School seals, like coats-of-arms and other heraldic devices, may seem very much out of date to the modern student. In an age when simple designs—initials like G.E., G.M., I.B.M., R.C.A.; symbols like the Olympic Games' interlocking circles, the World's Fair's Unisphere, the eye of CBS-TV—can quickly identify an organization, a complicated seal requiring an inspection of many parts may seem to be too much trouble to bother with. Why shouldn't the school initials, as seen on the varsity letters worn by our athletes, be enough for Brooklyn Prep? Why bother with a seal whose lettering is in Latin, whose central figure is no longer fashionable, whose two shields are completely unintelligible to the ordinary viewer?

The answer lies in the nature of our school seal. It is, of course, intended to identify a particular school, just as the "GE" on a 60-watt bulb identifies an enormous corporation, but its purpose is more than simple identification. The seal not only gives those who see it the name of a school, but it also can tell them something about the school. The seal will tell the understanding person the goal of Brooklyn Prep, the ways we reach that goal, the men charged with making it all possible.

Brooklyn Prep's seal, somewhat redesigned this year by a professional artist, is made up of many parts. The name of the school appears in Latin, now with the more accurate spelling of the Latin adjective for "Brooklyn." Then there is the date of the school's founding, 1908. Dominating the design is the symbol of wisdom, the goal of Prep, represented by the goddess Minerva. The school motto, "Sanitas, Scientia, Sanctitas," breaks down the goal into three parts, and shows us the way to wisdom. Finally, two Spanish coats-of-arms, dating back more than five centuries and representing the noble family of Loyola, stand for St. Ignatius Loyola and the religious order he founded, the Society of Jesus. The seal thus proclaims this to be a Jesuit school, part of a worldwide and centuries-old system of education.

The school seal is our symbol and sign, and so is this yearbook, for both stand for the reality of Brooklyn Prep. The 1964 Blue Book will try to interpret the meaning of the seal through some of its parts. We hope to see in word and picture how the ideals expressed in our official emblem are made concrete in the everyday life and activity of Brooklyn Prep.

Murtha P. Lawrence, A.B.

Dedication

Teaching geometry to sophomores is not an easy job. Try coaching track and cross country, and teaching Driver Education in addition, and you have a great deal of work. Yet this man has been doing it since 1946.

Since this father of eight children is himself a former Prep student and track star, class of '36, he is better able to understand and help his pupils. As a teacher, he is one of Prep's most popular. He serves as a shining example of a Christian gentleman to his students. As a coach, he is rated one of the best. His ability to take a personal interest in each of his men has produced some of the best athletes in the country. Thus, for his eighteen years of unswerving loyalty to God and to Prep, we, the class of '64, dedicate this yearbook to Mr. Murtha P. Lawrence.

The coat-of-arms of the noble family of Loyola tells us that this is a Jesuit school. It is therefore a school backed by a tradition of four centuries in education, part of an areawide, nationwide, and worldwide system. Run by a Jesuit administration and taught by both Jesuits and lay teachers dedicated to the same goals, Brooklyn Prep strives to fulfill a unique function. It attempts to begin the long process of forming effective leaders in the spheres of religious, intellectual, and social activity. In cooperation with the parents, whose place they take during the school day, the members of the Brooklyn Prep faculty strive to impart to their students a Christian view of the world, a culture and open-mindedness that correspond to the needs of the times, and a competence in the arts of expression.

William J. Quinn, Sc.D.
Mathematics
Faculty Council Chairman *

The mathematics department is under the capable direction of Father O'Connor and Mr. Quinn. The former's exceptional knowledge of mathematics and the latter's outstanding experience make them not only excellent heads but also the backbone of the department. They see to it that each student receives the proper mathematics course to complement his ability. Mr. Quinn instructs the advanced classes of sophomore and junior years in intermediate math. Father O'Connor teaches algebra to freshmen, geometry to advanced placement juniors, and fourth year math to honor students.

Prep also has four other mathematics teachers on its staff, each teaching a different category of mathematics and each an expert in his respective field. Mr. Doolan and Mr. Berreen share the freshman course. Mr. Doolan is a veteran at teaching algebra to the Prep freshmen, while Mr. Berreen is a competent newcomer to the staff. Mr. Lawrence is in charge of teaching geometry to second year, and Mr. Whitty teaches intermediate math to most of the juniors.

Three years ago the math department underwent a challenging change. A unique¹ mathematics system was set up for advance placement students. The student as a freshman takes elementary and intermediate algebra. In sophomore year he concludes intermediate math and delves into fourth year math in order to give the student a chance to finish all types of algebra without interruption by geometry. Geometry predominates in third year, while the fourth year student is taught calculus and matrix.

Social Studies

Francis J. Luongo, M.A.
History

To meet the high scholastic competence demanded of college applicants, the social studies department expanded and improved the four year social studies course. Brooklyn Prep's social studies faculty believes that it is their duty to prepare their students for college experience, and, specifically, the manner in which social studies courses are delivered in the majority of colleges.

Under the presumption that history itself is a chain of cause and reaction which may be traced and analyzed, and not merely many single scattered events, Mr. Luongo, department chairman, has accented the idea of consciously exercising students' minds in the interpretation of historical events, rather than replacing thought with memory devices. Of course, the absolute necessity of knowledge of the facts is not overlooked, since it is only from facts that one can go on to analyze.

In recent years, the social studies outline and curriculum also have undergone some significant renovations. Only in the past year has the department instituted a new, more advanced course with the decision to teach a three-semester course of world history instead of the former two-semester program. A social studies orientation program with world geography is taught in the first semester of freshman year, while the new course runs from the second half of freshman year through all sophomore year. American history will fill the next three semesters. The second half of senior year will be given to an economics program which should prove to be much more satisfying than the freshman course of previous years. Prep students will thus experience a more complete and accurate knowledge of social studies.

In recent years the major goal of the modern language program has been to teach the student a conversational language as it is spoken by the native countrymen. Different methods have been tried with varying results. The Audio-Lingual method (ALM) used by the seniors has given way to the St. Cloud method in third year. In the French section a series of filmstrips and corresponding tape recordings has replaced the use of textbooks in the initial stages of learning. The new method, combining eye and ear repetition and imitation, gradually develops in the student the understanding behind communication in another language. Much more energetic activity—and patience—is demanded of both teacher and student.

A course based on the same principles has been introduced to the German students by Father Joyce. Here, however, the early and continued use of a textbook is also required. The success of this method was shown this year when the modern language teachers from the other Jesuit schools enthusiastically responded to an explanation of the method by Father Farrand and a demonstration by some of his students.

Other changes and improvements are also being planned. The sign of the darkened classroom will soon overtake all of sophomore year, enabling Prep students to study a modern language of three years. Ways to have smaller classes with more individual attention are being studied, as well as the possibilities of sending some students to France or Austria for a summer of language mastery. Finally, Spanish will soon be added to the department never satisfied with the minimum.

