act is very mysterious looking. Black cats seem to squirm and crawl on the canvas drop and large moons and witches add to the general appearance. What is it? The placard says that it is the "Wizard Act". Before we can ask a question or wonder at the strangeness of the thing, five solemn looking boys walk slowly out on the stage. Large spectacles adorn the faces of everyone of them. With all the poise of a renown scholar each one lifts up his coat-tails and sits down. George Kircher, the spokesman for the quintet, announces that these five men are willing to answer any question relating to education that should be asked by the crowd. He then introduces the other four men. William Campion, the Latin wizard, Lawrence Brueckner, the scholar of languages, William Larkin, the English authority, John Hartz, the boy prodigy, and lastly, Kircher himself, the Mathematical genius. Questions pour thick and fast over the footlights, but as fast as they come, these boys seem to take care of them.

Now comes the showman out again, but with him he brings five distinguished, well groomed men, to all appearances an imposing "Brain Trust". A hush falls on the assembly—then after a moment's pause, the showman speaks.

"These, my dear audience, are the men under whom this remarkable class has been instructed in the various highlights of classical knowledge. Let me introduce them to you. Mr. Gerard A. Horigan, S.J., the Latin and German professor; Mr. John E. Devlin, professor of English; Mr. John J. Cummings, instructor of geometry, and Mr. S. Edward Flynn of the French Department. Give them all a great big hand!"

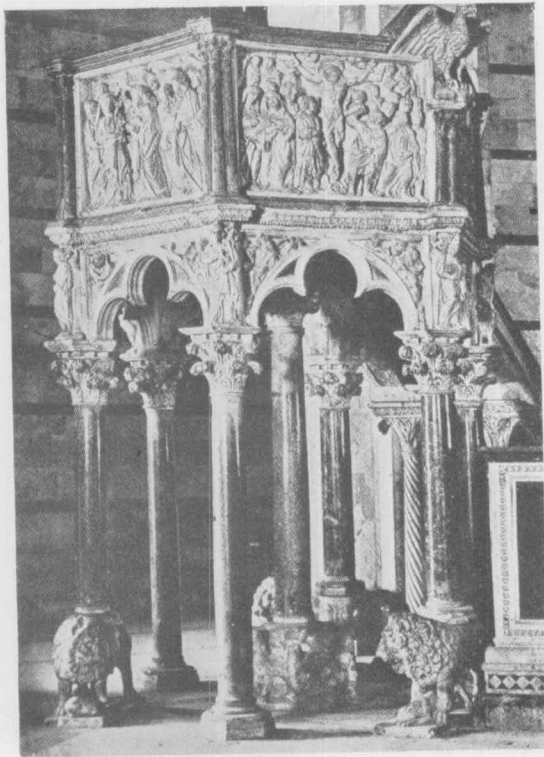

A tremendous burst of applause floods the tent, and as the professors slowly withdraw, the lights flash up and the show is over.

THE CLASS OF 2-B-1

THE CLASS OF 2-B-1.

THE court attendant's cry, "The Court will please come to order," broke through the courtroom like a peal of thunder.

A hush came over the courtroom as the trial of Brooklyn Preparatory School against the class of 2-B-1, on the charges of negligence in leadership in sports and in proficiency in studies, continued. The prosecution had already presented its case and the Judge, Father Klocke, and the Jurors, the Faculty, seemed duly impressed by the evidence.

But there was still hope as Attorney John Cuff, the class orator, began his concise but convincing speech.

"Your Honor", he began, "having heard the charges of the prosecution, it is my task, which I so eagerly and happily accepted, to prove that my client is entirely innocent of these absurd accusations. I shall prove my case not by producing witnesses but by a series of exhibits which I am sure will convince the jury".

Having made his preliminary remarks, Attorney Cuff approached his desk and from his leather portfolio produced the following articles:

Exhibit A—Philip O'Reilly, Thomas Patterson and Robert Dineen, genii of Latin.

Exhibit B—Bill Hodnet, Vincent Carberry and Matthew McMahon, who proved that Greek is not invincible.

Exhibit C—Bill Schwitter, Bob Dineen and Jimmie Murphy, future basketball stars.

Exhibit D—Bob Welsh, Tommy Miles, Lincoln Hoey and Bill Smith on whom the school will depend to lead us to many football victories in coming years.

Exhibit E—Dick Howley and Joe Hogan who because of their great knowledge of Civics start many a debate in class.

Exhibit F—Joe Carey who discovers new methods of solving Latin problems every day.

Exhibit G—Philip Maree and Eugene O'Brien, adept students in biology.

Exhibit H—George Grady, ex-beadle and chief librarian.

Exhibit I—Joe Ryan, Bill Schwitter, Bob Dineen, Johnny Hedderson and Jim Murphy, future baseball stars.

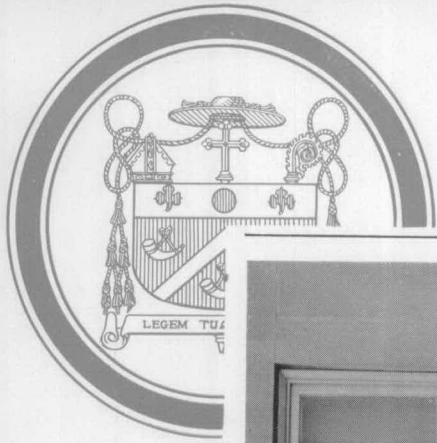

Exhibit J—Tommy Miles, Vincent Carberry and Joe Ryan, our gallant contribution to track.

Exhibit K—The Ping-Pong team composed of John Zoller, Bill Schwitter, Bill Hodnet, Joe Carey, Vinny Carberry and George Grady.

Exhibit L—Ed Ardery and James Furlong who bring to an end our distinguished work.

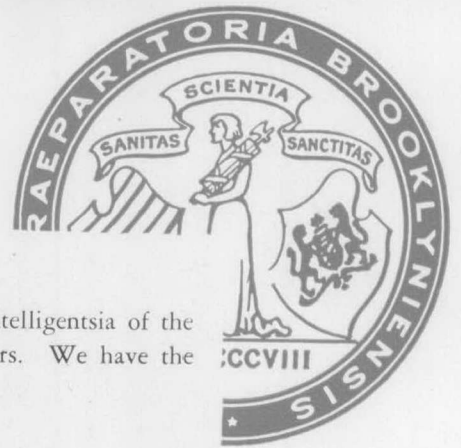

The evidence having been produced, Attorney Cuff paused for a moment's rest before beginning his summation. "Gentlemen of the Jury," he began, "I believe that you will, as intelligent jurors, carefully consider the evidence presented and bring in the only possible verdict, 'Not Guilty', as charged in the indictment. I thank you."

John Zoller.

THE CLASS OF 2-B-2

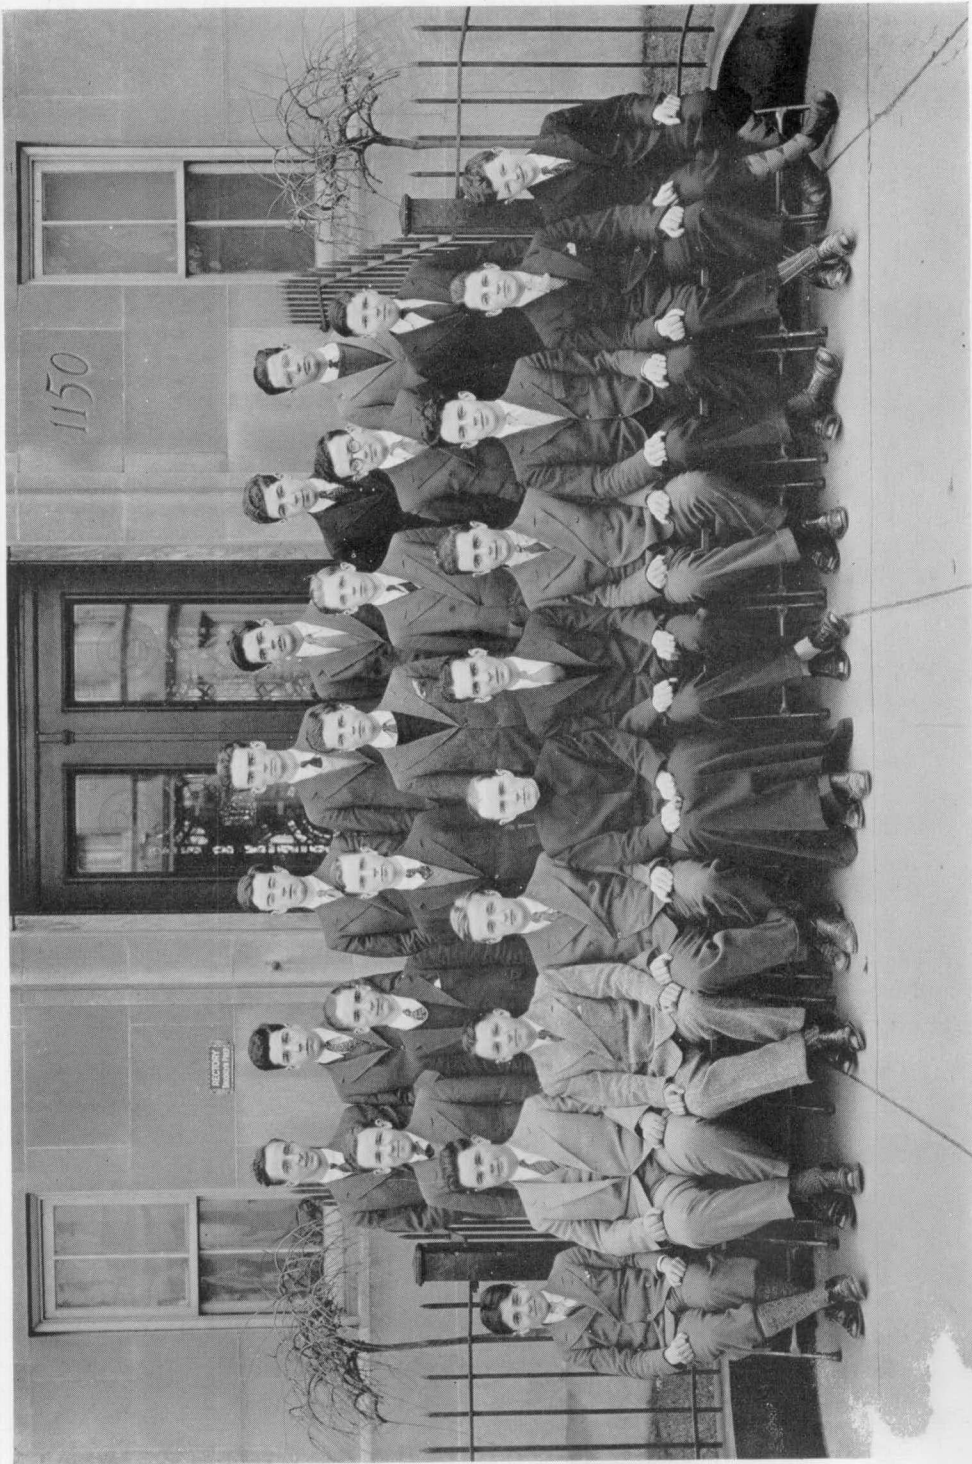

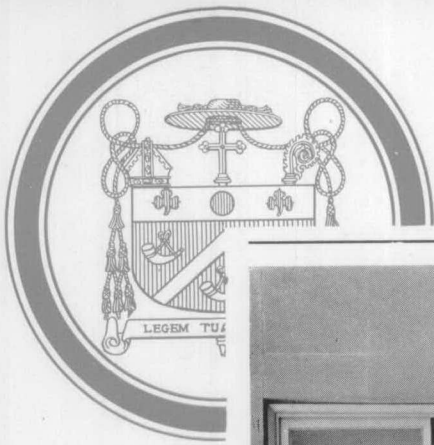

THE CLASS OF 2-B-2

WHILE the Class of 2-B-2 is too modest to proclaim itself the intelligentsia of the Prep, it is proud of the scholastic achievements of its members. We have the distinction of "no failures" through four consecutive months.

Our personnel is as follows:

THE CLASS OF 2-B-3

CLASS OF 2-B-3

THAT tremendous army of Province examinations is approaching again and though we have survived the last encounter with few casualties, there is still a slight trace of nervousness in our dugout.

The "boys" are working with all their vim and vigor and though there is a furlough for one week during Easter, the rest of the time will be devoted to drill and training.

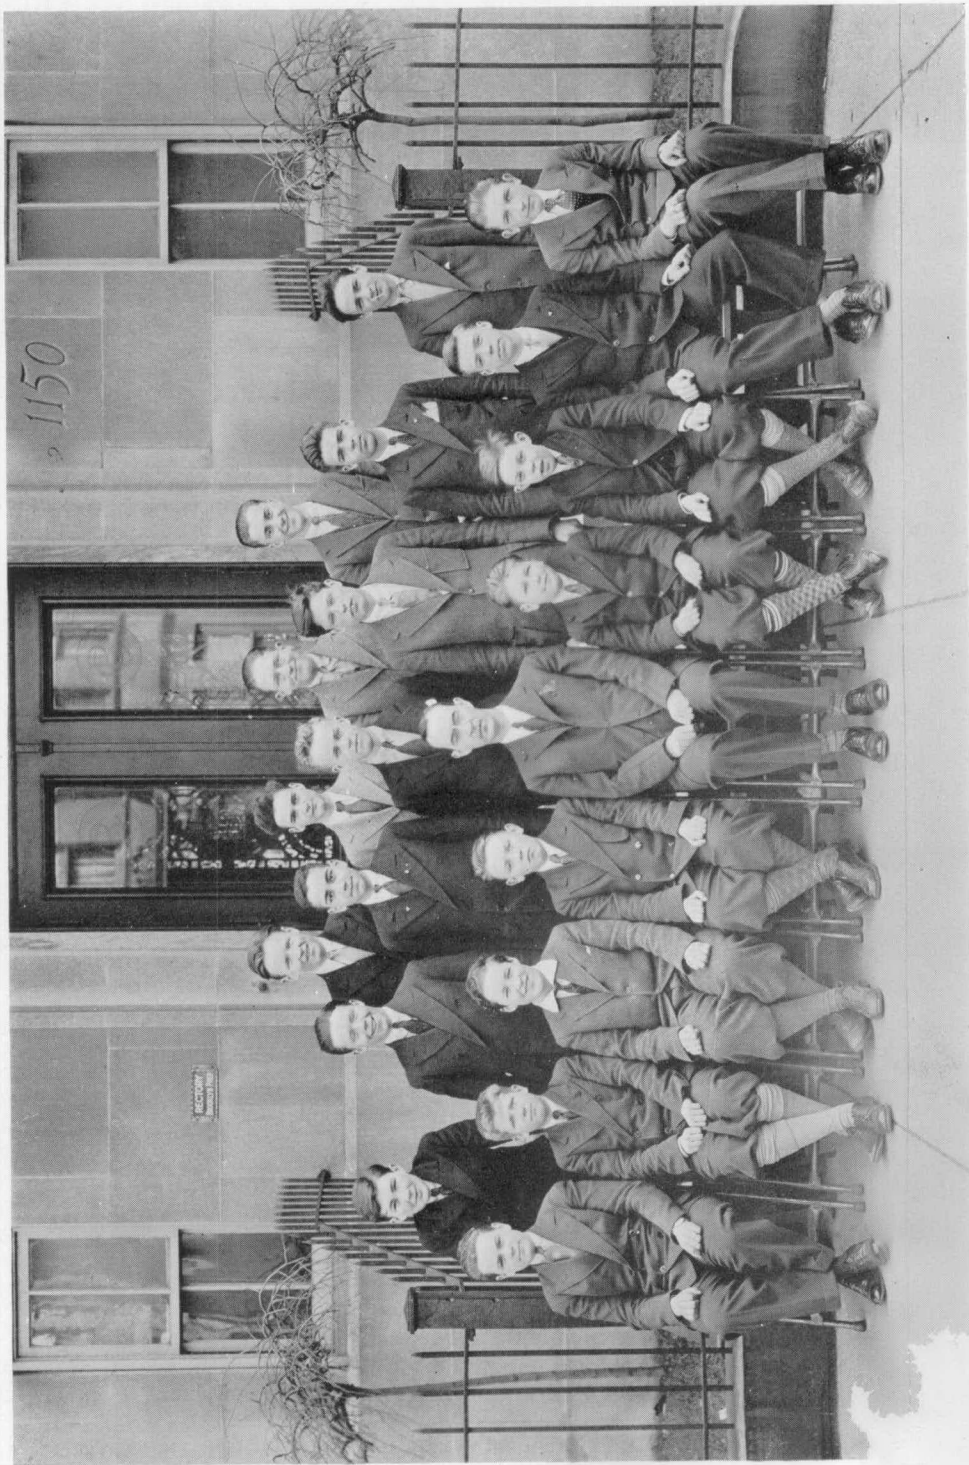

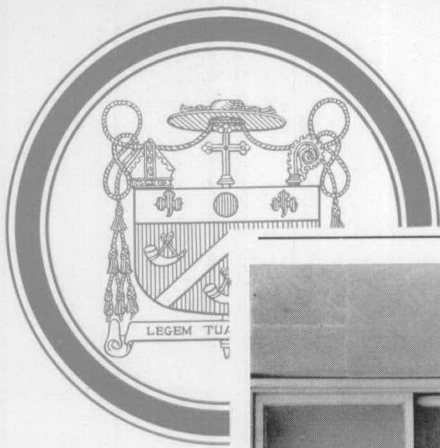

I believe it is due time to reintroduce you to the "boys" and also to the newly-arrived recruits who are now firmly established in our midst.

GERALD CARROLL	the deep-toned beadle.
JOHN REDINGTON	a recruit firmly interested in ping-pong.
BILL SYLVESTER	of a joking and teasing nature.
JOE GRAINGER	buckling down to studies.
MICHAEL HUME	the punster and Math genius.
CARMINE SICONOLFI	the Caesar of Chemistry.
JOHN NACE	the roly-poly literary enthusiast.
FRANK MCGUINN	a good natured punster.
FRANK BRICKFIELD	"dropkicker" and second baseman.
ALLAN HUGHES	ambition in news reporting.
JOHN REGAN	athletic leader and humorist.
RALPH GERRA	scholar and vice-president of debating.
ROBERT FURER	lanky enthusiast in sports.
JOHN MORAN	variety in sport.
RAY VISCARDI	in persuasion he ranks next to Cicero.
GEORGE GREENE	a rabid Brooklyn fan.
DESMOND WARREN	the deep sea fisherman and itinerist.
WILLIAM WOODS	smiling and cheerful every day.
CLIFFORD FERRIS	ray of sunshine in any class.
NEIL CAPPOLA	man of mystery and member of Student Council.
DICK HAYDEN	track seems to be first, last and always.
JOHN REDMOND	tennis player, converted to ping-pong and basketball.
VINCENT SANTARE	essayist of this composition.

Now, that we are all mentioned and described, I shall say good-bye until next year, when we shall have crossed the Rubicon.

Vincent Santare.

THE CLASS OF 2-A-1

CLASS OF 2-A-1

ON February 3rd at 9 A.M. a group of boys filed into room 208 with faces beaming.