Science, in the modern sense of the word, suggests progress. This connotation aptly applies to the Science Department of Brooklyn Prep. With the innovation of the Physical Science Study Curriculum in the physics classes and the Chemistry Educational Curriculum in the chemistry section, the science department has taken on a new, progressive look.

The new physics course abandons such time-honored tasks as memorizing the mechanics of a steam engine. The time saved is devoted to experiments to teach students how to discover scientific truths on their own. The vitality of the course comes mainly from the use of the laboratory and lab methods as a true source of learning experience.

The students learn to investigate physical phenomena rather than just verify known conclusions, and most of the experiments are so presented and timed as to pave the way for studying the text.

The chemistry section of the science department has also been improved with the Chemistry Educational Material Course. In the new chemistry course, beginning students may be asked to observe a candle and write down as many observations about it as they can. Most students come up with 10 to 12, such as the candle's emission of light and heat and the melting of wax. Then their efforts are compared with a chemist's list of 53 items. The idea is to jolt the students into an appreciation of the amount of information that can come from painstaking observation. Formerly, the students were merely told that the candle has 53 different scientific observations. Now they will develop the habits of careful scientific observation.

Finding Greek in the curriculum of a Jesuit school should not be a surprise, for the Greek language displays all the educational values of Latin and some more of its own. It is a more mature and discriminating language than Latin. Its greater number of inflected forms allows Greek to express subtle nuances of thought and mood impossible in Latin. This fact, plus the richness of its vocabulary, demands and instills in the student a more highly developed sense of language. For this reason, training in Greek belongs to the level of distinction in the humanistic aims of Jesuit education.

Greek, of its very nature, is not for everyone. Freshmen who have shown superior ability, especially in language aptitude, are invited to participate in the Greek program the following year. Their introduction to the language of Homer, Plato, Sophocles, and Aristotle is given by Mr. Nebot, beginning with an intensive study of Attic Greek grammar and vocabulary. When they are ready, the Greek students read Xenophon's Anabasis. This reading continues into the first semester of junior year under the direction of Mr. Murphy, S.J. When Xenophon is completed, the students launch right into a whole new world, that of Homeric Greek with its own special word forms and vocabulary. After a brief look at the Iliad, the work of the last three semesters, reading Homer's other great epic, the Odyssey, begins. Fr. Oppido, S.J., is the fourth-year guide for this heroic adventure, which gives the Greek students a valid insight into the beginnings of Western civilization.

Athletics

William Beck
Director of Athletics
Physical Education
Swimming

For all of us, our years at Prep have been surrounded by athletics. In P.T. class we have taken our basic steps towards physical fitness through the various tests required by the school. During first and second year the emphasis is placed on development of coordination, physical condition, and a knowledge of the fundamentals of sports. Third year concentrates on tests of endurance and stamina, while fourth year training consists of a good deal of running, the performance of the principal fitness tests, and the organization of advanced games and drills. As Mr. Duffy has said, "Our goal here at Brooklyn Prep is the development of the well-rounded individual. Consequently, by the time a student has reached his senior year, we expect him to become a well-rounded individual. Therefore, we allow individuals to lead a class. To form this well-rounded boy we stress attitude, posture, behavior, and conduct throughout the four years."

A major facility of the school as well as a major part of the athletic curriculum is the pool. Not only swimming as a sport, but also swimming as a talent has been increased. Before we had the pool, not more than 50% of the students were swimmers. However, at present over 90% can perform the water drills. Water polo games and instructions in the different strokes of swimming are the basic activities of the weekly swimming periods. Another facet of the pool's value was described thus by Mr. Beck, "More good swimmers are coming to Prep to become excellent athletes. The proximity of the practice site has made progress easier and individual development more complete." Prep athletes have derived much satisfaction as well as accomplishment from the athletic facilities in Prep's new wing.

Other Subjects

Traditionally, the Jesuits have tried to achieve their educational aims by developing in their schools a carefully-planned, well-rounded course of studies. Brooklyn Prep offers such a program. In addition to its regular curriculum of the classical and modern foreign languages, math and science, English, history, and religion, the school gives to all of its students the benefits of many useful minor subjects, subjects which are necessary to complete their education.

It is customary at Prep that the freshmen are given the greatest number of these minor subjects. All freshmen are required to take health. In the classes which they have twice a week, they are taught, either by Mr. Perry or Mr. Duffy, the main systems and functions of the body. They learn about the proper care which the body needs, the various diseases and ailments which a person can contract, and the cures and treatments of these diseases. They also discuss first aid and safety measures which may prove very helpful in later life.

In addition to health, the freshmen take a six-month course in Library Science. During the weekly periods, Mr. O'Neill tries to introduce the new students to the proper use of the library. He brings them into the library and teaches them to become familiar with the Dewey Decimal System, the card catalog, and the other facets of library science. For all students who are going to college this subject is very useful because it will aid them in research. If we are familiar with the library and if we know how to use it, this research will become much easier.

All freshmen also meet Mr. McCarthy once a week for a class in Music Appreciation. This period can be amusing as Mr. McCarthy tries to explain to 35 puzzled faces what Beethoven is attempting to communicate in his Seventh Symphony or where to place the proper notes on the scale. The aim always is that the students may thus acquire a knowledge and taste for good music, and a greater enjoyment of it.

Speech, a subject which all Brooklyn Prep students take for at least three years, begins in freshman year. Mr. O'Connell employs such techniques as the taping and playback of students' voices. The aim of the speech course is to teach proper speech and to correct speech defects. Since in later life one's manner of speaking is very important, the training here can make the difference between success and failure.

Finally, all in second year study Art Appreciation. This subject, which Mr. Winans and Mr. Sullivan teach, is aimed at developing the student's appreciation and enjoyment of art. By showing films, filmstrips, and slides of famous works, the teachers have a basis for discussing the various techniques used by the great masters of painting, sculpture and architecture. Library research, drawing assignments, and field trips to museums and art galleries all help to get the student personally involved in this important part of their humanistic education.

A freshman learns the tools of reference work from Mr. O'Neill.

Mr. Eugene Perry illustrates a point of anatomy to one of his freshman classes.

The class of 1964 now brings down the curtain on four years of activity aimed at gaining true knowledge, the basis of all effective living now and in the future. The truth of our liberal education, the truth which sets men free, has not come to us neatly packaged and ready for prompt delivery. It is rather the result of an enormous variety of activities in and out of the classroom, many of which were seemingly unrelated. From the time that Father Henle said in Lesson 1, "Open your Grammar to No. 31. Here you see the declension of TERRA.," until Shakespeare told us about Macbeth, "this dead butcher, and his fiend-like queen," we have labored at great cost to acquire the knowledge offered to us at Brooklyn Prep. This, we trust, will be our solid foundation, for we know now that graduation is just the beginning.

State Scholars

Seniors arrange their completed examinations with the help of Mr. George Hunt, S.J.

Varying reactions to the State Scholarship Examination are registered on the faces of a few of the participants.

Three hundred seniors ponder their tests beneath the stern gaze of Mr. Moroney.

We are men who live by faith. We believe, for example, that everything we do each day, except sin, of course, is a prayer very pleasing to God. This is so because every day before class we offer to Him all our prayers, works, joys, and sufferings in union with Jesus Christ, His Son, in Whom He is well pleased. It is perhaps easier to think of the work of the classroom in this way, but in reality the activities after class are just as much a part of our daily offering and important stage in our sanctification. With our lives centered on Jesus Christ, every newspaper article written, every roll of film developed, every debate judged, every poster drawn, every line of Shakespeare memorized—every one gives us a firmer grasp on our final goal, the sanctity of union with God.

ACTIVITIES

Prep's cheerleaders, band and loyal fans share in excitement of one of the Eagles' three big touchdowns against the scoreless Kaydets of Xavier.

For the first time in several years, Brooklyn Prep's Latin Sight Team gained first place in the Vergil contest. The winners are Larry Pape, Moderator Robert Nebot, Vic Castellani, and Dennis Durante.

The Year In Review

Underclassmen, upperclassmen and administration combined to make this year's Sophomore Day a big success.

Soph Ray D'Antoni obviously had a good time on the boat ride to Rye Beach.

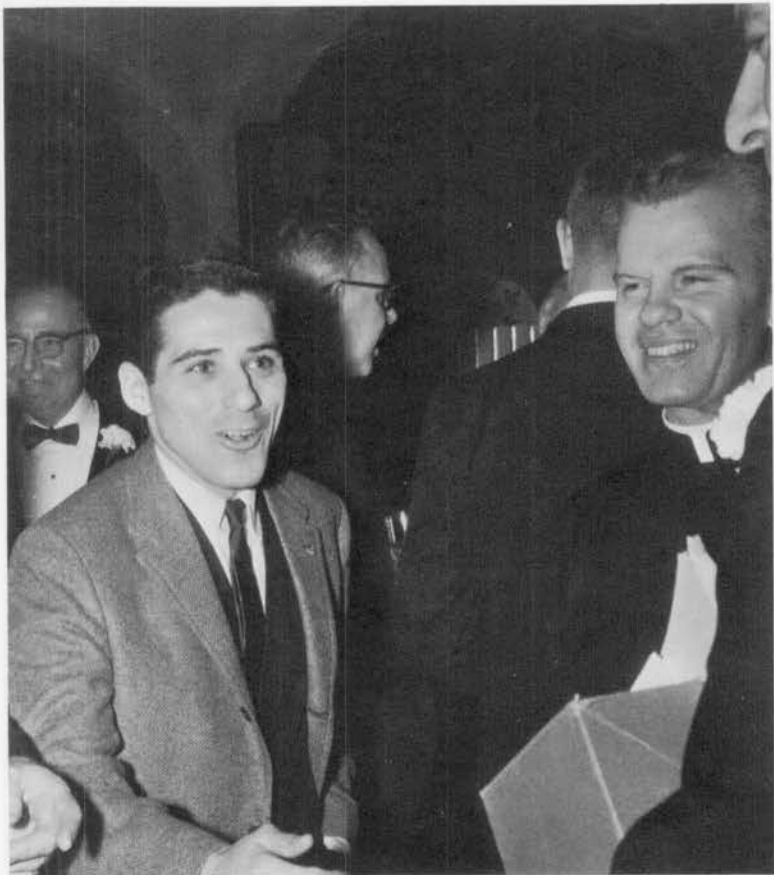

The action at a Brooklyn Prep record hop appears to center around Key Lanigan and his date. Record hops, although infrequent this year, were as popular as ever.

Mr. Winchurch poses with his drivers' education charges. This program, now in its third year, has proven to be a solid success at the Prep.

Two generations of Jesuit discipline—Fr. Engel and Fr. Thomas Dorney, who served as the Prep Prefect of Discipline during Fr. Engel's leave of absence this year.

Jovial feelings are in order as Jim Beatty and Fr. Kelly meet the dais guests before the Sports Dinner.

Catholic Athlete of the Year, All-American, and winner of the Heisman Trophy as the College Player of the Year, Roger Staubach steps to the rostrum at the Sports Dinner. Mr. Robert Giegengack, Olympic track coach from Yale, was an excellent toastmaster with his sparkling humor.

Valedictorian for the Class of '64, John Stevenson brought honor to Prep by winning a National Merit Scholarship and by being one of the nation's first Presidential Scholars.

Winner of the Michael Cashman Award as Prep's best athlete, Charlie Phillips gave an excellent speech to the audience assembled for the Dinner.

Greg Milmoie and Steve Treadway are all smiles as they learn the results of the Student Council elections. In a poll of the students of Prep, Milmoie was selected as President of the Council, while Treadway was chosen to serve as Vice-President.

The Glee Club, which was just started this year by Mr. Ell, performs at Parents' Night while Mr. McCarthy twists in the background.

Father Rector offers the Mass of Saint Ignatius before the faculty and students.