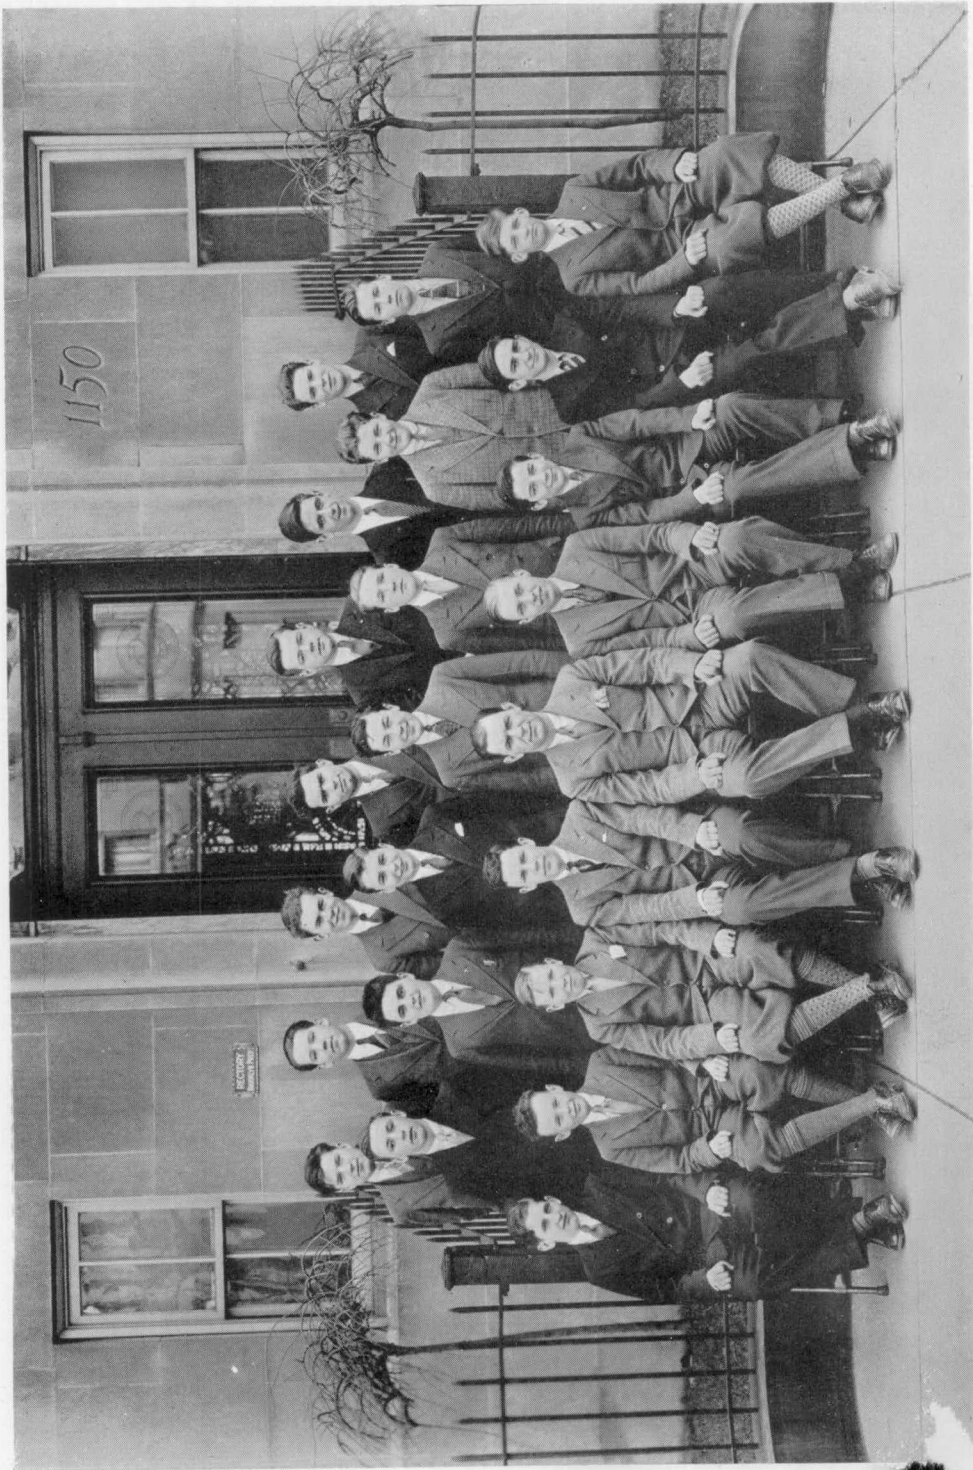

And why shouldn't they be beaming; for hadn't they been promoted and hadn't they enjoyed one of the longest mid-term vacations (one-half day) any school had had?

The first in line was so small that four foot Shannon was stepping on him. Of course the former was Schad, the class artist and mascot. Shannon jumps for a desk and is pushed aside by Tom Finnican the football "pro". There is a bit of noise down the aisle, but never mind, it is only Butler, a lively student, having a little scurry with Bardwil, one of the distinguished Latin scholars. Caddell, our class track star, comes running down the aisle to break the tape in a fast ten yard dash but instead of the worsted, a foot slides out and Ed speeds on his way through the air but not with the greatest of ease. Cavagnaro, the star of our star sportsters, lumbers up and down the aisles with arm outstretched in a stiff straight-arm. Larry Hickey finds himself reclining on and around a desk for he was on the receiving end of the afore mentioned "arm". Larry was J. V.'s scintillating player but he was totally unprepared for that jolt. In a little circle we see Esswein, Fellingham and Courtney, all scholarly men. They are deeply submerged in thought, wrinkling their mighty brains in the knotty problem of securing a ruler for the class. Bob Dwyer is ensconced on the teacher's throne dreamingly contemplating who is going to be the successor to his crown. He's the school's champion tennis player and one of its luminaries in studies too. Jacobs sits (Surprise) at one of the desks talking to Ed Whalen when Ed suddenly passes a swing (Pardon) swings a pass at the athletic director. Jake returns the compliment to Mr. Whalen's nose. Joe Ingham is not present; for some reason or other the Long Island trains could not, this morning, "Chug" out of the dense woods. Strauss is standing outside the door weighing a very serious problem with Mr. Giegengack; how promising his chances are for the track team. Allen and Phil Forrest are already discussing next year's football season. Hugh Breslin walks up to the three-cornered circle of Esswein, Fellingham and Courtney and after pondering deeply for an impressive second or two, announces that the only solution seems to be, borrow a ruler from another classroom.

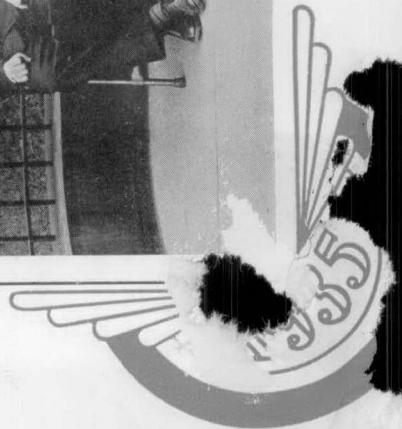

Just as this decision was being received with the amazement and awe required, your scribe noticed a peculiar tension in the air. A steady buzzing hum prevailed the room. Glancing sharply around the room he was surprised to note that the entire class was sound asleep. Even the teacher was resting quietly and serenely lost in the land of Nod. A sudden clangor, a laugh that grew louder and louder like the pounding of an incoming wave, up we (editorial) woke to find that the class was laughing at us. No wonder the excitement and carefreeness of the class seems so strange.

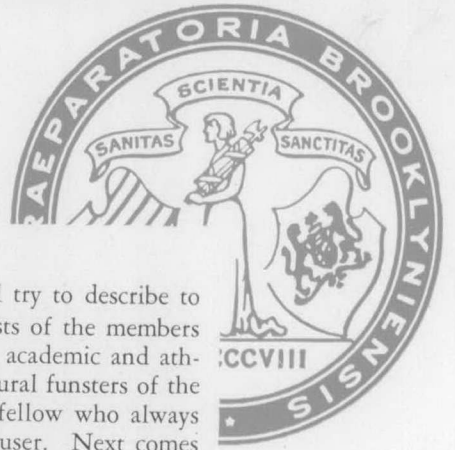

We walked sheepishly out with the other excited students glad to wander home but sorry that the dream wasn't a reality. Better luck next time and perhaps some day the dream may come true.

John Esswein.

THE CLASS OF 2-A-2

CLASS OF 2-A-2

HELLO, everybody! From my seat in the reviewing stand, I shall try to describe to you the great parade of the class of 2-A-2. This pageant consists of the members of the class who have proven themselves worthy Prepsters both in the academic and athletic field. As this parade draws near I can see at the head the two natural funsters of the class. They are Sweeney, better known as the little Giant, and that fellow who always has a grin from ear to ear and goes by the immortal name of Frankhauser. Next comes the Sports Brigade headed by that star football player, none other than Martini with his aid Beckley, the fast forward on the Freshman basketball team and who, incidentally, never runs out of questions for the teachers. Next come those who help to boost the Prep in various other sports, namely, Monahan, Kennedy and Buckley, all of whom showed their prowess on the athletic field.

After this group, a battalion of scholarly men come into view. This brigade is led by such stalwarts as McEwan and Watson closely followed by Connolly, Toner, Connor, Drolesky and others. These are followed by two young men, who seem to be having an argument as to which of the two is the smaller. Manning claims he is smaller than De Alteris but the class is divided in its opinion. Our man of ideas comes next. His name is Bennett and he represents the class at the Student Council meetings. He is accompanied by Ryan who always wants to read in English class. The last two to bring up the rear are Roche, the great high jumper, and Sapienza, who has a box of supposedly funny jokes up his sleeve. Well, he has Carmina to encourage him with his constant laughter.

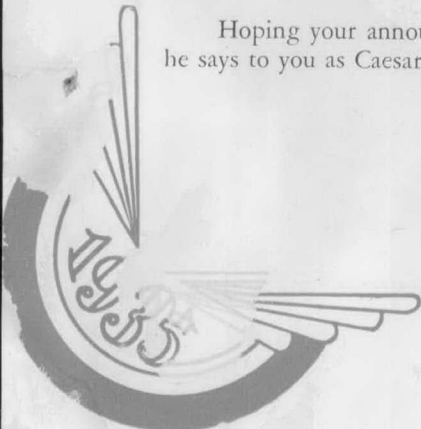

The men who guide our destinies now pass before the reviewing stand. They are first, Mr. Henry J. Shanahan, the History Instructor and Master of the Class; then Mr. Gerard A. Horigan, S.J., Instructor of English; thirdly, Mr. Henry M. McCabe, Instructor of Latin; next comes Mr. John J. Cummings, Instructor of Mathematics and Mr. Francis N. Wedder, Instructor of Biology.

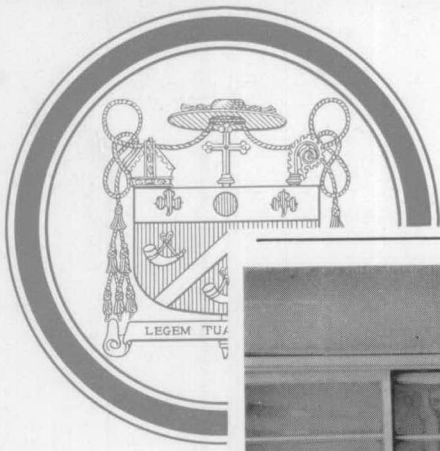

It might not be out of place here, friends, to comment briefly upon some of the outstanding members of the class. The leaders of the class in the various subjects are as follows: Watson leads in Mathematics and receives a monthly mark of not less than ninety-five. In Latin, McEwan is out in front and speaks the Dead Language as well as he does the English language. Some think he is sprung from Latin ancestors but his name quickly scouts that suggestion. Connolly and Roche seem to satisfy the King in regard to his majesty's English. Toner tops the class in recounting to Mr. Shanahan the past events.

In the sports field we have Buckley and De Alteris sharing the track honors with Roche taking the high jumps medals for himself. Martini and Watson handle the pig-skin and thus bring luster to the class. With these men and their classmates, President Sullivan can lead a remarkable group through to the final victory of graduation.

Hoping your announcer has brought to you an accurate picture of a splendid class, he says to you as Caesar said to Labienus "Vale".

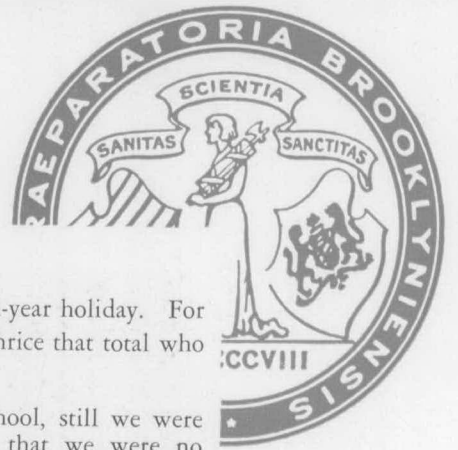

John Sullivan.

THE CLASS OF 2-A-3.

FEBRUARY 3rd! A red letter day! It marked the end of the mid-year holiday. For the number of us who were glad to return to school there were thrice that total who rose from slumber that morning with the greatest reluctance.

It was cheering to know that even though we had to go to school, still we were among friendly acquaintances. It was doubly cheering to realize that we were no longer to be called freshmen; we were at home at Prep and otherwise "in the know". There was no trepidation at facing the Prefect of Discipline and Head Master. "Were they strict?" "How would we get along with them?" "What changes would they effect in the routine of the school?" These questions of September 12th had been fully answered after observing both Father Coffey and Father Klocke during the three previous months. The teachers next came in for consideration, for we experienced an entire change of preceptors. Mr. Philip A. Carey, S.J., initiated us into the intricate mysteries of the Greek language, while we read of the original Merriwell heroes (Jason and his Argonauts) as well as taking into our course of study the bewilderments of advance English under the guidance of Mr. Francis J. Diamond, S.J. Mr. Sullivan expounded to us the principles of mathematics; Mr. Paul F. X. Yates, S.J., delved with us into the hidden depths of American History.

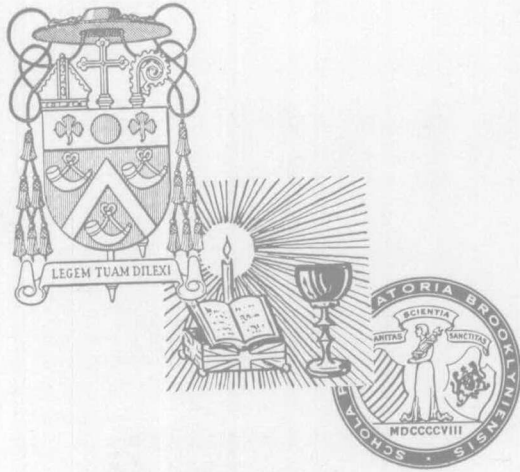

So much for the personnel of the teaching body. A few words anent the class members will not be amiss.

- CHARLIE GORMAN.....Scholarly Charlie.
- WILLIAM CLARK.....Noblest Roman of them all.
- ANDREW ISAACSON.....Must be trustworthy—he's the treasurer.
- BILL NAGLE.....The president and Beau Brummel of the class.
- JAMES GILLEN.....Our legal adviser.
- THOMAS GILLEN.....The unpaid office holder—he's the beadle.
- ED KNIGHT.....Says the class is dead—has taken steps to revive it.
- EDDIE MAHER.....He either devoured his books or was born that way.
- BOB SCHNEIDER.....As this is being penned, Bob is planning some new prank.
- CHARLIE WOLTMANN.....In marks he finds it so difficult to reach—100
- JIM BRADY.....The boy with the big smile.
- JOE BRESLIN.....Graham MacNamee's job is insecure with Joe the official announcer for the class
- FRED CLARK.....He's on his way.
- ED. HESTERBERG.....Is seeking his fortune in A. A. holdings.
- JAMES FINLEY.....Won't talk eh? We'll see!
- JIMMY DWYER....."Football JOE (I mean Jim) on the gridiron."
- JOE MALLOW.....His grape-nuts are sprinkled with Latin and Greek Syntax rules.
- JAMES BURKE.....The all around man.
- ED. HOGAN.....He's going up with the Braves, come next grass.
- DAMIEN CASSON.....Glenn Cunningham's only rival.
- CHARLES (GEHRINGER) GOLDEN.....He says he is a cinch for second base.
- WARREN DUNN.....His motto Why Worry? All "thinks" come to him who waits anyway.

By this time we are tired and you most likely are tired too so we will sign off until year. A toast to the best class in Prep.

THE CLASS OF 1-B-1

WE, the students of 1-B-1 have not had a great deal to say around the Prep. We have only begun to learn the fine Prep traditions, but the school spirit has taken deep root in our hearts during the past year. We have started to hit our stride and intend to leave our mark at Brooklyn Prep. Here is a brief review of the members of our class.

HARRY ANSTEY.....better known as the "sheriff".
GEORGE BOEHRER.....our efficient class secretary.
BILL CATHERWOOD.....a future doctor of philosophy.
RAY CLARE.....from the wilds of wooly Flatbush.
ROBERT COOK.....twin No. 1
RYDER COOK.....twin No. 2
GEORGE CRAIN.....our first Student Council representative.
EDDIE DONELLAN.....ping-pong player de luxe.
WILLIE FERGUSON.....full of quips and pranks.
BOB FISHER.....our Glee Club "canary".
JIMMY FOWLER.....our venerable "beadle".
EDDIE GOULD.....can't see what math has to do with dentistry.
TOMMY HESSION.....one reason why the midgets played so well.
AL HOENINGS....."Mister, I fell asleep studying".
JOE LO PRETE.....scrapes a mean fiddle in the school orchestra.
MIKE LAWLOR.....plugging along steadily.
HENRY LYNCH....."silent Henry".
JOE MCCABE....."Got to catch the 3:15".
GERRY MARSHALL....."Buy tickets from Catherwood, Marshall and Sullivan."
KEVIN MOYNAHAN.....perpetrated this outrage.
HOWARD RAIMOND.....our little Cicero.
RAY REILLY.....the "Woodmere Wildcat".
JIMMY SHANNON.....our English expert.
ART SHEEHAN....."I'm not asleep Mister!"
JOHNNY STAPLETON.....our living questionnaire.
JIMMY SULLIVAN.....future editor.
JIMMY TOUHEY.....our esteemed class president.
PAT WOODS.....another midget "basketballer".
AL ZALOOM.....a future artist of great renown.

There they are, dear reader, and we shall all salute you soon as dignified sophomores

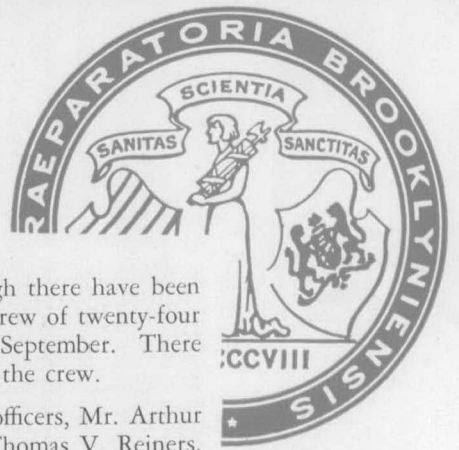

Kelvin Moynahan.

THE CLASS OF 1-B-2

THE good ship 1-B-2 has just completed its first voyage. Although there have been many storms we have managed to come through successfully. A crew of twenty-four stalwarts were signed on and the ship left port for its destination last September. There was a brief halt in February for a change of officers and additions to the crew.