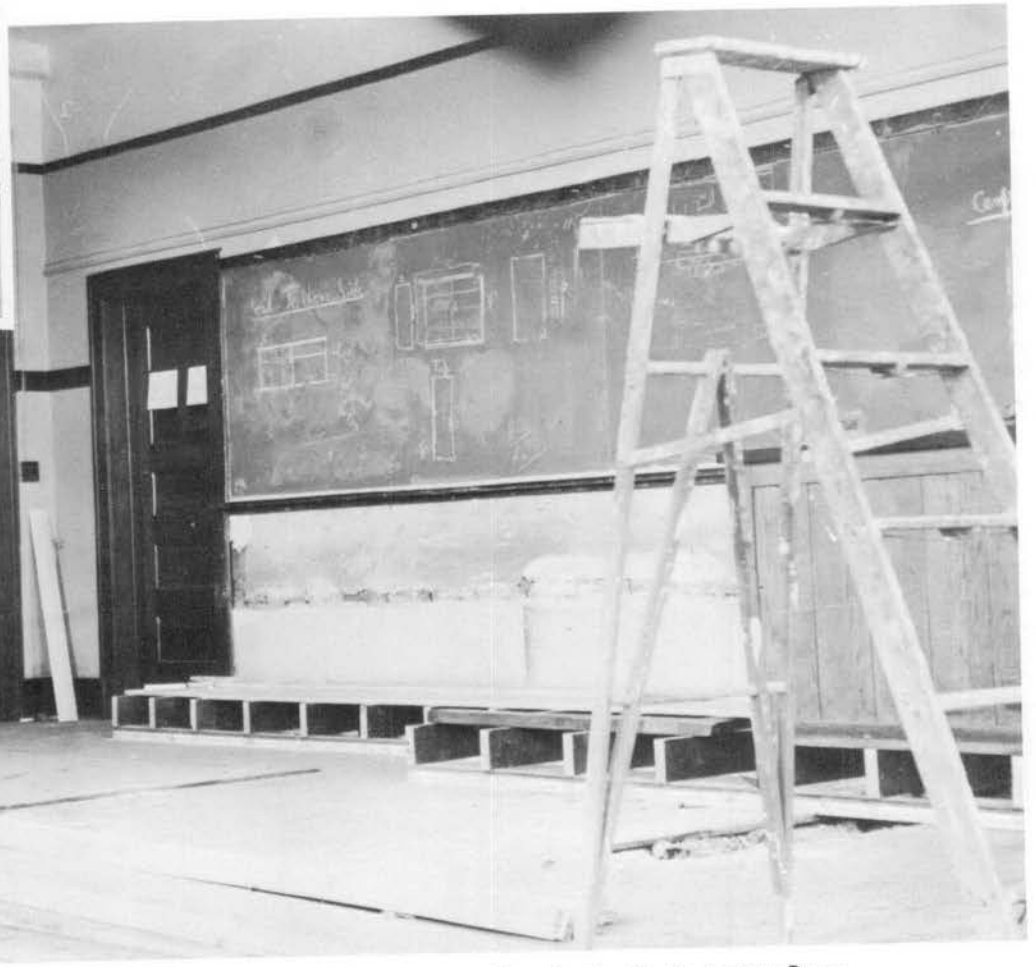

Father Watson, assisted by three seniors, Joe Padronaggio, Walter Voytus, and Eugene Keogh, performs a typical laboratory experiment for the new physics course at a parents' meeting.

Yearbook Editors Robert Rutkowski, Richard Sbaschnig, John Duffy, and Artie Ramsdell discuss the helpful hints which they picked up at Fordham's Publications Meeting.

Father Rector and Mr. Gregory present three juniors with the Brooklyn Prep Scholar Incentive Award for outstanding academic achievements.

Under the new psychological plan in which the atmosphere aids study, the Physics Lecture Room is being reconstructed with wall-to-wall carpeting.

Sodality Reorganizes

Juniors Colica and Zalewski put the finishing touches on their Sodality posters.

The purpose of The Sodality of Our Blessed Mother is to insure the satisfaction of its members and the salvation of others. A true sodalist leads a very rigorous and self-denying life. It is unlikely though that you will see any sodalist spreading wings or walking under the aegis of a halo, but his accolades for charity and sanctification of others will remain, for a time, silent and unseen.

During this past year, the four representative sodalities at Prep have worked to regroup and to redefine its aims and to develop applicable means of drawing the best men from the student body and of instilling in them a deeper and broader meaning of the organization.

Under the excellent guidance of Father Musselman, Father Guth, Mr. Feeney, and Father Giblin, the reorganization has been carried on with encouraging results. The Sodality has functioned more effectively to make its influence felt by the entire student body.

The real value of the sodality rests in the men who are part of it. They must be men who, along with qualities of sanctity and devotion to principle, are active and influential in scholastic activities. The senior sodality alone consists of men who are not merely active, but leaders of activities. There are National Merit Finalists, heads of publications, captains of the track team, and members of the Headmaster's Council.

The necessary work of the sodality does not end with graduation in June. For many who take a permanent consecration, the duties and devotion to Our Blessed Mother will become a daily function until God claims their souls.

Mr. Feeney, S.J., leads a discussion as he explains the rules of the Sodality of Our Lady.

The senior Sodalists, under the direction of Fr. Musselman, S.J., plan their strategy for their successful mission drive.

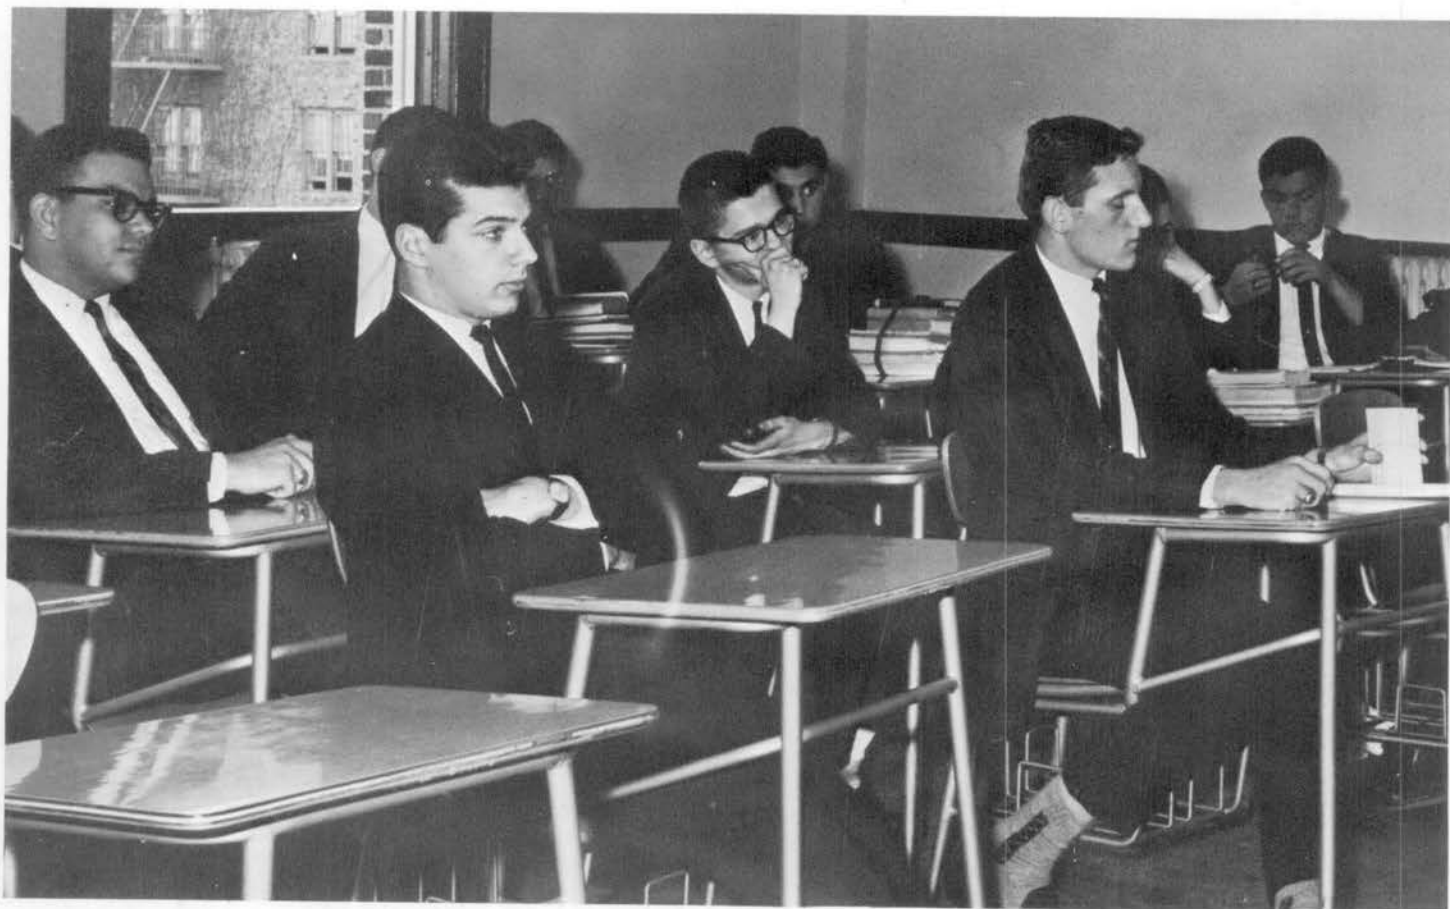

Juniors Madara, Hullah, and Rabuffo discuss important points at their weekly meeting.

Fr. Giblin, S.J., and his freshman sodalists pose for our camera.

Council Returns Boat

Ebullient interest and rigid attention characterize the typical Student Council meeting.

Student Council moderator, Fr. Harold Oppido, S.J., considers a topic under discussion.

The junior year contingent assesses the value of one of the Council's proposals.

Ride

The traditional function of the Student Council is to provide a co-operative link between the administration and the student body. Thus, an ideal Council would operate in some middle ground between total student government and total administration control. This year's session of the Student Council seems to have struck a workable balance between these two extremes.

Perhaps the most notable of the Council's achievements was the securing of the boat ride. Kevin Lanigan handled all the details of the trip.

One of the Council's innovations this year has been providing shields for non-athletic activities. The purpose of these shields is to give to men on activities outside athletics the same recognition that athletes achieve through the varsity letter system.

At the first meeting of the Council this year, President Marty Cahill outlined a new plan of procedure which called for more scheduled meetings and a committee to investigate and carry out Council proposals. Two of the committees deserve special mention. The Dance Committee, under Vin Sheehan and Sal Ciccolella, arranged all Prep's dances and record hops. The committee proposed a new idea for Prep, the highly successful Junior Ring Dance. The Prom Committee, headed by Jack Rafferty, planned all the details of the Senior Prom. It was Jack's careful handling of this matter that insured the success of the Prom.

The most significant and far-reaching activities of the Council may be the consideration of serious proposals to change the structure of the Student Council itself. The plan envisions a much smaller group composed of different numbers from each year. If adopted, the new system would hopefully allow a more efficient handling of the complex business of student government.

To sum up, a review of the Council's record for 1963-1964 reveals an impressive list of accomplishments and changes not limited merely to the social side of Prep, but one extending even to the basic format of the Council itself.

President of the Council, Marty Cahill, listens to some important discussion.

Dramatics

Hamlet, brilliantly portrayed by Nick Coti, motions defiantly to the violated throne of his father. Nick later won first place at the Hofstra Shakespeare Festival for his portrayal of the young Danish prince.

On the evenings of Friday, January 31, and Saturday, February 1, 1964, the Brooklyn Prep Dramatics Society under the direction of Mr. Charles Winans presented William Shakespeare's "Tragedy of Hamlet". Before two sell-out audiences which totaled over 2,000 people, this year's Dramatics Society more than adequately proved that it could maintain the high quality of excellence which had been achieved in Mr. Winans' previous Brooklyn Prep productions. Excellent performances were given by the entire cast, especially the principal players: Hamlet, Nicholas Coti, '64; Claudius, Louis Marett, '64; Polonius, Michael Scimeca, '64; Ophelia, Frank Rykowski, '64; Laertes, Steven Whitson, '64; Gertrude, Frank Lamberta, '64; and Horatio, Lawrence Harrington, '64.

This year the Prep Dramatics Society was indeed fortunate to be allowed to use the excellent seating and acoustical facilities of the Monsignor Ross Auditorium of Bishop McDonnell Memorial High School. The generosity of the administration of Bishop McDonnell High School and the patience and hospitality of its students were greatly appreciated by the entire student body of the Prep.

This Spring the Brooklyn Prep Dramatics Society again competed in and won the annual Hofstra University Shakespeare Festival in which the Prep Players have won both the production and acting awards every year since the festival's inception in 1962—an example of the stature reached by the Brooklyn Prep Dramatics Society.

The dashing young Laertes, played by Steve Whitson, talks things over with his delicate sister Ophelia, portrayed by Frank Rykowski.

Dramatics Society Co-President, Lou Marett, rendered a very distinguished performance as the murderer-king, Claudius.

The tension of the play shows in the snarling boldness of Hamlet, the fearful hatred of Claudius, and the anguished expression of Gertrude, who was played by Frank Lamberta.

Claudius confers with his right hand man, Polonius. Mike Scimeca's performance of this role was truly one of the show's highlights.

The air is chilled by one of Hamlet's brusque remarks to Ophelia.

Director of the Society's production of "Hamlet", Mr. Charles Winans, pauses with stage crew member Joe DiMattina to watch a well-done scene from the wings.

The hero of the play, Frederick, protests against admonitions of his nursemaid Ruth and the Pirate King. Carl Palumbo played Frederick, Rich Zanoni, the Pirate King, and Bob Laudicino, the affectionate Ruth.

These little cuties, Bob Weigl, Mike Carlucci and Vic Kahwaty, were three of the Major-General's twenty photogenic daughters.

Borne aloft by his loyal crew, the king of the pirate band praises the glories of his vocation.

THE PIRATES OF PENZANCE

Once again the Brooklyn Prep players displayed their versatility as they turned from the forceful and pensive "Hamlet" to the gay and carefree Gilbert and Sullivan satire, "The Pirates of Penzance". Among the principal characters, outstanding performances were given by seniors Joseph Stewart (Major-General), Richard Zanoni (Pirate King), Robert Laudicino (Ruth), and Elwood Collins (Samuel). Junior Carl Palumbo excelled in the hero's role as Frederick. Greg Rabuffo showed promise for the future in the role of the Sergeant of Police. The most difficult character to portray was masterfully interpreted by freshman Raymond Grant who, along with several other underclassmen, appeared as one of the daughters of General Stanley.

Perhaps the most arduous task, that of arranging the score and accompanying the cast and chorus, was professionally handled by senior Frank Rykowski.

Mr. John Amandolare, S.J., in his first year as musical director, was assisted by Mr. George Hunt, S.J., and Father William Joyce, S.J. The two performances given were acclaimed widely by the entire student body.