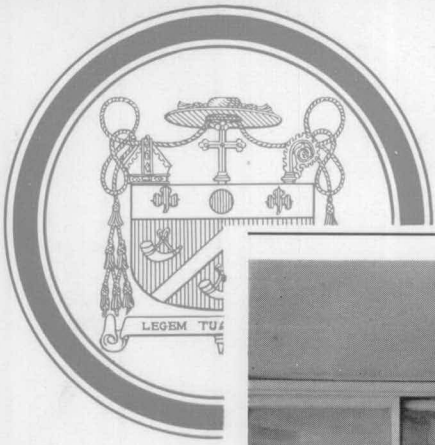

As we board ship we can see, standing on the bridge, the ship's officers, Mr. Arthur T. Lyne, Mr. Charles A. Goode, Mr. Francis J. O'Rourke and Mr. Thomas V. Reiners. Walking forward along the deck we come to the foc'sl where the crew is stationed. Here we see men destined to go high on the ladder of success. Let us see who they are as they pass in review.

JOHN CARLEY	Keeper of the gate.
EUGENE CARNEY	Class beadle (not beetle).
ALFRED CURRIE	The beantown (Boston) scholar.
EDWARD DARCEY	Scholarship boy par excellence.
PETER DUNNE	A great mind from a small town.
VINCENT FENNELLY	A debator who thrills the multitude.
VINCENT FIORE	A future baseball star.
RAYMOND FLOYD	Silent but active.
JAMES FOLEY	Everyone's friend.
JOSEPH FOWLER	Our golden voiced tenor.
JAMES GARVEY	Our only letter man.
STEPHEN HAVELOCK	Shakespeare's rival.
ARTHUR HERBERT	Another basketball aspirant.
ROBERT JONES	A real freshman.
WILLIAM LAROSE	Class punster extraordinary.
RICHARD LONG	Dick the walking question mark.
LOUIS LUDEMAN	A great marksman.
EDWARD LYDEN	Our bundle of activity.
ROBERT MURPHY	Welcome in any class.
LEIGHTON O'CONNOR	Our Radio Star.
WALTER O'KEEFE	Starts each answer with a question.
ROBERT SHAW	A dependable chap.
THOMAS SLATTERY	Very quiet, but still water runs deep.
FRANCIS TIMMES	Always a smile and always a good word.
THOMAS WEBB	Delves deeply into Latin authors.

The members of this crew have been active in many branches of Prep activities. In this class we have representatives of the freshman and midget basketball teams, freshman football squad, glee club, debating society, radio, sodality and other activities. The crew as a whole has been working in cooperation with the officers and when the journey is over we hope to be able to look back upon the work which we have done with satisfaction.

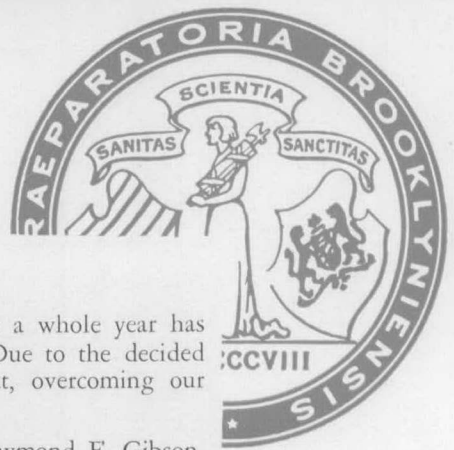

"Land Ahoy," the lookout cries,
And we must close with parting sighs!

THE CLASS OF 1-B-3

THE CLASS OF 1-B-3

LOOKING back to September, 1934, one can hardly realize that a whole year has elapsed since the class of 1-B-3 first entered Brooklyn Prep. Due to the decided change from grammar school we were nervous for some time but, overcoming our timidity we settled down to achieving success in the work before us.

Under the able guidance of Mr. William J. McMahon, Mr. Raymond E. Gibson, S.J., Mr. Robert F. Giegengack, Mr. Arthur T. Lyne and Father Gabriel A. Zema, S.J., we made great progress during the year and developed several intellectual stars. One has but to look at the long list of those from 1-B-3 on the honor roll to see the truth of this statement. At the end of the first term we met and conquered the exams and came through with flying colors.

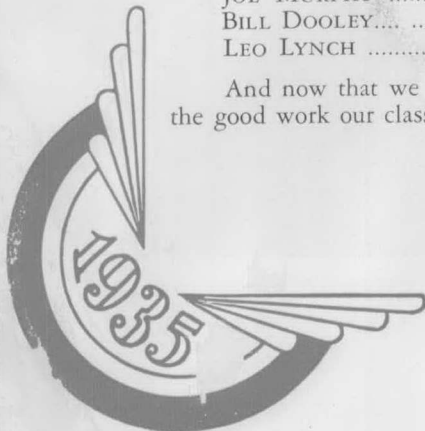

But scholastic fields were not the only ones that saw these colors. We took part in almost every extra curricular activity. We all know of the superb playing of Dineen, Caputo, Greeley and Hanlon and the other members of our championship basketball team. We think that they will travel along the same brilliant path to basketball honors opened up for them by our all 'round performer "Ray" Smith. Visitors to the roof track were deeply impressed by the fine performances of Lyons, Geoghan and Sigrist, fast runners all. The ping-pong team including such luminaries as Gunnels, Murphy, Barkie and Dooley often carried the class colors to victory.

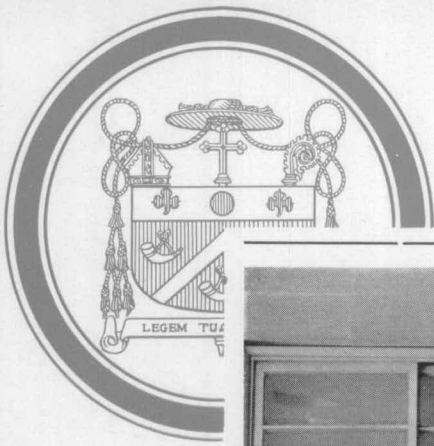

Among those who have made room 212 a happy hunting ground for scholars are these distinguished gentlemen:

TOM DINEEN	he of the golden voice.
ED GUNNELS	ping-pong player per excellence.
RAY SMITH	believes in a fifteen hour school week.
JIM MEEKS	a quiet little plodder.
JOE LEDNER	still looking for the second algebra example.
ALLEN SIGRIST	Cunningham's rival on the track.
BILL SAMMON	from September on found not one spare minute.
JERRY BARKIE	our little Demosthenes.
JOHN BOWLER	a cheerful smile for every period.
FRANCIS GROGAN	still thinks Dineen is wrong.
JOE MAHER	our Wordsworth.
LARRY GEOGHAN	football star.
JOE HANLON	always preparing for the hunting season.
ED ATEYEH	still trying to see Keating's jokes.
AL CAPUTO	at home on a basketball court.
FRANCIS KEATING	tragedy in the news.
THOMAS LYONS	a future track star.
EMMET GREELEY	a little nobleman.
GEORGE LEWNES	a quiet lover of learning.
ROBERT SWETT	plans a new prank daily.
JOE MURPHY	ping-pong artist.
BILL DOOLEY.....	a silent, kindly little gentleman.
LEO LYNCH	soft voiced student with a big smile.

And now that we have been introduced we assure you that we intend to keep up the good work our class has done and so we say "au revoir" until September!

*Jeremiah Barkie.

THE CLASS OF 1-A-1

THE CLASS OF 1-A-1

*M*OTORS are roaring, crowds cheering and every one is agog with excitement. For today twenty-six new planes are to be tested by twenty-six raw recruits. These planes are to carry them through four years of learning and then on to the further reaches of life. Round about the reviewing stand are grouped the officers: Mr. Philip A. Carey, S.J., Class Master and Instructor in Latin and English; Mr. Arthur T. Lyne, Professor of history; Mr. Charles J. Goode, who teaches formations in Algebra and last of all, Rev. Fr. Gabriel A. Zema, Student Counsellor and Lecturer in Christian Doctrine.

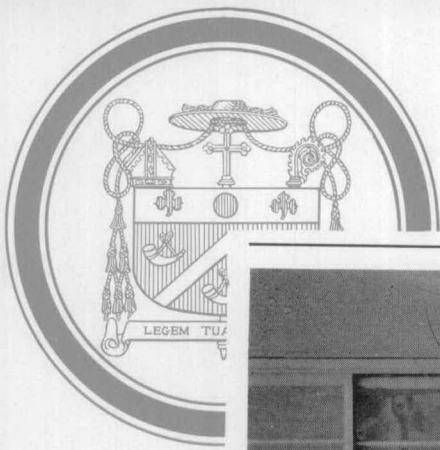

Here are the pilots coming out onto the field. But wait; there are only twenty-five. Oh, yes! we can see him now. The mechanics are helping him into the cockpit. We can barely see his head. Who is he? Little Willie Whelan, the smallest man ever to carry the colors of our Alma Mater. In perfect unison the planes rise from the ground. Like vultures down from the clouds swoop the dreaded four, Latin, Mathematics, English, and History. With a courage that would warm the hearts of the bravest, these fledglings clear the guns and prepare for the first crucial encounter of their Prep days. Up in front, we see Jack Carroll, the President, taking a preliminary shot at Latin. Immediately behind him come the diminutive forms of Will Whelan and the "venerable beadle", Ed Gallagher. Diminutive in stature are both these boys but certainly not in brain power. The battle rages. Like a sabre-toothed tiger, Latin pounces on John Aufiero. John fights valiantly and though the ship flutters, he soon has it under control. Then Latin, like an eagle cheated of its prey, falls on the rear guard, our John Lee, Joe McCarthy and Herb Kane, the class secretary. But here Latin receives a severe jolt. These scholars start a fierce counter attack and Latin scurries for cover behind its own men.

Over there, we see "Scotty" Tennant and Ed. McManus tearing Mathematics to shreds. Ed leads his own squadron, for he is the Athletic Manager. His ball team was the first to start practice at Prep. Frank Travers is his star first-base man. Bob Firth, the "deep-mouthed tense sign" covers second. Very little gets away from the short-stop, Vincent Tennant, and Gene O'Brien covers third. Charlie Yodice, (Joe Ablative of Accompaniment) Walsh and Larry Hassell cover the far reaches of the field. And we need good fielders, for our pitchers make up in speed what they lack in control. These pitchers follow a very definite order, Ed McManus, Don Lynch and the final pitcher Bob Oliver.

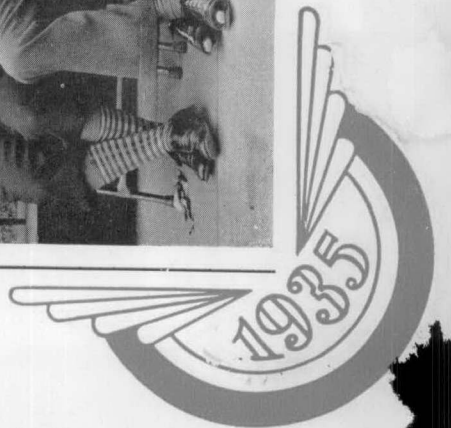

Looping in and out and lending a hand where they are needed are Will Brennan and Frank Busby, from the realms of Rockaway. Mathematics participating in the melee for the first time silently glides up behind Gerry Carey and Frank O'Toole. Like a hawk, Frank barrell-rolls and is under Math. History battles and is caught in a wicked crossfire from Tom Neagle, S.C.R. Dom. Giordana and Ken McCausland. A swift attack from Gus "Galba" Scholl and Frank O'Neil down the enemy and peace settles over the field.

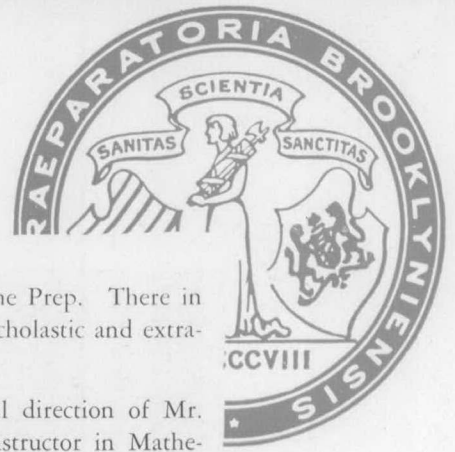

The planes descend and accept the congratulations of the reviewing officers. They are slightly battle-scarred from this first encounter, but victorious withal. The class of 1-A-1 will try always to live up to its motto, "First in sports, First in studies, First in the things of the soul."

*Edward J. Gallagher.

THE CLASS OF 1-A-2

THE CLASS OF 1-A-2

LET us extract from the files the record of this fine new class at the Prep. There in a special section of the files is a written report on our progress, scholastic and extra-curricular. Here it is; let us peruse it.

According to the report the class of 1-A-2 is under the skilful direction of Mr. Raymond E. Gibson, S.J., our Latin teacher; Mr. Charles Goode, instructor in Mathematics and Mr. Arthur Lyne, who teaches the interesting subject of History.

We read that Robert Chellis, Theodore O'Neill and John Haslach, Robert Chellis, James Clark and George Hochswender are all at the top in studies. Many of the class excel on the field of sport and have their eye on future varsity positions.

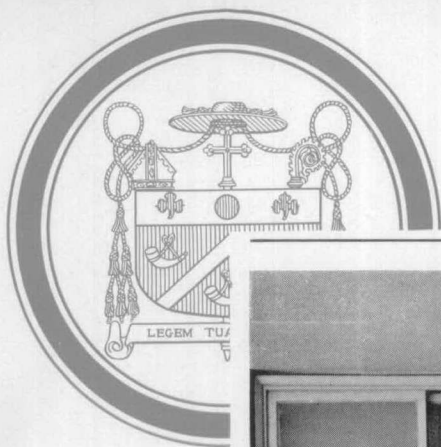

In particular we notice:

BIGGS	class beadle.
FENTON.....	full of pranks and quips.
SHEEHAN.....	the ping-pong artist.
O'HARA.....	champion board eraser.
O'BRIEN.....	a tennis enthusiast.
CALLERY.....	a mighty mite.
McKINNEY.....	our Walter Camp.
MAHONEY.....	a quiet, thoughtful lad.
GHELARDI.....	a bespectacled scholar.
CULLEN.....	cheerfulness personified.
VITALE.....	best scholar in Queens.
COOPER.....	a genius from Flatbush.
BURKE.....	the silent student.
MULRY.....	the little executive.
DULEBOHN.....	our little orator.
SULLIVAN.....	draught officer (opens the windows).
BROUNWORTH.....	thinks the Dodgers will win.
CALLAHAN.....	Student Council representative.

Altogether the report is a favorable one and the class is well on its way to scholastic and extra-curricular excellence. Let's give them three cheers and a fond "au revoir".

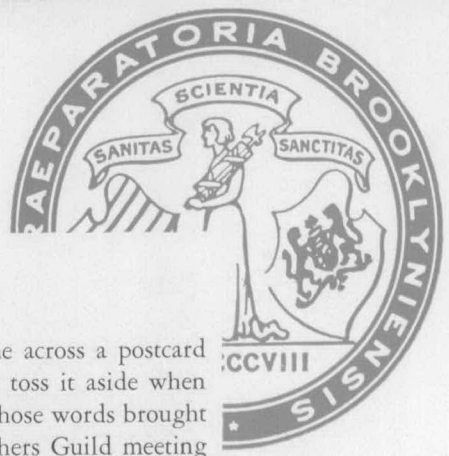

William Callery.

THE CLASS OF 1-A-3

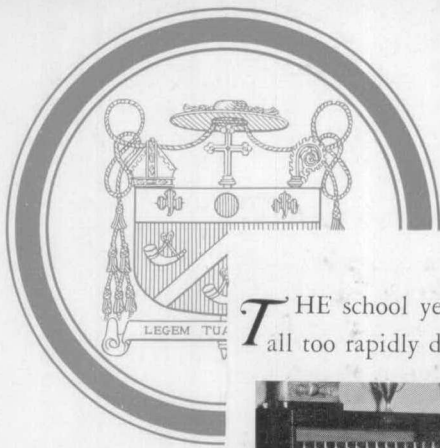

CLASS HISTORY OF 1-A-3

A MIDDLE aged man sat in his office reading his mail. He came across a postcard which he thought was an advertisement and was just about to toss it aside when he caught sight of the words Brooklyn Prep on the back of the card. Those words brought memories back to him. Turning the card he read it, it told of a Fathers Guild meeting inviting him to attend. As he read those words he began to think of the time when he went to the school his own son now attended. In a moment his mind was oblivious to the world around him, he was thinking back, back to the days when he attended the Prep, he was wondering what had become of those fellows that had gone through school with him.

In his mind he traveled back to that classroom on the third floor. He could still hear the crisp voice of Mr. Lahey snapping out questions while some unfortunate had a very bewildered look on his face trying to master that old demon Latin. In the first seat he pictured Francis Grogan, the old reliable beadle, tacking some notice on the bulletin board or writing some homework assignment on the blackboard. Right behind him was George Donlan, who he remembered as being a good scholar in all his subjects, then there was Denis Barry, who besides being able to boot a football was also a good basketball player. Then there was William Bowne who he remembered as always being able to give an intelligent answer, he was also a good basketball player on the class team. He remembered little Walter Durack and how he used to scratch that flaming red thatch of his when in doubt of an answer, there was big Drew Logan who always had his Latin case endings down pat. Then there was George Franghied who could answer any question on English Grammar besides being a good scholar in all his other subjects. There was little William Hession who was always joking with the history teacher, little James Ryan who always had his hand raised to answer or ask some question. He remembered Joseph Milne who could tell you anything about stamps, their making and prices, Arthur Hugart who would always volunteer an answer. Then there was little William Keegan who despite his size was a pretty good basketball player; he remembered Walter Fitzpatrick who was habitually tugging at his sleeve when doubtful about something, and George McManus who was always punctual. There was Arthur Saunders, the tall dark handsome lad, who was a good basketball player on the class team.

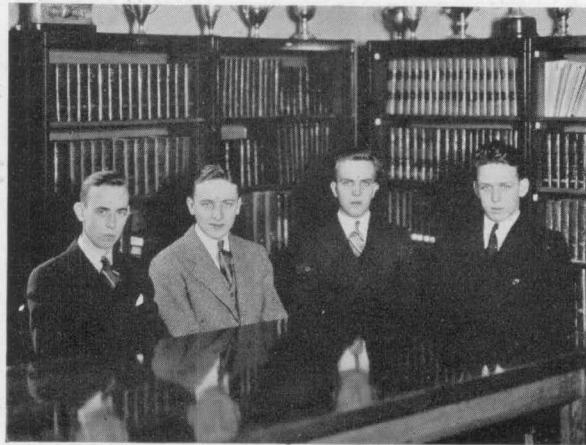

He remembered James O'Reilly who always studied his lessons, Roderick McAllister another who would always volunteer an answer, there was Joseph Horgan who just loved his Latin and William Beebe another good player on our class team. Then there was huge George Hurley another lover of Latin and Paul Mathias volunteering an answer on X. D., there was George Harris who could answer any question on the "Lady of the Lake". Yes, he remembered them all, what had become of that old gang of his, many years ago he had stepped forth with the rest of them to seek his fortune, he had made good after a long, hard climb, beginning at the bottom he was on top now after many years of hard work he was a success, but what of the others, had they all been as fortunate as he, he wondered as he sat there thinking of days gone by. He would give up all he now had to be back once again, how he envied his son! Suddenly there came a sharp rap on the door, it awakened him from his dream. He was awake, to the world around him, once again he was the big business man who had just experienced a pleasant dream of things long gone by.

Joseph Bachmann.

THE EDITOR'S DIARY

THE school year is nearly over. Everyone is planning his vacation and time passes all too rapidly during the preparation for examinations. But even with these worries we have had time for a great deal of fun during the past year and the memory of these joys is so firmly engraved in my mind that not even the passage of time can erase it. But in case you were not as fortunate as I was in preserving these memories let me review them for your briefly.

SODALITY OFFICERS, FIRST TERM

Autumn—Back from fishing trips and boating parties came the boys. Whether Sophomores or Seniors they had all forgotten much of what they had learned in previous years. But the summer had grown tiresome and we eagerly awaited the first day of school. Then came September 12th; the yard is full and amidst joyful salutations and happy handshakes the school year begins again at Brooklyn Prep. Since we cannot succeed without the help of God, we feel that we are off to an auspicious start when we gather in the church for the Mass of the Holy Ghost. We see many changes in the faculty and at our first assembly we welcome Reverend Father John H. Klocke, S.J., as Head Master, Father Thomas J. Coffey, S.J., Prefect of Discipline, Father Edward J. Kenna, S.J., Instructor of Senior, Mr. Francis J. Diamond, S.J., Instructor of Sophomore, Mr. William G. Perry, S.J., Instructor of Senior. Reorganization of the various school activities begins under their respective moderators and John Britt holds the chair of the Student Council. The Senior and Bellarmine Debating Societies are in the hands of Mr. James J. Walsh and Mr. Philip A. Carey, S.J. The Glee Club begins to function at the tap of Mr. Joslyn's baton and the Chess Club holds its opening meeting with Mr. Raymond E. Gibson, S.J., as moderator. Edward J. Riley directs the publication of the first issue of the Blue Jug under the guidance of Mr. Gerard A. Horigan, S.J. Father Gabriel A. Zema, S.J., announces plans for the Sodality, the Prefect of the Senior Sodality being John Britt while Frank Young is at the head of the Junior Sodalists. The Student Council which remains under the direction of Mr. James J. Walsh moves its office to a larger room on the second floor. Mr. William A. Fitz Gerald receives his doctorate from the Fordham Graduate School. Coach Shanahan announces the football schedule and expects a good season after looking over the eighty candidates who turn out for practice. He feels that a fast forming offense and a scrappy defense will make up for the team's lack of weight. Captain Bill Chandler starts the cross country squad swinging through the woulds and a good season is predicted by Coach Giegengack because of the large number of veterans on the squad.

THE CHEER LEADERS

A pontifical high mass is celebrated in St. Theresa's auditorium for all the students of the Catholic schools in Brooklyn. But inclement weather unfortunately prevents the parade that had been arranged. However, Father Zema was gratified by the large turnout from the Prep. Trials for the Prep Play which this year was "Buddies" were held in the auditorium on October 19th. Mr. Stuart Fox will again direct the production. President Britt appoints the House Committee and a splendid program with an abundance of refreshments enable the Student Council to conduct a successful social for the September Freshmen.

After a long period of practice the Prep gridgers open their season with a victory over Xavier. "Hilly" Renz makes the deciding touchdown in the closing minutes of the game. The Fall Tennis Tournament is won by Bob Dwyer. Bob, a Freshman, battled it out in a long match with Bill Schwitter, a Sophomore. Father McGrath, S.J., from St. Francis Xavier's in Manhattan, presents the model Christian life to the upper classmen in the annual retreat. Father Zema is the retreat master for the Freshman.

The Prep eleven wins its second victory of the season with a 6-0 score over Fordham Prep. Shortly after this in the middle of October the Prep Cross Country Team defeats Poly Prep in an impressive 37-18 victory. A week after the Fordham game the Prep winning streak is cut short in a hard fought game with All Hallows, the final score being 6-0. After being downed by Poly and St. Peter's the Prep trims St. Paul's. We hold the Garden City lads to one touchdown while "Hilly" Renz scores four of them. On Thanksgiving the Prep team is outplayed by a heavier St. John's eleven and although they beat us our coach feels we played a good game in allowing our traditional rivals but two touchdowns. While our football team did not meet with a great deal of success, our Cross Country Team establish themselves as the undisputed Private and Catholic Champions of the Metropolitan Area. Bill Dobbins, Bill Chandler, Murt Lawrence, Dick Peterson and Gene McLaughlin deserve a great deal of credit for their hard training and fine performances.

At this time the Fathers' Guild holds its initial meeting of the season and our new Head Master with his assistants are formally welcomed. Many Prep students begin at this time to do mission work by teaching catechism in various churches of the Brooklyn diocese. This work is under the direction of Father Zema, our Student Counsellor.

Marks come out for the second month. What a headache! And although many of the boys felt ill after the cards were sent home Father Francis Connell, S.J., Prefect General of Studies of the Jesuit high schools in the New York-Maryland Province expressed his satisfaction after observing the work of our students. The senior class forms their banquet and ring committees with Father Edward J. Kenna, S.J., the new moderator of the Student Council as director of both. When we returned from Christmas vacation we found the rifle range transformed into a fine recreation room. Ping-pong tables for the use of all students, the walls freshly painted and adorned with the school monogram, the pictures of old classes and athletic teams, all make the room a fine meeting place for Prepsters.

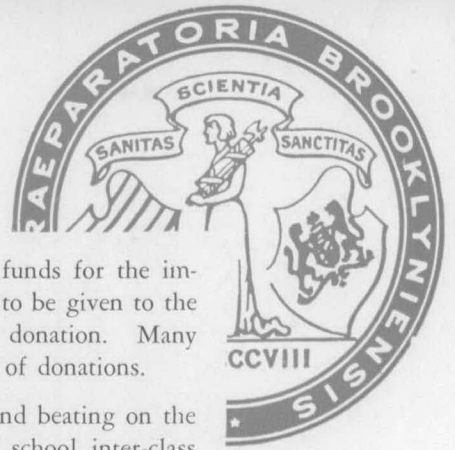

The Prep basketball team starts a winning streak after losing the first five games. The swimming team realizes their sixth consecutive triumph by defeating St. John's. After these victories the swimming and basketball teams because of losses sustained through graduation were downed on two successive days and their waning streaks were shattered. In the intra-mural basketball tourney the class of 3-A-3 emerges victorious and receives charms.

Mr. Charles A. Matthews, S.J., takes over the reins as moderator of the Glee Club to lighten the burden of Mr. Philip V. Sullivan, S.J., who now has the Blue Book well under way. Mr. Paul F. X. Yates, S.J., supplants Mr. Philip A. Carey, S.J., as moderator of the new Bellarmine Debating Society.

THE VARSITY DEBATING TEAM

At this time the Loyalty Drive is started to raise much needed funds for the improvement of the school. A beautiful car or the equivalent in cash is to be given to the person holding the winning number on the receipt for his or her donation. Many valuable prizes are also given to those who obtain the largest number of donations.

Our basketball team gave our traditional rivals, Poly Prep, a sound beating on the latter's court and then proceeded to scalp the alumni quintet. The school inter-class ping-pong tournament comes next on the schedule and much enthusiasm is aroused by the stirring matches.

Spring—With the arrival of spring the Blue Jug Staff desiring the sun and fresh air move their office to larger quarters on the fourth floor as Mr. William G. Perry, S.J., becomes the new moderator of the publication. This was the final accomplishment of Mr. Gerald A. Horgan, S.J., during his long and useful period in office. Plans are announced for the Washington Trip as well as the Annual Outing. His Excellency, the Most Reverend Raymond A. Kearney, D.D., Prep '19, after being consecrated to the episcopacy, comes back to his Alma Mater for a reception in his honor. The Glee Club, after many rehearsals, render some beautiful selections; Reverend Father Rector, Joe Bier, Tom Cullen and William Wildprett, speak on His Excellency's days at Prep and offer him the prayers and good wishes of the student body. The boys are looking forward to the day soon to come when they will attend mass and receive Our Lord with their fathers in the auditorium, after which they will all proceed to the annual communion breakfast at the Columbus Council of the Knights of Columbus.

This is the end of the editor's diary. A few weeks more and we shall be in the middle of final exams, the bane of the high school student! But after that comes the longed for night at the Academy of Music when we will receive the reward of four hard but happy years of study and play at Prep!

WE, the members of the staff of the 1935 Blue Book, assisted by the careful guidance and zealous cooperation of our moderators, have done our best and given our every effort to make the seniors of this year proud of their book. Indeed it has been a pleasure to publish it for you and the only reward which we desire is your approval of our "magnum opus".

THE SENIOR SODALITY

Prefect	JOSEPH GOELLER
1st Assistant	WILLIAM BOHNE
2nd Assistant	ANTHONY PARMEGGIANI
Secretary	NORBERT TREACY
Treasurer	WILLIAM GEOGHAN
Organist	JOSEPH BIER

THE task of recording the history and doings of the Senior Sodality during the past year is a pleasant one. For this year the Sodality seems to have come into its own if we are to judge by the more general and keener interest shown towards its activities by the students. The Senior Sodality is open only to Third and Fourth Years and every Tuesday morning has found the Faculty Chapel quite filled. Meetings have been regularly well attended. There were always willing hands to cooperate in the various works of the Sodality.

The Sodality at our school is proud to have published a few months ago "The Brooklyn Preparatory Sodalist", a one sheet bulletin very neatly mimeographed and well edited by Vincent Doyle, '36, which came to light on the feast of St. Joseph last March. We have been honored by a beautiful letter which we quote from Reverend Father Coleman Nevils, S.J., Rector of Georgetown University. "We were delighted to receive at Georgetown Vol. I, No. 1, of THE BROOKLYN PREPARATORY SODALIST and we wish to congratulate you upon so excellent a publication and we shall look forward to receiving future numbers which I trust will be just as inspiring."

Another sodality activity is the spiritual library located in Father Zema's office. Here there is a wealth of literature and teaching. It consists of a good supply of books on Catholic life and teachings, the history of religious orders, the discussion of special questions in religion and religious controversy and generally valuable material on matters that pertain to all of us as Catholics and as laymen. From this office also about twenty-five sodalists go out to various churches and settlement houses to teach catechism to boys of the public schools. These are only the most important of the activities of the Sodality. There are others, such as campaigns for the missions, the work of a Catholic Magazine Club and a group of about sixty students who spread Catholic literature; but we can only allude to them here. We wish to voice our hearty thanks to Father Gabriel A. Zema, S.J., our Moderator and Student Counsellor, for his unselfish and untiring efforts in our behalf.

Norbert Treacy.

TIME: 8:30 every Wednesday morning.

PLACE: Faculty Chapel.

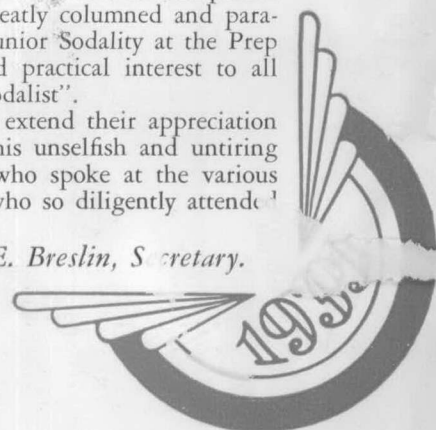

*A*T the word of our Prefect, John Maule, the meeting is opened with the reading of the Divine Office. This is the momentous occasion, the weekly meeting of the Junior Sodality of Our Blessed Lady. Here the Divine Office is read aloud by the entire Sodality. Then either our Moderator gives a short sermon or he invites one of the faculty to give us a sermon on some practical topic connected with a tender devotion towards the Blessed Virgin Mary. These short sermons are most interesting and they tend to stir up in all a better and a manly spirit of Catholic Action and to develop keener effort as students at the Prep. Sometimes in place of the weekly sermon the officers hold a meeting and discuss plans for improving the Sodality. Each meeting is closed by Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament and a hymn to Our Lady.

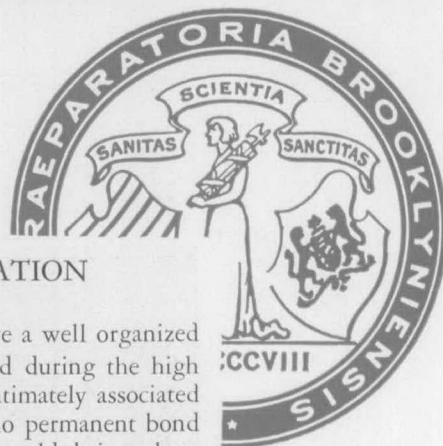

Any boy who wishes to become a devout servant of Our Lady is invited to attend the meetings. The requirements are that he be a good student, that he be an active member, and that he take part in one of the various activities of the Sodality. These activities are collecting stamps for the missions, spreading Catholic literature about the school, and teaching catechism in the various churches of Brooklyn. He must also have a regular attendance at the meetings.

On the feast of St. Joseph our Reverend Moderator gave us a grand surprise by presenting us each with a copy of a new Sodality bulletin of which we are indeed proud. It is a single mimeographed sheet done on blue paper very neatly columned and paragraphed. The contents deal with doings of the Senior and Junior Sodality at the Prep and there is a monthly main article on a topic of loyal and practical interest to all sodalists. The bulletin is called "The Brooklyn Preparatory Sodalist".

In concluding, the Junior Sodality as a whole desires to extend their appreciation to our Spiritual Advisor, Father Gabriel A. Zema, S.J., for his unselfish and untiring efforts in their behalf. Moreover, we wish to thank those who spoke at the various meetings and we might add a word of thanks to the officers who so diligently attend to their assigned duties.

Joseph E. Breslin, Secretary.

BROOKLYN PREPARATORY ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

FOR years Brooklyn Prep has dreamed of the day when it would have a well organized alumni society. It seemed a shame that the friendships cultivated during the high school days should be allowed to cool,—that men who had been so intimately associated for years should go forth from the portals of their Alma Mater with no permanent bond uniting their common interests. The need for a society, which would bring them together at regular intervals to talk over old times, and make plans for the future, was evident. Several attempts were made to form such an organization but all met with little success. The passing years seemed to sweep Prep's Alumni further and further apart.

And so it is that March 14, 1934, may be considered a momentous date in the history of Brooklyn Prep. For it was then that the first meeting of what is now a flourishing society was held. A permanent constitution was gradually worked out. The officers were elected three or four meetings later. Ability cannot remain long hidden, and the members quickly discovered that Mr. Embre C. Rogers of the class of 1911 would be the ideal executive. After the votes had been carefully counted, the three men chosen to fill the position of Vice-Presidents were found to be Mr. John Middlemiss, Mr. James Tully, and Dr. H. G. McNamara. Mr. Frank Crane was elected Recording Secretary, and Mr. Frank Carroll, Financial Secretary. The Alumni members demonstrated their shrewd business instincts when they selected the Reverend Myron Purick as guardian of the society's cash box.

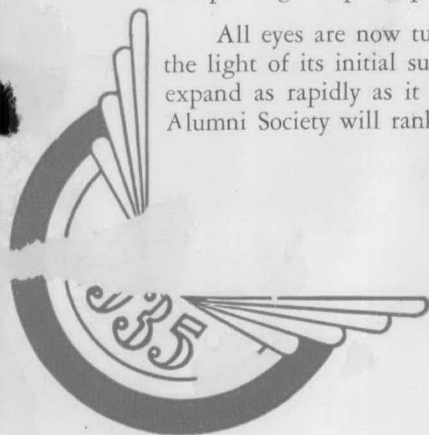

With such an able body of men at the controls, it was not long before the organization swung into full activity. Elaborate plans were laid for what turned out to be the outstanding social event in the history of Prep. Around the first of February, 1935, alumni men who had not as yet attended the meetings were astonished when they received personal invitations to attend a dance sponsored by the Brooklyn Prep Alumni Society to be held on February 15, at the Waldorf Astoria. The unprecedented support with which this venture met can only be regarded as an indication of the increasing popularity of this society and of its activities.

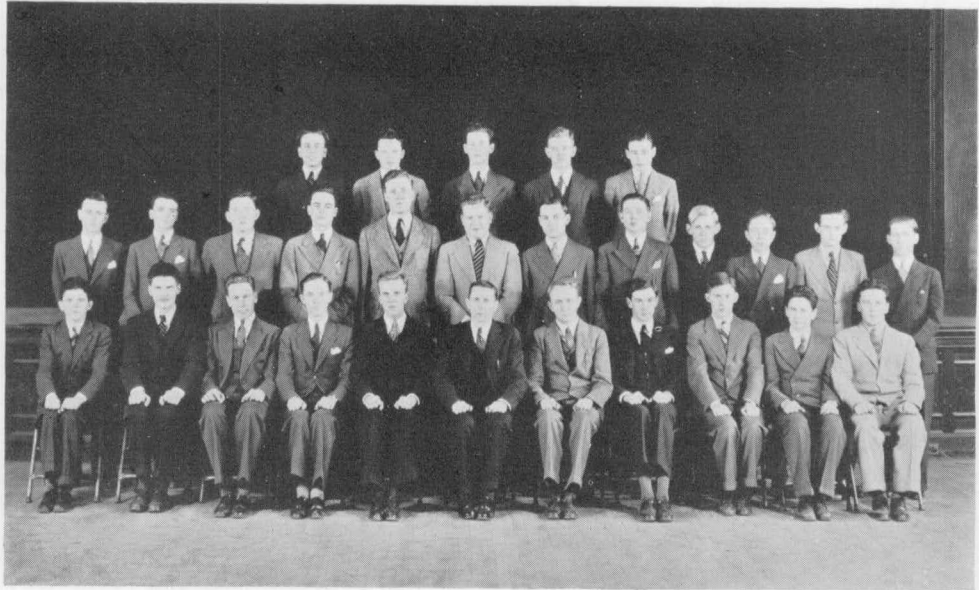

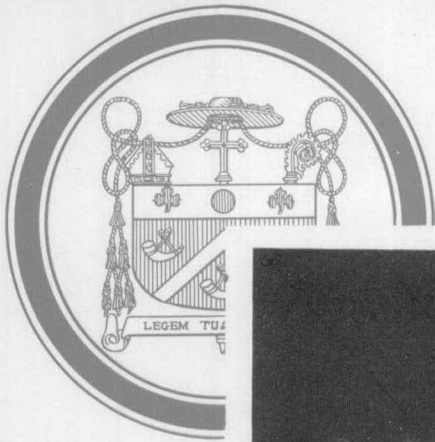

The great success of this dance indicates the tremendous possibilities of the Alumni Society. It serves as an example of the many novel and constructive ideas that are bound to proceed from such a gathering of men.

The ever-increasing number that attend the monthly meetings can only be explained by examining the two basic causes behind the appealing nature of the society. In the first place everybody likes a good time. And a good time becomes a best time when it is shared with old friends and classmates. This is the principal end of the Alumni Society. Secondly, every man cherishes fond memories of his old Alma Mater. Thus he deems it a privilege to participate in an activity that furthers the welfare of the school.

All eyes are now turned with interest toward this newly founded organization. In the light of its initial success, the future looks very rosy indeed. Should it continue to expand as rapidly as it has during the past year, the time is not far distant when the Alumni Society will rank as the foremost organization connected with Brooklyn Prep.

THE SENIOR DEBATING SOCIETY

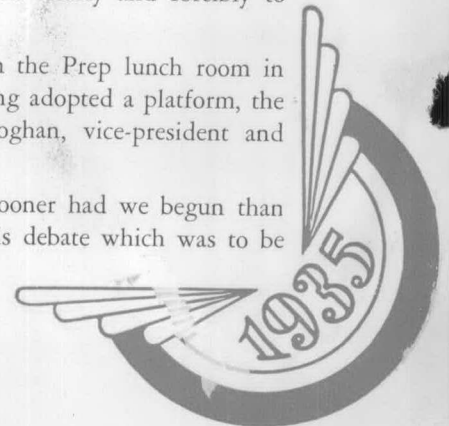

SENIOR DEBATING

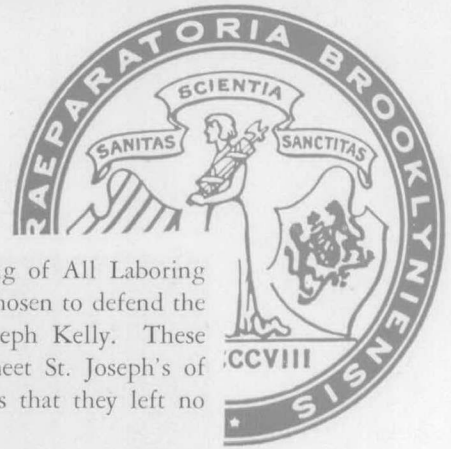

*A*S the school year of 1935 draws to an end, the Senior Debating Society of Brooklyn Prep closes one of its most successful seasons. Such an organization is not to be judged by its numbers but by the quality of its constituents. It is with this in mind that we point with pride to the zeal and enthusiasm of the members and the ability of its Varsity Team.