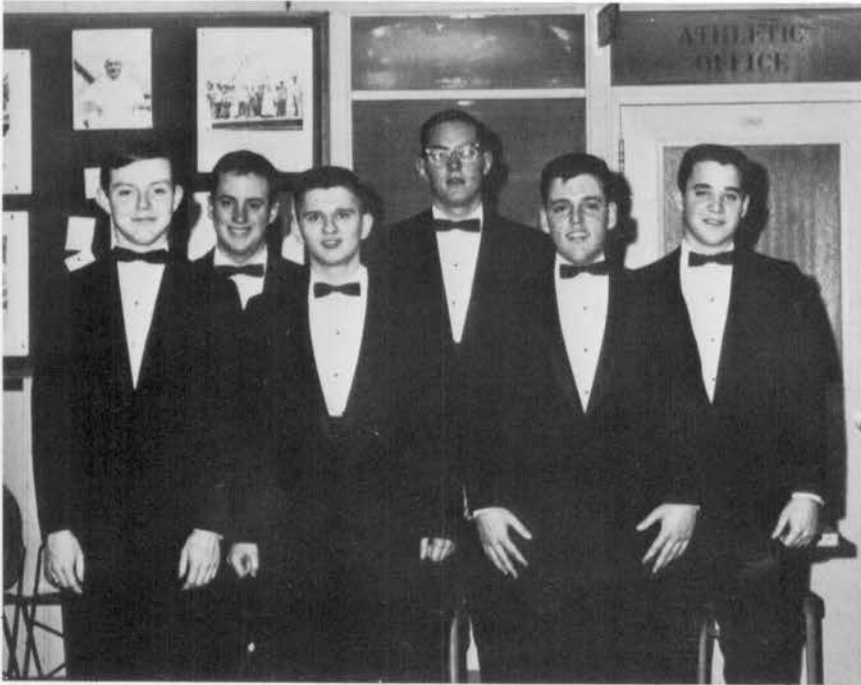

One of the more aggressive pirates, Samuel, played by Woody Collins, appears to have a difference of opinion with Major-General Stanley, brilliantly played by Joe Stewart.

A tremendous chorus of strong-willed lawmen declare with their leader, Greg Rabuffo, that a policeman's lot is not usually felicitous.

Dramatics Business Staff

The "Pirate" ushers, Frank Lawless, Jim Kielt, Business Staff Chairman Bob Rutkowski, Gerry Murphy, Bill Wolfersberger, and Bill Boyle pose for the yearbook camera. Mr. Rutkowski and his staff expertly handled the financial and publicity details of the plays, and without their help the productions could not have been presented.

An integral part of play productions is ticket selling. Here we see Jim Mangi, Rich Sbaschnig, and Larry Pape enjoying their arduous task.

Stage Crew

Stage Crew President John Griffin skillfully handles the lighting controls behind stage. As a four year veteran at his work, he has contributed much of his time and talent to the productions of Prep's plays.

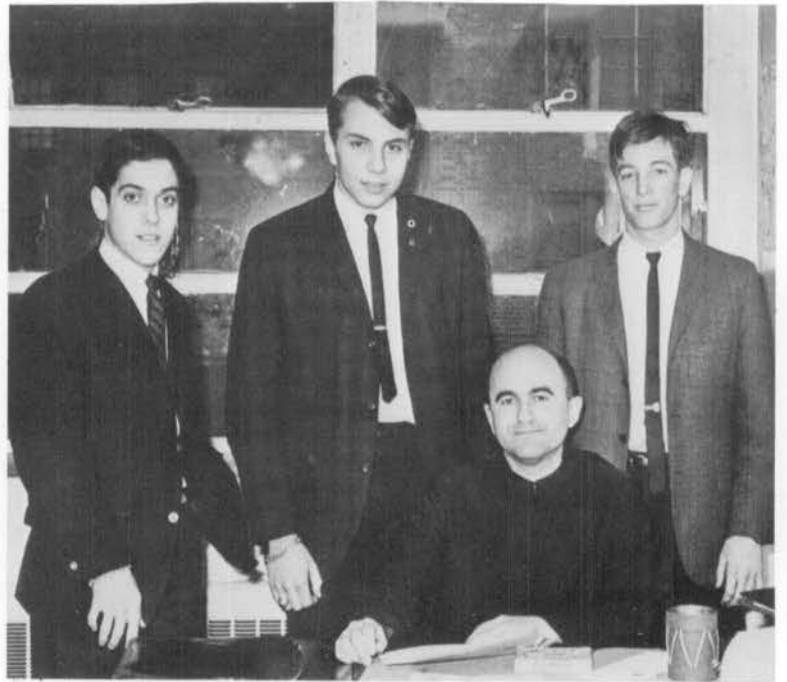

Crew members Tony Barone, Joe DiMattina, Rich Hay, John Griffin, and Kurt Choutka rush to build some scenery for "Hamlet".

Orators Plan Ahead

The keynote for the success of the Oratory Society in the future is the eloquence of the current freshmen and sophomores and the coaching ability of the capable veteran seniors. In the molding hands of President Al Fusco, Vice-President Marty Cahill and Secretary Lou Marett, the Oratory Society has doubled its enrollment in one year alone. The natural ability of such underclassmen as Dan Hanson, Joe Abularrage, Joe McCabe, and Joe Troisi has been formed and polished by these capable senior mainstays.

The victories have been quite impressive. Lou Marett took first place in the New York State Speech Eliminations and made it to the semi-final round in the National Forensic League Tournament. Al Fusco took a running spot in the Holy Ghost Council K. of C. district contest. Freshman Joe Abularrage took a second-place trophy in one and a finalist trophy in another of the Catholic Forensic League's five contests.

We expect to hear a lot more about these underclassmen in the coming years.

Secretary Lou Marett, President Al Fusco, Vice-President Marty Cahill, and their mentor, Father DiGiacomo, meet to prepare for their next contest.

Future

The past year was one of rebuilding for the Debating Society. The usual long list of victories in major tournaments was missing, yet the season was not without its bright spots and genuine accomplishments.

A young varsity team that had only two seniors, veterans Ray Connolly and Ron Kurylowicz, compiled a creditable record; but the best news came from the novice ranks, where a formidable array of sophomores and freshmen ran up an imposing list of triumphs. One four-some—sophs Cliff Kazakauskas, Joe Troisi and Matt Costello, plus freshman Rich Mazloom, took first place in the diocesan novice class B tourney in February, and two months later placed second in the New York State novice championships in Albany. Another strong novice team, composed of Mike Ryan, Tom Austin, Gerry Mule and Tom Hakala, placed third in the diocesan novice tourney and fourth in the State district eliminations.

As we went to press, the first varsity tournament victory was registered, as Ryan, Demarest, Hakala and Connolly topped 14 schools in the Poly Prep Invitational Tourney.

Connolly served as president of the society, while Ed Madara completed a second term as secretary. Said Father DiGiacomo, the coach, in a late-season interview: "The team hit its peak late this year, and most of the stars will be back next time. We can hardly wait for next year."

Junior Bob Kelley gives his views on Social Security benefits.

A great responsibility lies with the yearbook of any school, for it has for its purpose the huge task of compiling and presenting the doings of every facet and activity in the entire school and presenting them in as attractive, interesting and comprehensive manner as possible. Clearly this is an arduous task, but unfortunately one lacking proper understanding, even by those who are supposed to be doing the work.

This year's staff "labored" under a grave misunderstanding. They thought that a yearbook is a book that takes one whole year to produce. Calendars and deadlines to the contrary, this idea persisted, and the staff suddenly found itself a few months behind schedule. Editors suddenly started returning from the four corners of their more lucrative enterprises, but found to their dismay that during this same period the photo staff had managed to ruin most of the few pictures they had taken. The job ahead in the yearbook's cramped office loomed as a menacing impossibility, and the staff was on the verge of despair. But they eventually decided to refuse the distinction of being the only graduating class of Brooklyn Prep to fail to publish a yearbook. Work was somehow begun, and to everyone's surprise it was not as distasteful or difficult as had been the conjecture.

and fable, lent his advice as an ex-editor to the staff's efforts. However, nothing could have been accomplished without Editor-in-Chief Bob Rutkowski, who occasionally honored us with his presence by sacrificing some of his other money-making activities. Layout Editor Rich Sbaschnig was also invaluable, even though he knows nothing about yearbook layout. Associate Editor John Duffy showed much promise for the future but unfortunately he was a senior. Sports Editors Tom Harmon and Art Ramsdell, both victims of a guilty conscience, frequently turned up in the strangest places, sometimes even in the yearbook office. Copy Editor Joe Dugan, when not studying, typed a page of copy within two hours. Lenny Doran, the only one on the staff for four years and now merely Managing Editor, kept up the pressure for more efficient work-rules and less feather-bedding. Roy Dado, Ray Siwec, Gene Keogh, Gerard Murphy, George Maddaloni, and Bill Brennan comprised the senior staff who also bore a hand in the good try. Rich Loehfelm, Rich Rotondi, Bob Cassano, Jeremiah Murray, and Vin Sullivan were the junior staff who, because of a noticeable dearth of talent, seem to be in line for some of next year's decision-making and who have already sworn to carry on in the glorious tradition of the present yearbook, with a few changes, of course.

Associate editor John Duffy attempts to quiet the throng during one of the last days of the business drive.

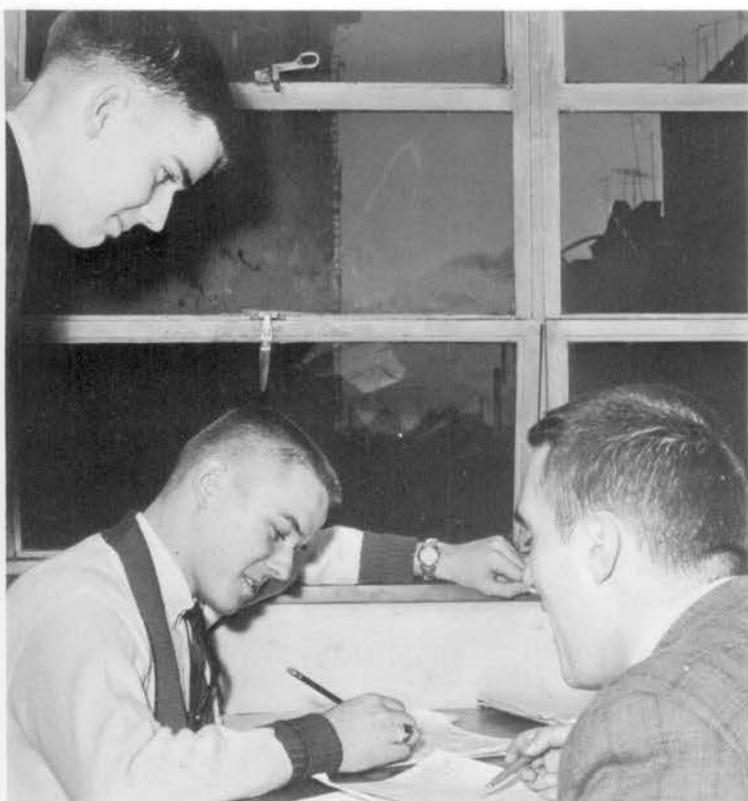

Layout Editor Richard Sbaschnig uses our new light-box when marking the proper size on the photographs.

Counting the business drive returns became a familiar task for Gene Keogh.

Although darkness falls on Crown Heights, Ray Siwiec and Roy Dado continue proofreading, and Managing Editor Lenny Doran continues managing.

Sports Editor Tom Harmon is about to tell his colleague Art Ramsdell what he thinks of his choice of photos for the football section.

Mr. Jurich, S.J.; retiring moderator of the Blue Book, on the verge of deadline despair, tries to think of some good explanation for the current debacle.

People who should know claim that Copy Editor Joe Dugan has never made a typing mistake which he hasn't been able to disguise completely.

Assistant Editor-in-Chief Jim Lyons consults with Editor-in-Chief Marty Cahill over a difficult problem in the next issue of the Blue Jug.

Blue Jug Motto Is "Change"

Staff members Ed Esteva and John Heavey proofread articles.

In their first issue the editors of the Blue Jug set down the goals of Prep's newspaper for 1964: "We want to make the Blue Jug a student newspaper for the student. By doing so, we wish to advance, ultimately, an atmosphere of comradeship and pride of belonging to that intangible something called school spirit—which makes Brooklyn Prep far more, and much better, than just a school . . ." In implementing these goals, the editors made many changes in the style, format, and content of the Blue Jug. The first and most striking of these changes appeared when the first issue came out sporting a new and distinctive banner. The "Men of the Month" column appeared in the second issue to supplement the traditional "Spotlight."

At the first staff meeting of the year, Editor-in-Chief Marty Cahill outlined the basic stylistic changes for all staff writers. He emphasized the need for light, readable material to replace the usual hackneyed copy. To achieve this goal, by-lines were awarded to all writers whose articles proved acceptable.

The by-word for the Blue Jug in 1964 was "change." The paper we read this year was different from anything that we had seen in the past. To change according to the times is true journalistic spirit and a proven necessity, the modern ideal.