At the first meeting of the year the office of president was taken over by John Britt. Joseph Kelly became vice-president and Thomas Cullen assumed the role of secretary. The members lost no time plunging into the intricacies of "Lotteries Held by Municipal Government", and "State Aid for the Parochial Schools". The forcefulness and logic of the debators was amazing and gave promise of fine results for the Varsity Team. Such promises were more than fulfilled when the representatives of our society met and conquered a strong team from St. Peter's Prep of Jersey City. The affirmative side of the question, "Resolved: That a Thirty Hour Week in All Basic Industries Would Be Socially and Economically Advantageous", was ably upheld by the Prep team consisting of John Britt, Joseph Kelly and Richard Bennett who argued clearly and forcibly to gain a well earned favourable decision.

At the close of the first semester a banquet was held in the Prep lunch room in imitation of the present day political party conventions. Having adopted a platform, the "party" elected Joseph Kelly to be president, William Geoghan, vice-president and Harold Graves to be secretary.

The weekly meetings were resumed in earnest and no sooner had we begun than a second public debate was announced. The question for this debate which was to be held on March third was "Resolved: That a Labor Party Consisting of All Laboring Classes Should Be Organized in the United States". The Prep team chosen to defend the negative side consisted of Harold Graves, Thomas Hogan and Joseph Kelly. These representatives of Brooklyn Prep journeyed across the Hudson to meet St. Joseph's of West New York and so forceful and persuasive were their speeches that they left no doubt in the minds of the judges as to their superior ability.

With the scalps of two opposing teams in their belts the team engaged the brave Freshman Team of Fordham, all of whom were Prep alumni. Our team, consisting of Harold Graves, Thomas Cullen and Thomas Hogan, arguing upon the same topic as in their previous public effort, found the proofs and oratory of the Fordham men too strong. The sting of defeat was soothed by the fact that our victorious opponents were William Mattison, Joseph Stuckart and Francis McKeon, all of the class of '34.

Needless to say, it is impossible for a debating society to accomplish anything without the guidance and inspiration of an able and active moderator. In Mr. James J. Walsh the organization has found a competent teacher and an able coach in the forensic art. Possessing a thorough knowledge of argumentation and good delivery and a knack of imparting it to others Mr. Walsh has analyzed the weekly debates successfully and handled the Varsity Team so that a very creditable season's work has resulted.

The purpose of the debating society in the Jesuit plan of studies is to enable their students to develop their intellectual powers of analysis and expression, in a word to help each one of them to become an "Orator" in the sense that Cicero uses the term, that is, a man who by careful thinking, wide reading and constant attention to eloquent expression of his thoughts is able to stand before the whole world, confident that he is able to announce the Truth and persuade men to follow her dictates, cost what they may. This is what we have tried to accomplish and we believe that some small measure of success has been ours.

Thomas L. Cullen.

THE BELLARMINE DEBATING SOCIETY

THE Greeks had a word for it! They also combined their tribunals into a court containing over three hundred members. The Bellarmine Debating Society have imitated them, and the resulting organization is made up of the old Freshmen and Sophomore Debating Societies.

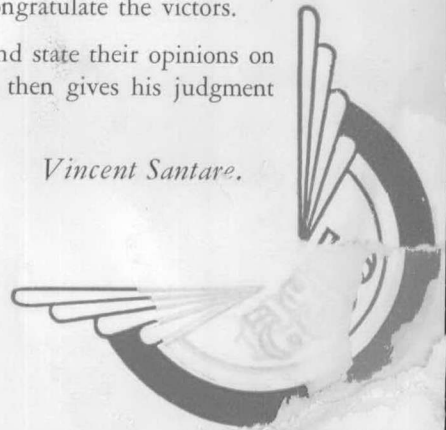

The meetings are opened with a prayer. Then the sophomore and freshmen orators are called to order by a rap from the gavel of our president, Vin Santare. The subject is read aloud and the first speaker is introduced. Then the fun begins!

The trained and experienced sophomores carefully state and expound their arguments in their opening speeches, while the more excited first year men hurriedly rise, and, having delivered their talks, quickly resume their seats.

The rebuttal is an entirely different affair and both sides arise in order to denounce haughtily their rivals' arguments. In the attempt to persuade the judges, who up till now have been sitting patiently weighing the arguments of each side, much real oratory is heard. At length the debate is ended and the members of the society examine the evidence. Then the verdict is rendered and the vanquished congratulate the victors.

The judges, who are the audience, now rise when called and state their opinions on the subject. The new moderator, Mr. Paul F. X. Yates, S.J., then gives his judgment of the speakers. With this the meeting ends.

Vincent Santare.

THE GERMAN CLUB

Vice-PresidentWILLIAM CALLAHAN
SecretaryCHARLES SCHROEPPEL

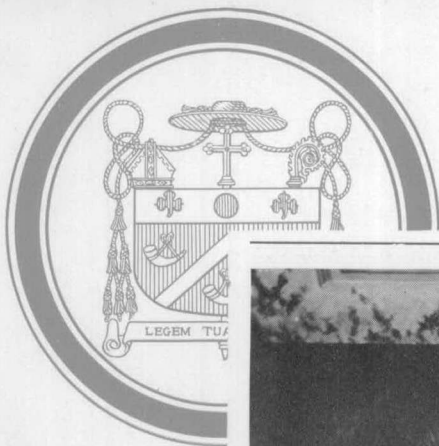

DURING the past year, the German Club, "Der Deutsche Verein," as it is now familiarly called by its members, really gained its rightful position among the other Intra-Mural activities in the Prep. The lions share of credit for establishing the German Club belongs to Mr. Anthony Fitzgerald, the hardworking moderator of the Club.

Two years ago, Mr. Fitzgerald made arrangements to have a room set aside for German classes and activities exclusively. This room was the scene of many interesting one act plays in German, arranged by Joseph Zoller and Robert Carucci; short talks on German topics and famous German people were given and the room was decorated in German style by Mr. Fitzgerald. Besides these activities, the Club made trips into the New York German district and visited moving picture theatres and hofbraus therein.

In the future, the members of the German Club plan to correspond with foreign students, enact annually an elaborate German play and to invite people, versed in German affairs, to speak at the meetings. This program, since it is such an ambitious one, shows the fine spirit which is typical of the members of this organization.

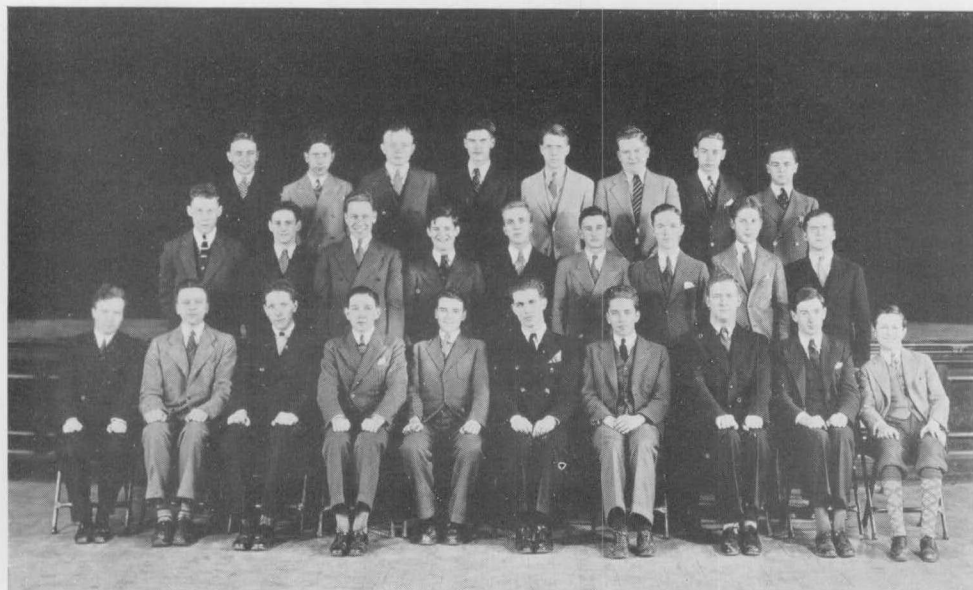

To one and all of the German students, this club provides the means of making their study of German practical and a real instrument of culture.

THE CAST OF BUDDIES

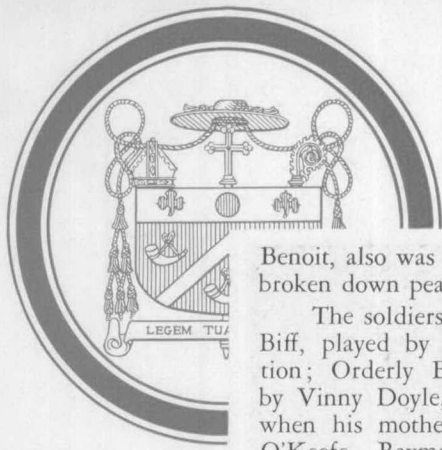

THE PREP PLAYERS

AS the thousand lights of the immense chandelier in the Academy of Music dimmed over the heads of a capacity audience, a trumpet blast, loud and clear, echoed and reechoed amid the old walls. The Reveille! The call to arms and order, the awakening! Brooklyn Prep was presenting her annual play. This year it was "Buddies", written by George V. Hobart. It was on that night of November 26, 1934, that once again the Prep Players united with the Glee Club to give a flawless presentation of the intriguing war story. Another success was added to her already lengthy list.

The war story was interesting as well as comical and entertaining. George Leonard as Babe, the bashful, retiring boy, fell deeply in love with the little French maid Julie Benoit, but his bashfulness prevents him from expressing his love. Sonny, played by Gerald Hogan, attempts to cure Babe of his bashfulness with a mixup ensuing when Babe thinks that Sonny loves Julie and when Lousie Maitland, a home girl, appears on the scene and complicates things all the more it looks as if the story were becoming too complicated but nevertheless it unravels leaving Babe married to Julie and Sonny to Louise. George Leonard gave an excellent interpretation of his role, playing the bashful boy to perfection. Julie was played by Phil McFarland, who once again scored a triumph in his interpretation of the feminine lead. Gerry proved he was still a fine actor for he turned a comparatively minor role into a major part by his excellent work. Upon these three rested the burden of the plot and they carried it most successfully.

In the midst of the tangled love affairs, Jerry Dalton, playing Alphonse Pettibois, "a very cosmopolitan man", appeared upon the stage and as the villain tries to force Julie to marry himself, threatening disgrace to her family if she refuses. He claims that her brother is a thief and that he will expose him. Tearfully Madame Benoit entreats him to be merciful and says she will repay the money. However, his hoax is discovered later on and he enjoys a "dip in the lake". Jerry as the villain created quite a sensation for each time he appeared a low murmur of disapproval echoed from the audience and is undoing a storm of applause swept over the audience. Thomas Cullen, as Madame Benoit, also was the recipient of bursts of applause for his excellent portrayal of the old broken down peasant woman.

The soldiers of the play who added so much to the plot were as follows: Sergeant Biff, played by Harold Graves, whose memory for faces was the key to the solution; Orderly Brown, played by Hugh Duffy; Buddy, the Brooklyn boy, played by Vinny Doyle, Brandon Fullam as Rube, who gave the play its sentimental touch when his mother died before he could reach her; and Johnny, played by Gregory O'Keefe. Raymond Fullam, playing the gesticulating and articulating Jewish Abie, kept the audience in constant fits of laughter as he narrated his troubles. Abie was very well played and he literally "stole the show".

Richard Moses, as Louise Maitland, was one of the complicating forces in the plot, while Pat Woods and Robert Garside, who played Eugene and Henri Benoit respectively, gave a French atmosphere to the presentation.

The Glee Club who acted as soldiers not only scored in their singing numbers but also acted well. As an informal background to most of the scenes they gave the scenes reality and life-like appearance. Added to this, however, was their military drill worked to perfection without slip or delay and which caused the audience to clap most heartily. French peasants who followed the soldiers were portrayed by the smaller members of the Glee Club.

Thus concluded the numbers in our cast and the story of the play, and when darkness had fallen upon the last scene and the lengthy tones of the Taps sounded again in the ancient hall, the audience arose and applauded for several minutes the fine work done.

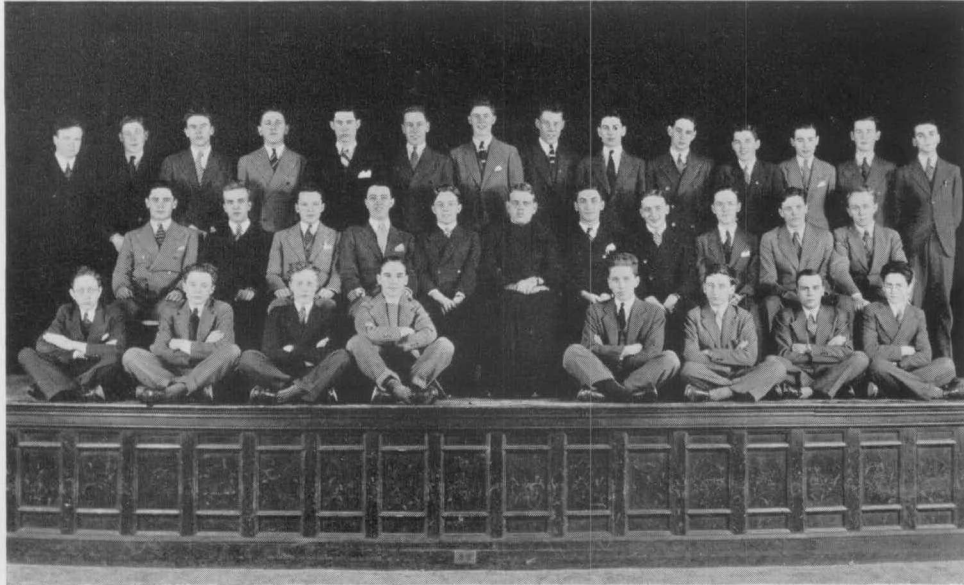

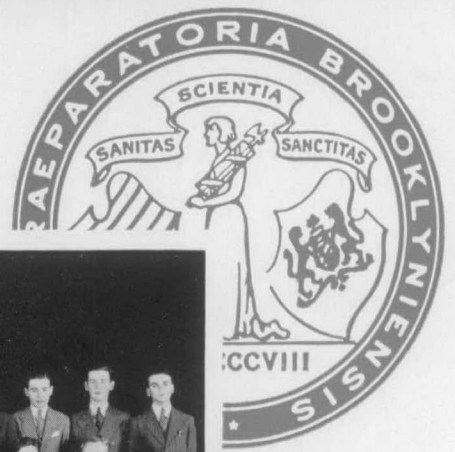

Applause, comments, loud exclamations of approval were voiced and with these comments came the inquiry, "Who coached them?" Stuart Fox, noted actor and director, scored a notable triumph for he directed "Buddies". For years in the past he has directed the Prep plays and this was another one of his triumphs. His task was tremendous. Not only did he work with an immense cast which is difficult in itself but he completed all the rehearsals and produced the play in exactly three weeks. There was a fine presentation in three weeks' time. To him much praise and applause is due.

Also there is due praise to Mr. Joslyn, director of the Glee Club, who clearly was pleased at the great triumph of his organization. His labor was fully rewarded by their success.

To Mr. Philip A. Carey, S.J., Business Director, must go praise for he brought about the financial success of the play. Also to his helpful assistants, Jack Quinn and Donald Robinson, and to Joe Bier, pianist, who gave much of his time to make "Buddies" a musical success.

THE OFFICERS

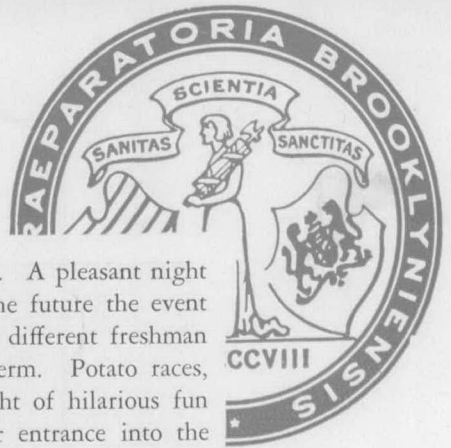

THE STUDENT COUNCIL

THE Student Council of Brooklyn Prep can boast of a tradition of only a few years. It presents no long line of presidents. We are proud, however, to say that in this, the sixth year of its existence, it accomplished more, not only through the efforts of its officers but by the whole-hearted cooperation of the student body, toward its end of increasing extra-curricular activity than ever before.

Under the direction of its new Moderator, Father Edward Kenna, S.J., who succeeded Mr. James J. Walsh, the fields of endeavor of the Council were vastly extended. Control of all extra-curricular activities, except varsity sports, the distribution of many awards and charge of much of the school's athletic equipment, were placed in the hands of the body. It became the duty of the Council to sponsor and to arouse interest in each and every event, athletic or social, that took place at the Prep. With such new duties interest in the Council increased accordingly and the organization gradually assumed more and more importance in the eyes of every student.

During the fall term the office of President was capably filled by Jack Britt. Joe Bier and Vinnie McNally performed the duties of Vice-President and Secretary respectively. At the January elections, according to the change in the Constitution made by the Council of the previous term, it was necessary to elect a President. Before the retiring Vice-President became President automatically. Joe Bier was President, John Courtney became Vice-President and Norbert Treacy assumed responsibilities of Secretary. Both administrations did their work nobly and the result equally crowned with success.

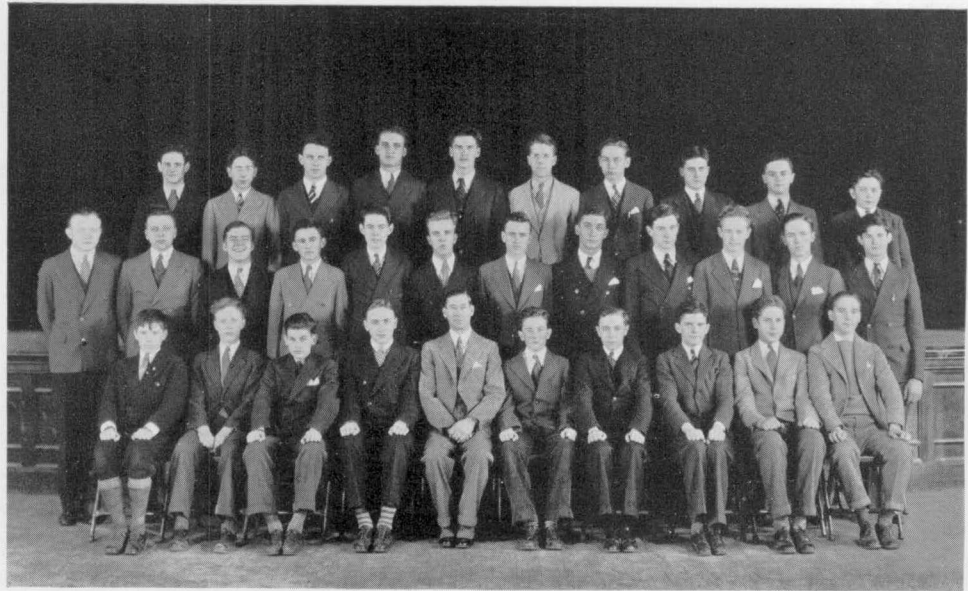

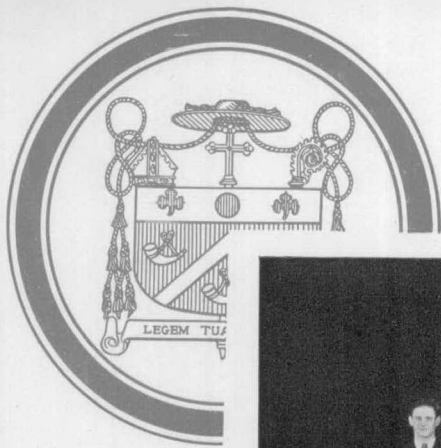

farewell social to the departing Seniors was introduced in the Council. A pleasant night of entertainment and organized games was enjoyed by all and in the future the event will be a regular affair at the close of every semester. A new and different freshman Social was sponsored by the Council at the outset of the Spring term. Potato races, three-legged races, one-armed boxing and ping-pong featured a night of hilarious fun and served as a means to better acquaint the freshmen upon their entrance into the Prep. Sponsors were also appointed for the various basketball games and dances throughout the year and the success of these events was at least in part due to their efforts.

Early in the year the old athletic office was changed and became the "Dugout" under the charge of Student Council members. All athletic equipment was handled there and repairs on all materials were made by this group. The captain of the crew was Joe Dunne, who deserves much credit for his able supervision of all the work. To these worthy members of the "Dugout" and to all who, in the opinion of the Office and of the Council, have distinguished themselves by their loyalty, a new award, a beautiful gold Student Council charm, was made.

Many thanks are in order to Father Kenna for his untiring efforts and timely advice in the interests of the Council, which contributed so much to its success. We would also like to take this opportunity to thank Father Klocke and Father Coffey for their whole-hearted encouragement and support of all the ideas suggested by the Council. We are confident that with such a generous Faculty the future Councils will be crowned with more success than ever before.

Joseph A. Bier.

THE GLEE CLUB

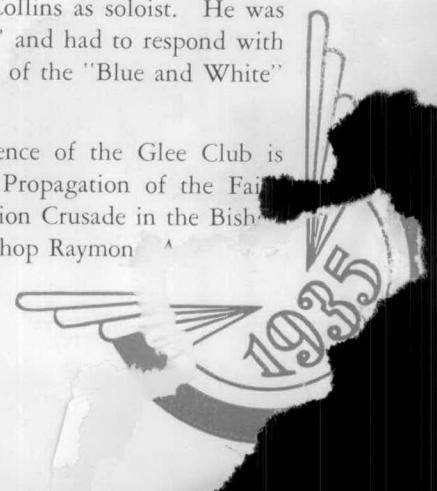

THE MUSICAL CLUBS

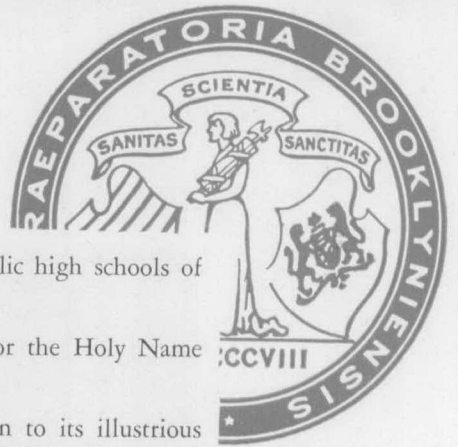

*W*ITH so many extra-curricular activities at the Prep, particularly those of an athletic nature which lure the student out-of-doors to exercise and play, it is extremely gratifying to note that many of our boys have an inherent love for the cultural and beautiful which is expressed through the medium of music.

The Prep Glee Club, while somewhat smaller in numbers than in previous years, nevertheless has kept its standard at a very high degree. This was proven at its first appearance of the year, when as singing-actors, in conjunction with the Prep Players, in the musical play "Buddies" at the Academy of Music, the members covered themselves with glory. The rollicking soldier songs interspersed with the sentimental ballads and solos by John Britt and John Collins were received with keen delight by the large audience, and would have reflected credit on many an older organization.

The Christmas entertainment was the scene of our next appearance. The orchestra opened the program with a medley of Christmas melodies, which was followed by a group of appropriate selections by the Glee Club with John Collins as soloist. He was greeted with an ovation after his rendition of "Gesu Bambino" and had to respond with an encore. The entertainment closed with the spirited singing of the "Blue and White" by the entire student body.

That others outside the school are aware of the excellence of the Glee Club is evidenced by the request from the diocesan director of the Propagation of the Faith Society to have them sing a group of songs at the annual Mission Crusade in the Bishop Loughlin High School auditorium at which His Excellency Bishop Raymon presided. An audience of several thousand students from the Catholic high schools of Brooklyn applauded them vociferously.

On the heels of this followed an appearance at Loyola Hall for the Holy Name Society's concert.

Then came the night when the Prep tendered its own reception to its illustrious alumnus, His Excellency Bishop Kearney, at which the Glee Club and Orchestra were featured, supplying the entire musical program for the occasion. The Bishop was delighted with our efforts and likewise the large audience.

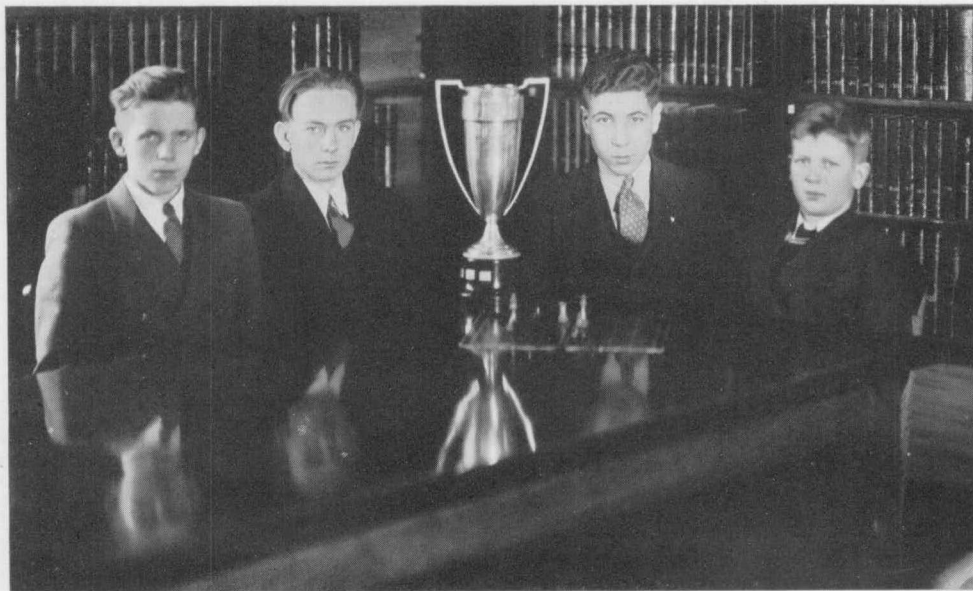

The Fathers and Sons Communion Breakfast and Mass is another engagement or a two-in-one. The Club will sing several motets during the mass and later will present some selections as part of the entertainment at the breakfast in the Columbus Club.

Truly an eventful and successful year of artistic achievement. Much of the credit must naturally go to our tireless director, Mr. Frederic Joslyn. We must not forget, however, the splendid cooperation of the individual members and the encouragement of our moderators, Mr. Philip V. Sullivan, S.J., who because of his Blue Book duties was succeeded by Mr. Charles A. Matthews, S.J., and last but by no means least, our faithful accompanist, Joseph Bier.

Frederic Joslyn, Jr.

THE ORCHESTRA

THE CHESS TEAM

THIS year the chess team suffered two severe losses. Our moderator, Father Francis J. Reilly, S.J., whose untiring efforts have brought the Blue and White banner to the championship of the Private School league in 1931 and 1933, was transferred to another school. John Kelly, our only veteran, graduated leaving a team consisting of William Steele, the captain, Michael Hume, Thomas Allen and Ralph Gerra.

Mr. Raymond E. Gibson, S.J., succeeded Father Reilly as moderator. He has made a sincere effort to increase interest in the "royal game" at Prep. At the beginning of the year a tournament was held to determine who would compose the team. Steele was awarded a medal for the highest score in the tournament. Another innovation was the "chess ladder".

Since our team was composed of tyros the season was not very successful. We lost to Trinity, McBurney and Regis and drew with Franklin. However, we can look forward to the future with optimism. While many players graduate this year from the chess teams of other schools, our team will remain intact and can utilize the experience it has gained this year to restore the "Mohr-De Goyler" trophy to the Prep.

THE LIBRARY

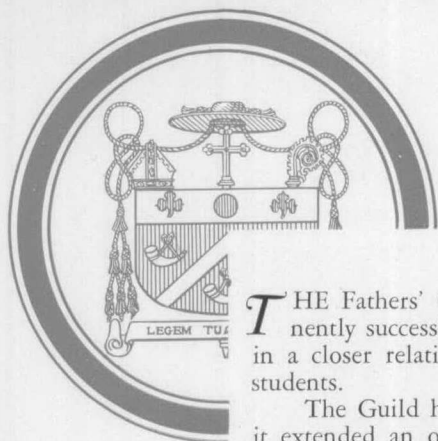

NO better example of Prep progress can be found than in the Prep Library! In every quest for study, research or entertainment the Library—ever developing, pleasant to view and comfortable to use, is always found most helpful. The large supply of periodicals and fiction brings many enjoyable moments for relaxation, while the collection of reference books and non-fiction provides a very serviceable refuge for the serious research student. The Library, with its six thousand volumes, sixteen tables and one hundred and forty chairs, has been redecorated recently and affords bright and cheerful surroundings for tranquil reading.

Due to the unceasing efforts of Doctor William A. Fitz Gerald, the Library continues to grow with the addition of the most popular and most useful works in biography, history, literature, science and a wide variety of the most entertaining novels. Likewise a splendid assortment of volumes on religious topics has been added. Through the incessant work of the former and present librarians a catalogue has been set up for the convenience of every student seeking a desired volume.

Our Rev. Head Master, Father Klocke, S.J., has supplied the library with an appealing display of Austrian and German postcards, the most beautiful of which dealt with the Passion Play of Oberammergau, and Mr. Thomas V. Reiners has continued to lend fully arranged displays from his collection of European cards.

The librarians assisting in the excellent work of Doctor Fitz Gerald are: Joseph Catalano, head student librarian; Francis Blehl, Robert Carruci, George Grady, John Noble, John O'Farrell, Louis Peterson and John Zengel.

Joseph Catalano.

THE FATHERS' GUILD

THE Fathers' Guild, one of the Prep's most outstanding organizations, had an eminently successful year. The object of the Guild is to bring fathers and sons together in a closer relationship and to promote cooperation among the parents, teachers and students.

The Guild held its first meeting of the year on November twelfth, at which time it extended an official welcome to the new Head Master, Rev. John H. Klocke, S.J. Later in the term Mr. Stuart Fox, dramatic coach at the Prep, gave a highly entertaining talk to the fathers. At another meeting, Mr. Joseph Bier, Sr., delivered an interesting lecture on the inside workings of radio.

Approximately one thousand persons attended the Annual Card Party on February eighth. We attribute the great success of this event partly to the reputation of this yearly affair, partly to the excellent music supplied by Bob Fallon's orchestra, but chiefly to the splendid work of Mr. John Robinson and his hard working committee.

Father Alfred Rudtke, S.J., of the class of 1914, delivered an entertaining lecture to the Guild. His subject was Austria and the talk was illustrated with slides and motion pictures.

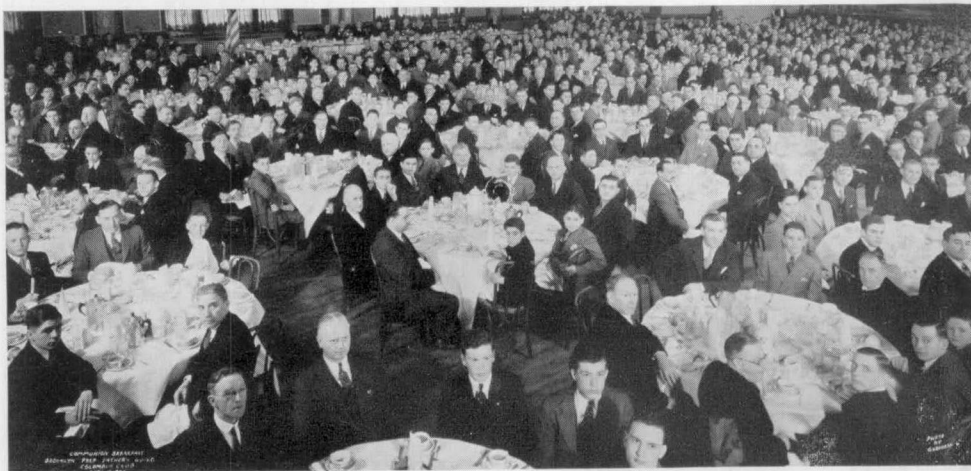

On the fourth of March, after the nominating committee had presented the names to the members of the Guild, the following fathers were unanimously elected to be officers during the ensuing year: Mr. Francis Fullam, President; Mr. Vincent Fiore, Vice-President; Mr. James Fitz Maurice, Treasurer and Mr. Lloyd Noble, Secretary.

At the same meeting Father Edward Cunningham, S.J., the famous Alaskan missionary, gave an inspiring talk on his experiences in the far north. His lecture was well illustrated with motion pictures.

The Guild gave its whole hearted support to the "Loyalty Campaign" and the Packard car was awarded at the Annual Communion Breakfast.

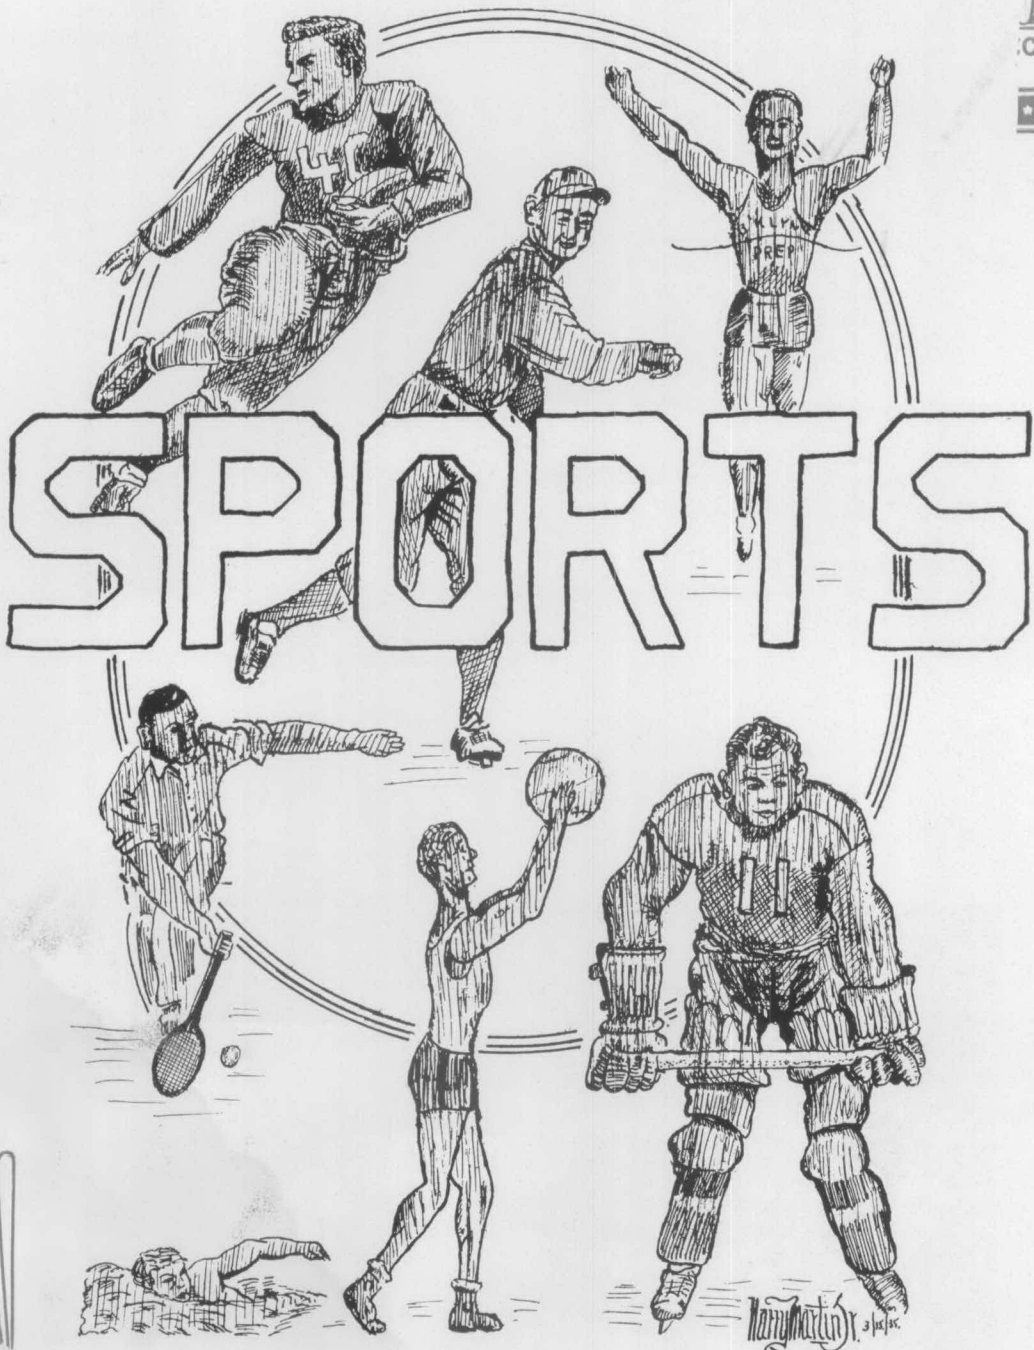

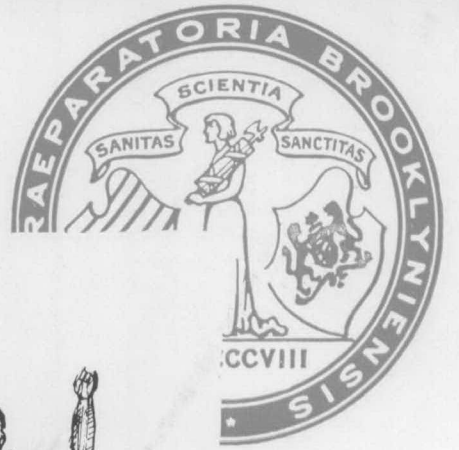

As we go to press the committee in charge of the arrangements for the crowning event of the year, the Fathers and Sons Communion Breakfast, assured us that a record number attended. The mass was celebrated by Reverend Father Klocke, S.J., at nine o'clock in the auditorium after which all proceeded to the breakfast at the Columbus Club. The Glee Club, under the direction of Mr. Frederic Joslyn, rendered selections at the mass, while the Reverend George D. Bull, S.J., the Honorable William F. X. Geoghan and Reverend Father Rector spoke at the breakfast.