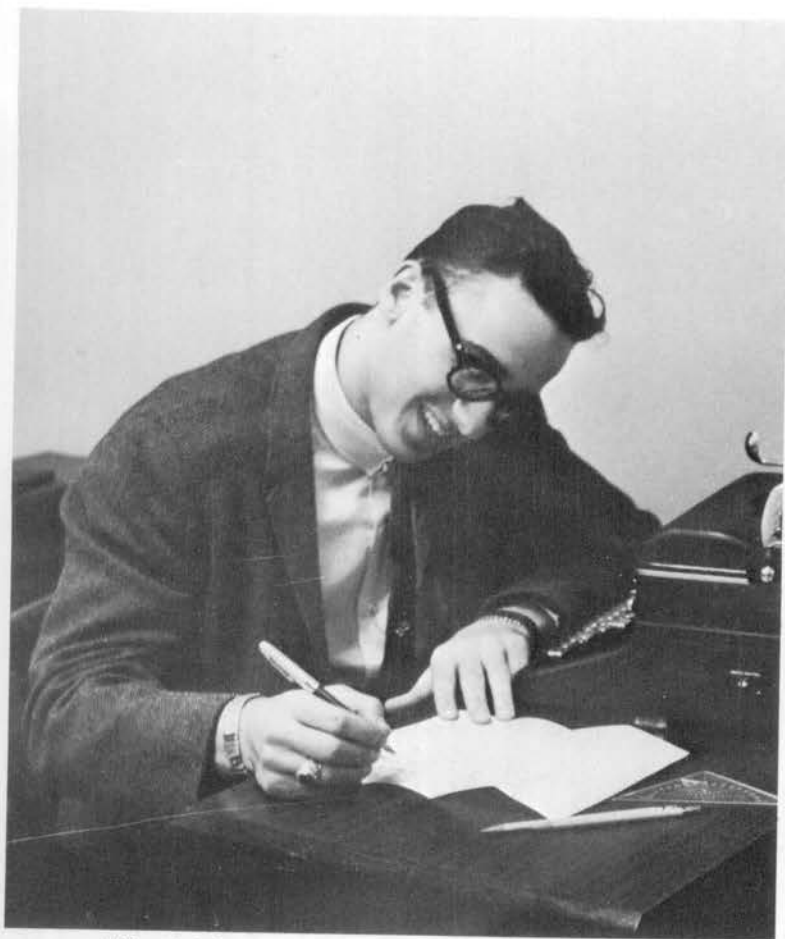

Politicking Editor-in-Chief Marty Cahill did a fine job and was responsible for many of the changes. Of course the aid of Mr. Amandolare, the moderator, was invaluable, as well as the efforts of Assistant Editor-in-Chief Jim Lyons. Sports Editor Dave Long, Feature Editor Vin Pafumi, Copy Editor Jim Kielt, Managing Editor Mike Caiafa and Exchange Editor Vinny Petrosino, also proved to be fine journalists. The entire staff, composed mostly of underclassmen has also helped to carry out the new ideas and policies.

Magazine

"Is this where I pay for the Blue Book?"

"No, this is the Magazine. The Blue Book is next-door!"

The exact location of the Mag office is a well-kept secret, but in a spacious, though far from plush, office on the first floor beats the heart of Prep's literary consciousness.

The original concept of the Brooklyn Prep Magazine, now going into its fourteenth year in publication, was to express the artistic, literary creativity of the student body. This concept has not changed, but rather is the foundation and purpose of Prep's magazine. Typewriters, copy, layout, pictures, illustrations, and a great deal of thought and work all blend together into one complete issue which can mirror Prep's whole intellectual tone and attitude. It is the Magazine staff's job to uncover, or discover, as the case may be, any literary talent around Brooklyn Prep, and to put it to its best possible use.

The Magazine meets many new faces and ideas each year. It must be able to adapt itself to new personalities. Therefore, it is constantly changing in style and thought. It is, however, uniquely the same in one major aspect. In the Mag's stories, articles, poetry, etc., it is we, the student body, who are expressing our own thoughts, emotions, and experiences. Like all of Prep's other activities, the Magazine continues to mold us into a common bond.

After reading this, one might think we are being funny, since, when passing the Mag office, one notices the unhurried, relaxed atmosphere, and the generally uncluttered appearance of the room along with the absence of typewriters, papers, and people. The reason for this is that much work can be done more conveniently at home, or so they tell us. Possibly this is the reason for the infrequent editions of the Magazine.

But be that as it may, everything can be really blamed on the advice of Moderators, Messrs. Fordi and Hunt, and especially the devoted work of Editor-in-Chief Frank Lawless. Card-writing Associate Editor Tom Schoeck and returning Fiction Editor Joe Ball contributed much to the effort. Thanks should also be given to other editors such as Bohdan Oryshkevich, and the rest of the devoted staff for their toils in producing a truly fine publication.

Fair

The band, which has sometimes been thought of as Prep's dark horse, is now off and running. The current enrollment is larger than any in Prep's history, and the prospects for a larger enrollment are continually growing because of the new interest of the underclassmen. In fact, the band is now recognized as one of the finest in the diocese and, because of this, it was invited to perform at the New York World's Fair.

Under the able leadership of Mr. Caufield, S.J., the band has played numbers that are usually rather difficult for high school bands to play. From "More" and "Blame it on the Bossa Nova" to "Kismet," the band has travelled a smooth, continuous road. President Nick Lombardo, a trumpet soloist, and Vice-President Kevin Buck, a drummer, have been responsible for the upsurge in the band's interest and have been instrumental in the formation of the Jazz Band. Because of this able leadership, the band performed admirably at the annual Spring Concert.

However, the hidden reason for the band's success at both the World's Fair and the Spring Concert is the conductor, Mr. Curt Roberts, and our assistant moderator, Mr. Goodwin. Mr. Roberts, a versatile musician himself, conducts the rehearsals, gives private lessons to young hopefuls, and arranges many of the band's classical numbers.

Because of these combined factors, the Brooklyn Prep Band can expect continuing success for its long season next year.

The band practices hard for their upcoming performances at the World's Fair.

Dennis Gorra and Tom Mauro prepare to develop the long overdue Blue Book pictures.

The Photography Club is burdened with an impossible task, for without its services the literary publications of Prep would fall into total collapse. From September to June, its members must tirelessly provide decent photos for all three of the Prep publications and therefore must cover every significant event in the school year, ranging from football practice to debate contests. In addition, this year's Photo Club was also handicapped with a lack of experience since it was largely composed of juniors and sophomores. The president, Tom Mauro, and the two moderators, Mr. Jurich and Mr. Ell, provided the needed maturity to guide the club to a productive and thriving year. Regardless of any lampooning on the part of the school newspaper, the staff composed of John Ranieri, Dennis Gorra, Richard Mount, Robert Motley, Andrew Paradiso, and Kenneth Foulke, put in much work and did not intentionally delve into the realm of modern art.

John Ranieri exposes all the negatives to the light.

Art Club Fostered at Prep

Since September the newly-formed Art Club has been producing posters for the purpose of increasing the spirit of Prep students in the various school activities. Under the capable direction of Mr. Sullivan, a handful of students has built the Prep Art Club from scratch.

At the beginning of the year the staff had only four active members; however, increasing demands called for more members. This was done at the beginning of the year. Mr. Sullivan prepared and equipped the Art Room, which was to serve as a center of all of the Club's works. All necessary art supplies and drawing boards were obtained, and thousands of examples of professional advertising art were made available for reference. Before the end of the school year, the Art Club had announced the following events: the Sports Dinner, both of Prep's dramatic presentations, the Blue Book Business Drive, and its own Art Club Contest.

SANITAS

The school seal proclaims that bodily well-being is one of the goals of Brooklyn Prep. This goal is implemented primarily by the physical education program of the curriculum, but for the students we will see in the following pages this goal has much more meaning. Many hours of grueling practice have resulted in the perfecting of many athletic skills on field and court and in the pool. These skills were tested again and again in rugged competition. The results? More victories than defeats, and more reason for being proud of Brooklyn Prep. By all calculations, this has been an unusually successful year for our extracurricular athletic program.

Demonstrated excellence in many different sports, together with some pleasant surprises, outweighed the inevitable disappointments of defeat. The class of 1964 can be justifiably proud of its part in this year of athletic success.

ATHLETICS

'63 Eagles

After breaking through the Kaydets line, top scorer