THE FATHER AND SON COMMUNION BREAKFAST

FOOTBALL

FORCED to carry on this year without the capable services of Don LaVine, Charley Masterson, Hank Melvin, Joe McManus, Jack Whalen, Charley Luzon, Danny Hicks, Terry McPartlan, Ed McGinty, Ed McCoy, Joe Stuckart, Bill Stamm, Tom Wynne and Nick Lombardi, the team worked harder in the beginning of the training period to achieve that valuable help to victory, teamwork.

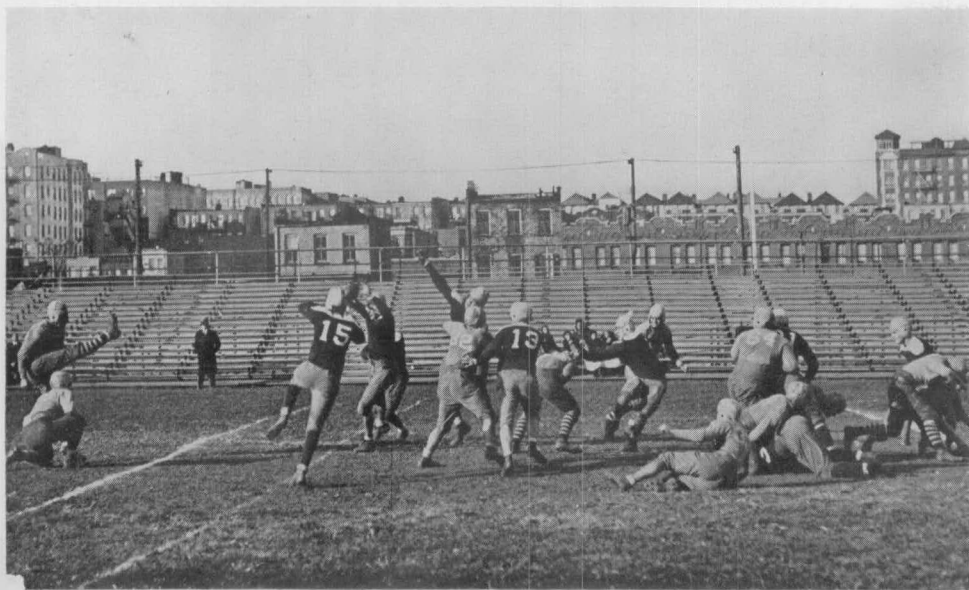

The starting lineup for the initial contest consisted of Dick Fennelly and Jack Shapiro at ends, Captain Ray Lawlor and Gerry Biggins at the tackles, Bill Sclafani and Bill Gestal stationed at guard while George O'Neill handled the pivot position. Si Titus played quarterback, the halfback posts were filled by Hilly Renz and Jim Regan with George Miles calling the plays from the fullback position.

The Brooklyn Prep gridiron team opened its 1934 season with a 7-0 victory over Xavier High School of Manhattan. The contest, played on a field six inches deep in mud, was under the control of the Prepsters throughout. The Blue and White, threatening continually, finally crossed the faintly discernible goal line on an off tackle play by Hilly Renz, who added the extra point on a line plunge.

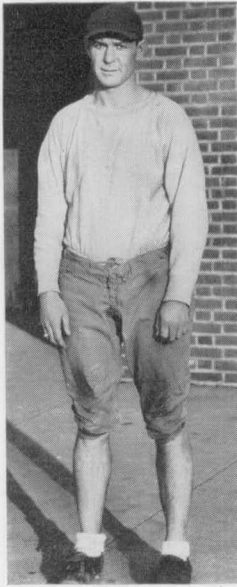

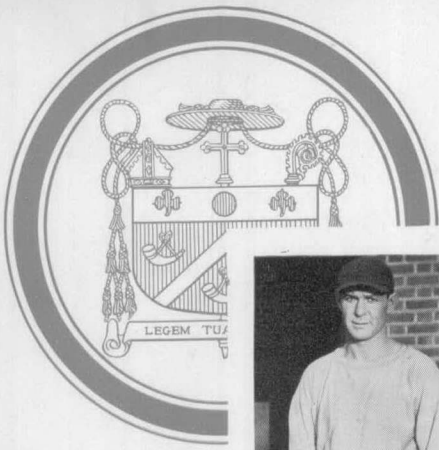

The following week the Prep aggregation continued its winning ways by taking the Fordham Prep stalwarts into camp by the score of 6-0. After three scoreless periods the Prep tallied its lone touchdown on a 15 yard pass from Si Titus to Jim Regan. A line smash for the extra point was stopped by the Maroon defense.

In its next game the Prep squad was halted in its try for its third straight victory in a nip and tuck battle, by All Hallows, 6-0. In the third session, Charlie Moutenot, All Hallows' substitute, galloped 30 yards off tackle to provide the margin of victory.

The next week the Blue and White flashed the most powerful offensive of the year. With the fleet Hilly Renz gaining more than 150 yards from scrimmage the Prepsters came back and avenged the All Hallows defeat by dealing out to St. Paul's a 27-6 whipping. Renz, running wild on a wet field, scored 26 of the Prep points. Tom Miles, diminutive quarterback, tallied the other point on a line plunge for the conversion. The lone St. Paul's score came as the result of a forward pass which was batted down by the Prep secondaries but fell into the waiting arms of Ed Thornley, St. Paul's wingman, who scampered over the line for a score.

ACTION IN THE POLY GAME

COACH SHANAHAN

In the annual battle between Poly and Brooklyn Prep the Crown Heights team was again denied a victory. A well drilled Poly team, capitalizing on every break that came its way, swamped a fighting, aggressive Prep team 28-0.

Gaining momentum after being outplayed in the first quarter the Blue and Gray, led by Roth and O'Connell, displayed superior teamwork to down the gallant Prepsters.

Traveling to Jersey City on a cold, blustery Armistice Day to renew hostilities with St. Peter's Prep after an eight year lapse, the Prep gridders returned to Brooklyn the victims of an 9-0 defeat.

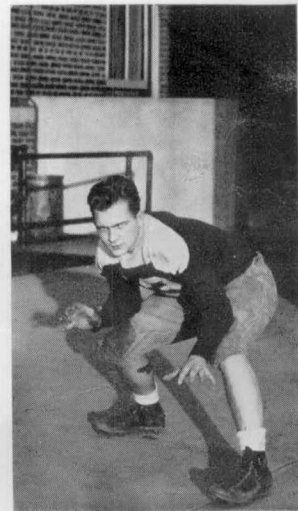

St. Peter's carried too many guns in the form of forward passes which made the prep retreat twice. Once to the twenty yard line in the first period whence Jamin, St. Peter's back, lifted a perfect placement between the uprights for a field; and once again in the fourth quarter when Chet Urynowicz took a flat pass on the Jerseyites' 35 yard line and sprinted his way to a touchdown.

Came Thanksgiving and with it the annual Turkey Day trussle with St. John's. This year, however, our traditional rivals enjoyed the feast to the fullest extent. Taking advantage of every break St. John's scored two touchdowns, converted a point after and scored a safety.

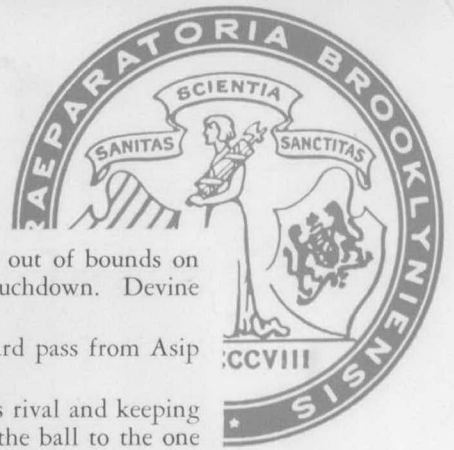

In the first period with the ball on the twenty-one yard line, Joe Devine, Indian tackle, crashed through and raced Renz across the goal line for the possession of the ball which eluded the Prep back on a bad pass from center. Renz reached the ball first but was unable to advance the ball before being nailed by Devine for a safety. The second score came in the same period when Joe Farrell,

"HILLY" RENZ

CAPT. LAV OR

St. John's center, broke through and blocked a punt, the ball rolling out of bounds on the five yard stripe. From this point Keegan dashed off tackle for a touchdown. Devine kicked the placement.

In the second quarter the final tally came as the result of a 15 yard pass from Asip to McDonald.

Brooklyn Prep came back strong in the second half, outplaying its rival and keeping the ball in St. John's territory. Twice the Blue and White advanced the ball to the one yard line and twice was repulsed lacking the necessary punch to put the ball across.

One of the most prominent features of the St. John's game was the splendid punting of the Prep right tackle Gerry Biggins. Untried until the last half of the final game he displayed great ability in getting off his kicks high, fast and far.

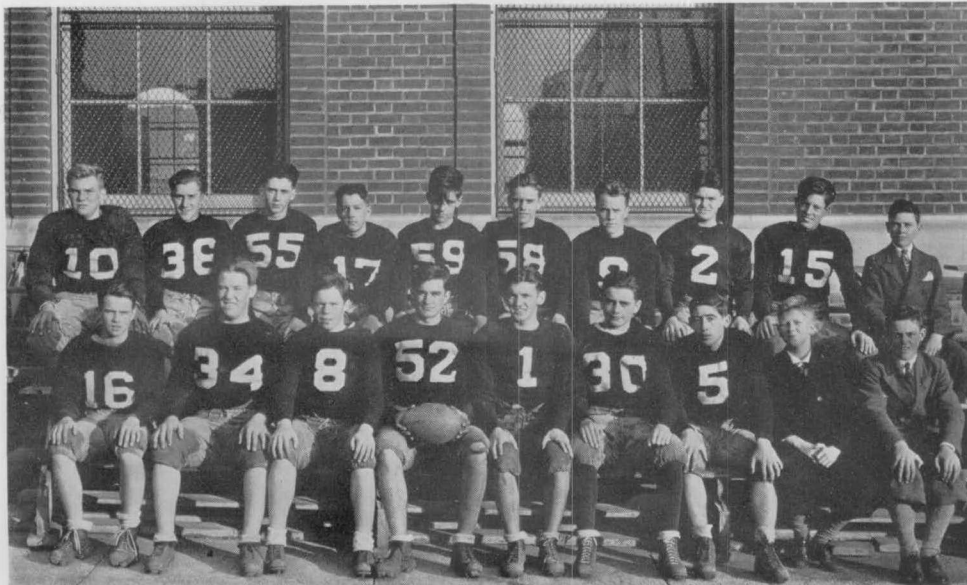

As the game ended so finished the football days at Brooklyn Prep of Captain Ray Lawlor, Dick Fennelly, George Geary, George O'Neill, Ed Kelly, Gerry Biggins, Hilly Renz, Bill Gestal, Jim Tonery, Bill Sclafani, Paul Kearney, Bob Farrington, Ed Riley, Bud Clark, Matt Shannon and Jack Butler.

All the members of the team played fine football all season and deserve a great deal of credit and praise. Those who stood out more prominently were: Hilly Renz, the sparkplug of the team and All-Scholastic choice; Jim Regan, splendid blocking back who cleared the way for Renz; Captain Ray Lawlor, left tackle, continuing his fine work of last season and Ed Kelly and George Geary starred for the Prep with their fine play at the guard positions.

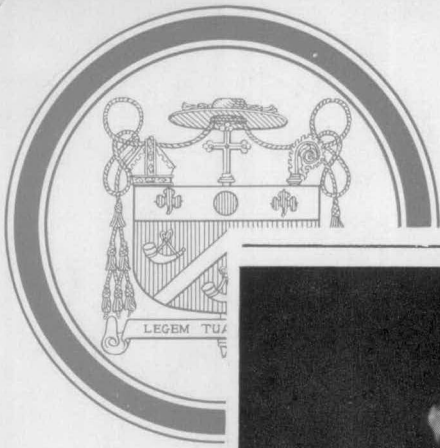

Although handicapped by a lack of material at the outset of the season, Coach Hymie Shanahan put out a good team, fighters all. Although the results of the season were not startling nevertheless the Prep had a team that it can be proud of.

BASKETBALL

THE school may consider the season of 1934-35 most successful for one reason, and that reason is because this year's team was able to trounce soundly Poly Prep, its traditional rival. The team was considerably weakened by the loss of four varsity men through graduation and by the unexpected illness of Leo Logan, star varsity forward. To choose one player as the most outstanding of the season would be impossible. Captain Jerry Biggins played his usual steady game as varsity center (incidentally for his third consecutive year). Joe Kennedy, John Riches and Jerry Malony pulled many a game from the fire by their cleverly planned plays. George O'Neill starred on the defense, while Frank Messina, diminutive forward, led the team in scoring. After graduation, Scheid, Hartz, Redmond and Shapiro donned varsity uniforms. These four plus Maloney, Robinson, Messina and Stone formed the varsity combination.

Late in the season, on February the twenty-seventh, Brooklyn Prep met Poly Prep on the latter's court. Two field goals apiece by Scheid and Robinson, with Maloney tossing in a foul, gave the Prep team a 9-0 lead as the first period ended. From that time on as often as Poly made a basket Prep also made one. Consequently, when the game ended, after a determined Poly rally had been put down by the defensive work of Messina and Redmond, the nine points scored in the first quarter proved to be our margin of victory.

Although we have not mentioned John Hartz, Frank Stone and John Shapiro in connection with the Poly game, it must be said that they played fine basketball in varsity competition. Those who will again represent Prep on the court are Redmond, Scheid, Hartz, Maloney, Stone, Shapiro and, we sincerely hope, Leo Logan.

BASEBALL

AS we go to press Coach Henry J. Shanahan has dropped his basketball activities and is trying to build a championship baseball team. The situation looks promising in spite of the fact that we lost a few veterans by graduation.

George Miles has been chosen to fill the position of captain and play behind the plate. However, the selection is only tentative as Bill Schwitter is making a strong bid for his place and is showing that he can catch the fastest offerings of John and Ray Smith who are taking care of the pitching end of the game. The reserve pitchers will most probably be Ed Kelly, Jack Hartz, Cliff Randolph and Pete Viscardi.

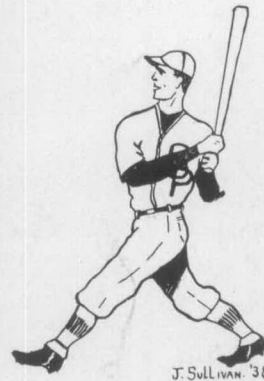

In the infield the first bag will be covered by Bill Deegan. The second by Mal McGarry, third by Tommy Miles, while Frank Stone will be our short-stop. Jim Senese will act as reserve infielder.

The outfield positions will be filled by capable players. John Quinn will be in, Jasper Kennedy will probably play center while Frank Brickfield and Hilly Renz are fighting a great battle for the right field berth.

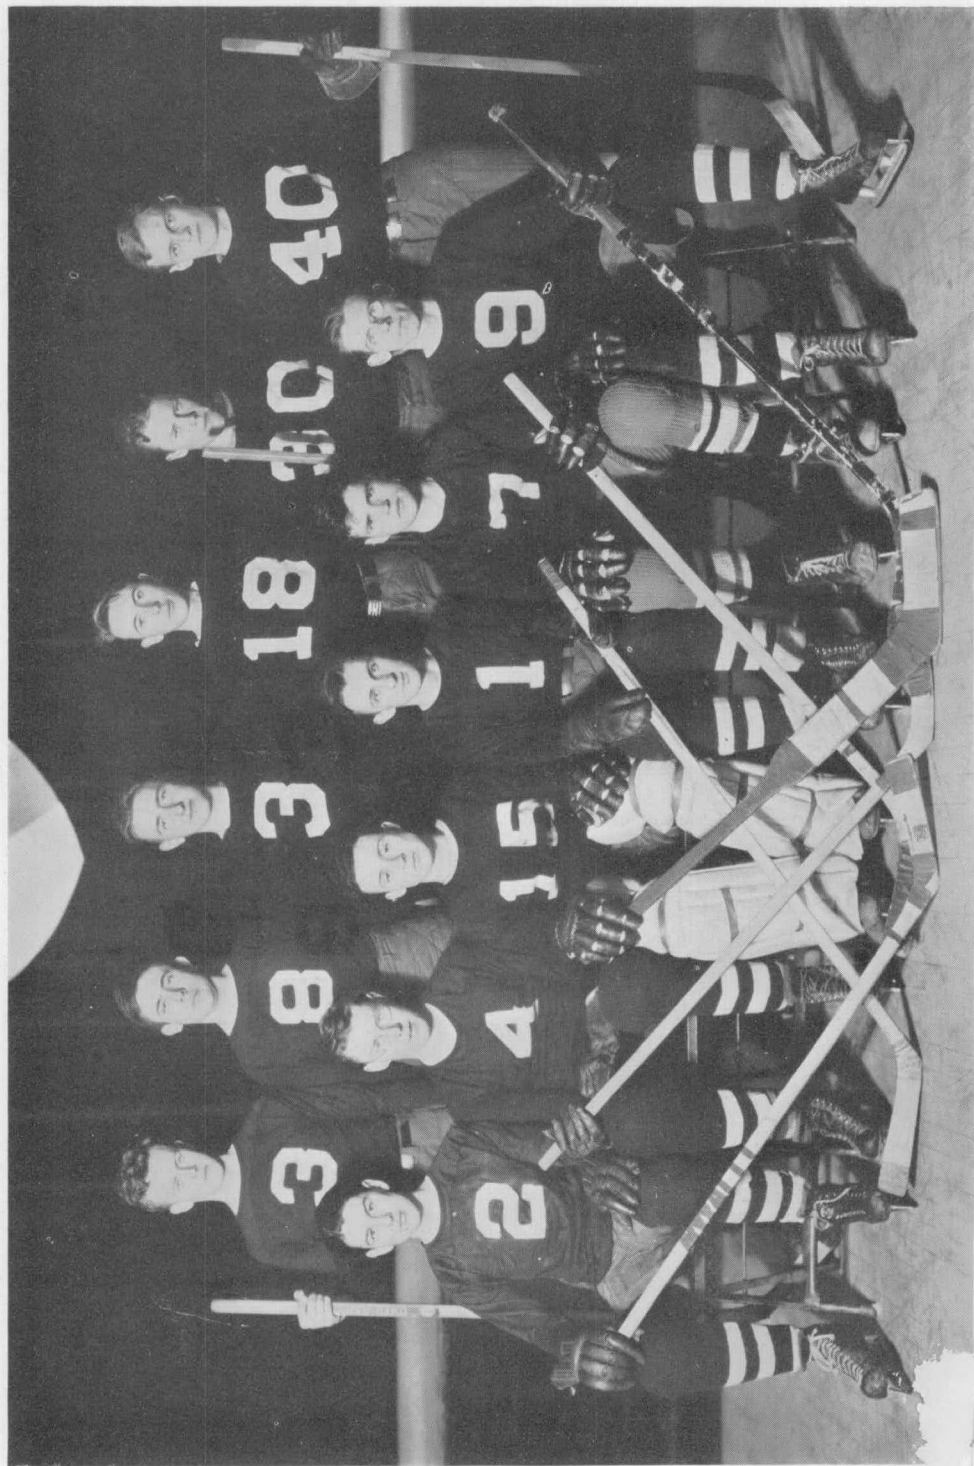

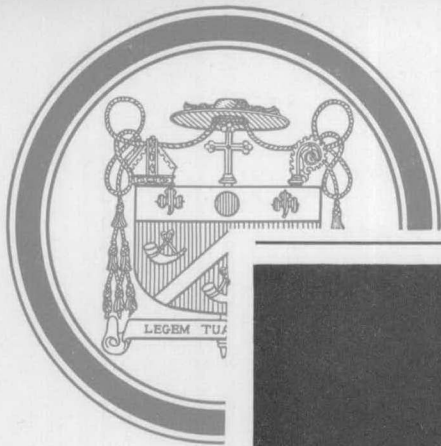

The schedule includes eighteen games, thirteen of which are league tilts. Prep will also meet Poly, Brooklyn Tech, Erasmus and St. Paul's, winding up the season with St. John's.

Following the custom of last year the games will be played at the Parade Grounds. Good luck and bring back the championship!

Kenneth J. Hollenstein, Manager.

THE VARSITY HOCKEY TEAM

HOCKEY

THE Brooklyn Prep hockey team in its seventh year of competition, under the guidance of Coach Dougherty and Mr. Perry, S.J., had an exciting, if not highly successful season. Due to the disbandment of the hockey section of the C.H.S.A.A. the Prep schedule called for games with P.S.A.L. teams and entry into the Junior Metropolitan Tourney held at Madison Square Garden.

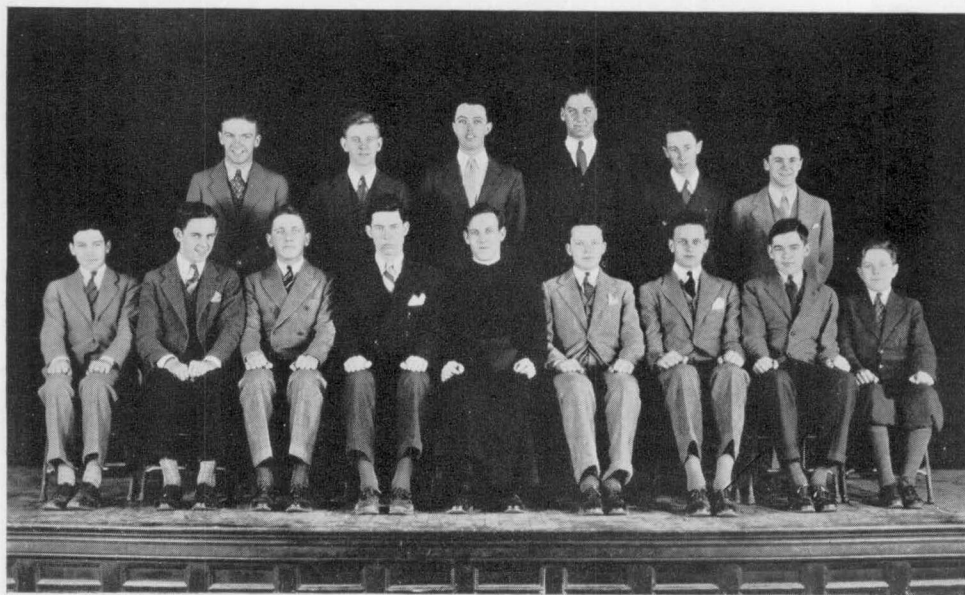

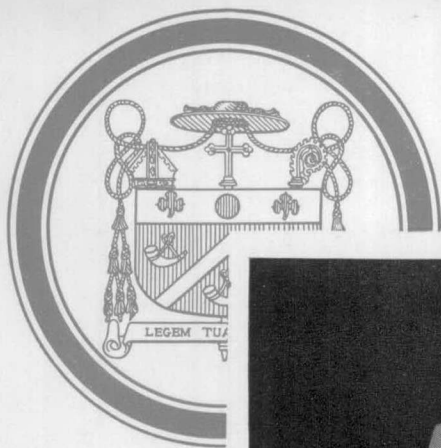

Although the team was hampered by lack of practice and other drawbacks throughout the season, it really showed its true strength and spirit in the Metropolitan Tourney. The Prep team held the Lormawood Club, ranking amateur team, which later went to the final round, at bay for the entire game and also a half hour sudden-death overtime period before finally falling by the score 2-1. Again in the Utrecht game, the team showed a flashy and brilliant attack which culminated in the scoring of a last minute goal which defeated a highly favored Green and White team.

Coach Dougherty had a versatile set of forwards anyone of whom was able to play any position. The two forward lines of Johnny Smith, Bill Deegan, Jack Leary and Hugh Duffy, Pierce Clair and Emmett Burke were used alternately. Jake Scannell, Dick Fennelly and Jerry Reil were the body checking back liners, while George Miles tended the cage. The reserve strength was very useful and "Chub" Deegan, Bill Bohne, Herb Whelan and Bill McLaughlin lent their assistance to the first string men. The outlook for next year is exceptionally bright, for the team will use only three men, and a successful defense of the C.H.S.A.A. title is looked for on all sides.

THE SWIMMING TEAM

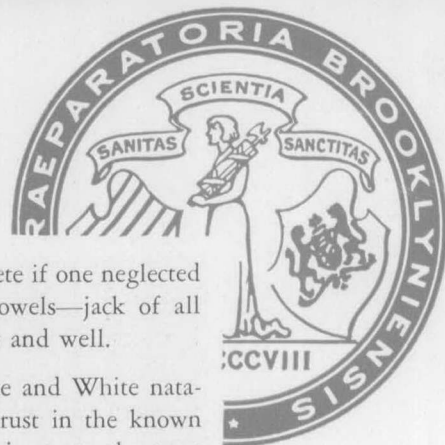

THE past year saw the Prep Swimming Team facing the most severe schedule it has ever had and under the capable guidance of Mr. Philip A. Carey, S.J., our coach and moderator, it was a very successful one. For the victories won by the mermen far outnumber the defeats. Fortunately eleven veterans remained from former years, and with new recruits the season swung under way. The first period was a very gratifying one for the Prep conquered her rivals by overwhelming scores. George Rafter was captain and a sure winner in the 220 yard free and 40 yard breast stroke events. He was ably seconded by his fellow classmate Al Maguire, who turned in five performances in the 40 yard distances.

In the dual meets held at the K. of C. pool the team displayed remarkable talent conquering all opposition and earning the right to meet St. Francis in a struggle for the C.H.S.A.A. title. It was a fierce combat and the Prep lost. But no one need feel ashamed of our team, for the final score read St. Francis 34—Brooklyn Prep 28.

Every man on the team deserves praise for his work during the year. Bob Lilly, captain for the second part of the year, continued to shine in the 100 yard race. He, together with George Rafter, Al Maguire and Dan Carroll, set Catholic Record of 1 minute 21.6 seconds for the 160 yard relay during the St. Francis meet. Jack Coakley and Joe Lawlor were equally outstanding in their events, while Dick Huisiking and Martin Grennan performed creditably in the back stroke. Norbert Treacy was the long distance swimmer and George Ferguson the breast stroke ace.

Probably the best "finds" of the year were the divers, Frank Deegan and Bob Bannin. Bob did particularly well and shows every promise of leading the league next year.

Any record of the work of the Swimming Team would be incomplete if one neglected to mention the man behind the scenes, the secretary, purveyor of towels—jack of all trades, the manager, smiling Jim Touhey. He did his work faithfully and well.

Losing only three mermen through the June graduation, the Blue and White nators look forward to the coming year with much optimism. They trust in the known prowess of the veterans and in the fair promise which the many aspirants to the team hold forth.

In closing we wish to say a special word of gratitude to our coach and moderator, Mr. Philip A. Carey, S.J., to whose constant labor and inspiring leadership the lion's share of the credit for the fine record the team has made is due.

Daniel Carroll.

THE TRACK TEAM.

THE call for cross-country runners for this year was sounded in a different manner than it has been in the past. Coach Robert F. Giegengack looked forward to a championship team and not for a squad that would run in order to be fit for the indoor track season, as has been the procedure in past years.

This promise of a championship bore fruit in the first meet of the season, when the Prep harriers defeated Xavier by capturing the first five places. There was a triple tie for first place existing between Bill Dobbins, Bill Chandler and Gene McLaughlin. Poly Prep was the second team to go down in defeat before the Blue and White Hill and Dalers and, again, the two Bills and Gene McLaughlin came through. Charles Darling of Poly was fourth. Murt Lawrence and Luke Hayden came fifth and sixth, respectively.

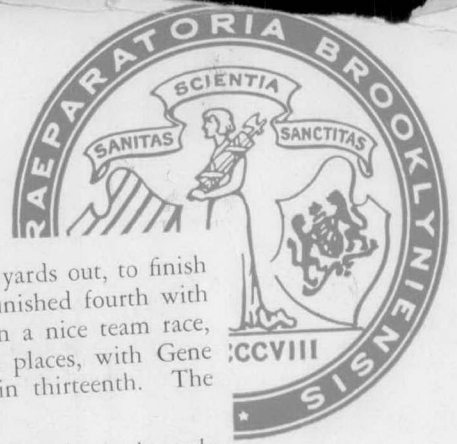

Then, contrary to the expectation of all but the Prep supporters, the winning streak of the Prep team continued and made our team the Private School Champions of New York, displacing Manhattan, twice champions. Bill Dobbins placed first for the Prep but second for the championships, followed by Murt Lawrence, Bill Chandler, Bill Callahan and Lew Peterson in ninth, tenth, thirteenth and fourteenth places, respectively. The complete team score of the Prep was 48, while Manhattan came second with 57.

Exactly one week later, November 17, this victory over Manhattan was repeated when the Prep captured the Catholic High School Cross-Country Championship. And, as previously, Bill Dobbins placed second to Joe Moclair of Manhattan. Dobbins and Bill Chandler ran second and third most of the way with McCabe of Manhattan, fourth.

But in the stretch, under Moclair's urging, McCabe surged into second place. Dobbins, however, would quit and in a bitter stretch duel caught and passed McCabe about 20 yards out, to finish a few scant yards behind Moclair. Joe Konrad of St. Augustine's finished fourth with Bill Chandler in fifth place. Dick Peterson and Murt Lawrence ran a nice team race, finishing almost together to give Brooklyn Prep sixth and seventh places, with Gene McLaughlin finishing the scoring for the home team by coming in thirteenth. The final score was 33 for Prep and 66 for Manhattan.

Besides Charlie Southard of the Public School Association, Bill Dobbins is the only other truly outstanding runner to be placed on the Eagle All-Scholastic Cross-Country teams. Bill started the season slowly but finished in a blaze of glory. Never having placed better than fourteenth in an open race in several years of competition, Bill staged a brilliant performance in gaining the post of runner up to Joe Moclair in the Private School and in the Catholic School races.

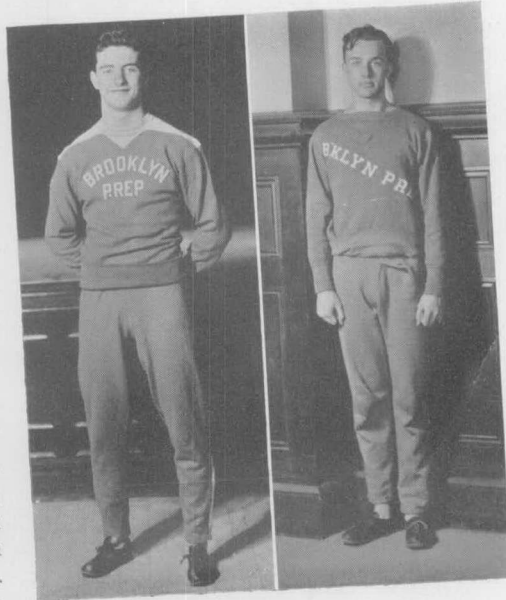

Bill Dobbins was chosen on the P.S.A.L. and Prep School First Team. On the second team were Bill Chandler, Dick Peterson and Murt Lawrence. On the Prep School First All-Scholastic Cross-Country Team, Bill Dobbins, Bill Chandler, Dick Peterson and Murt Lawrence were again selected in addition to Gene McLaughlin. Probably because of some error, Bill Callahan was omitted from the group. He had scored indisputable victories over the other two men chosen for this team.

With this string of Cross-Country victories behind them, the Prep harriers formed the mainstays of the Prep indoor track team. By the score of 13 points, they sustained the record-breaking string of victories for the year, for this was the highest number of points the Prep has ever scored in an open Meet. In amassing the points for this score Gene McLaughlin won the first division race of the 1,000 yard novice run. Murt Lawrence placed second in the second division of this same race and Bill Dobbins placed second in the half-mile.

On Lincoln's Birthday, as is the custom, the Catholic High School Indoor Meet was held. The Prep team finished fourth in this meet in the senior division and fifth in the junior division. Scoring honors were garnered by Bill Dobbins, who placed second in a questionable finish with Robert Reilly of St. Augustine's. The mile relay team placed third in its event and the third mile relay team placed fourth. Dick Kelaher completed the scoring by tying for second place in the high jump. Each of these events were record-breaking victories. In the Junior-Midget Division, Ken Hollenstein came in fourth in the 75 yard dash. Bill Maher placed fourth in the 100 yard dash, junior division. Joe Ingham, Bob Geoghan and Frank Timmes crossed the line third, fourth and fifth, respectively, in the 220 yard dash of the junior division.

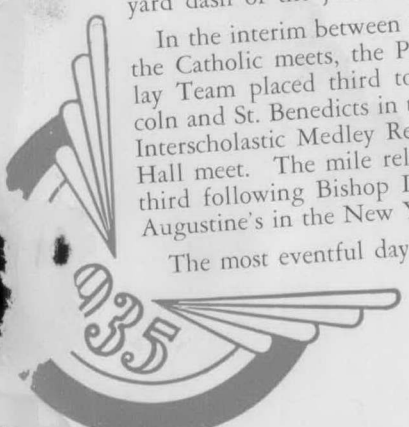

In the interim between the Manual and the Catholic meets, the Prep Medley Relay Team placed third to Abraham Lincoln and St. Benedicts in the International Interscholastic Medley Relay at the Seton Hall meet. The mile relay team came in third following Bishop Loughlin and St. Augustine's in the New York A. C. meet.

door team up to this date of February 22, was the National Interscholastic, in which the Prep placed three men to tie for third place in the High School Division. Bill Chandler placed fifth in the 1,000 yard run; Jack O'Reilly placed third in the 220 and Bill "Battler" Dobbins placed first in the half-mile, proving beyond a doubt that he was a faster half-miler than Bob Reilly of St. Augustine's. He outlasted Frank Slater, the P.S.A.L. champion by one yard and Slater was victorious over Reilly by ten yards.

The most noteworthy performance of the entire indoor season was the World's Record breaking two-mile relay race run by Luke Hayden, Bill Chandler, Jack O'Reilly and Bill Dobbins. The time was 8:27. In this same race in the anchor leg Bill Dobbins again came through and supplied the biggest racing thrill of the night, when he overtook the Seton Hall runner's lead of 100 yards and won by 10 yards. This brought the Prep team from fourth to first place a 1:58:8 half. Gene McLaughlin and Murt Lawrence took third and fourth in the mile and Dick Hayden took fifth in the 220, gaining 11 points to put the Prep in fourth place.

The Prep mile relay team again invaded Madison Square Garden and in a close race with St. Augustine's, in which Bill Dobbins finished practically on even terms with Bob Reilly of St. Augustine's, the team of Dick Hayden, Jack O'Reilly, Bill Dobbins and Bill Callahan took the second place in the time of 3:37.

On March 23, the Indoor Track season closed as successfully as the entire season had opened. Coach Giegengack took a team of five men to the Seton Hall H. S. Indoor Relay Carnival and accompanied the quintet home with eight medals. The two-mile relay team placed second to Seton Hall and the mile relay placed third to Kearney and Lincoln. The time of the winners of the two-mile relay was 8:27:4.

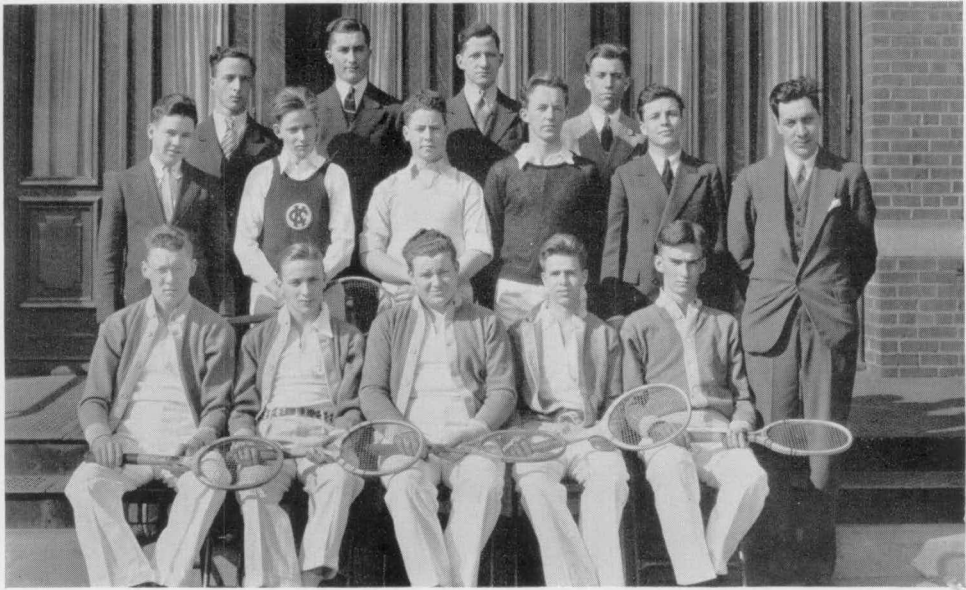

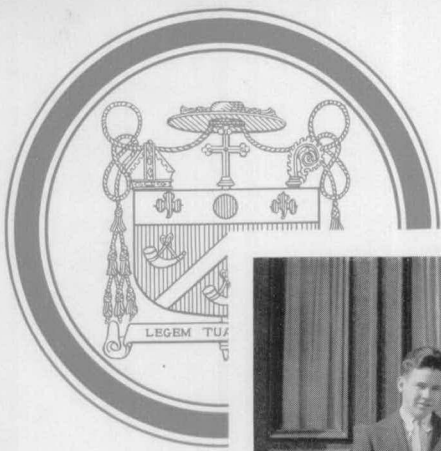

With the close of this meet, we look forward to a very successful outdoor season and we wish to congratulate Coach Giegengack for the wonders he has performed, since he assumed the position of Track Coach over a year ago.

THE TENNIS TEAM

SINCE the tennis season has not yet officially opened we cannot tell you who the members of the tennis team will be. But we can say that we won't have all the boys we thought we would have. Bill Schwitter, the runner-up in the Fall Tournament, and Jack Redmond have been snatched up by the baseball team as promising material. However, we will have three men from last year's successful team. Bob Dwyer, Joe Bier and Hugh Duffy will form the nucleus of the 1935 aggregation. Some of the promising material uncovered in the Fall Tournament includes Joe Braun, Pete Viscardi and Bob Bannin. The team will travel quite a bit this season meeting King School at Stamford, Connecticut and St. Paul's at Garden City. Again we shall face our arch-rival Poly Prep. Some of our other opponents are McBurney, Adelphi, Xavier, Madison, Erasmus and Fordham Prep. However, in spite of our losses to the baseball team we expect to have at least a moderately successful season.

SCHOLARSHIPS

To found a scholarship in perpetuity, the sum of $3,000.00 is required. The founder of this scholarship has the right in perpetuity to keep one boy at the School. Students holding scholarships are required to maintain an average of at least 75 per cent. Failure to do so for two consecutive months means forfeiture of scholarship.

These scholarships entitle the holder to a full four years' course.

The donor of a scholarship has the right to appoint the students.

Donors of scholarships become Benefactors of the Society of Jesus and are remembered in Masses and prayers of Jesuits the world over for all time.
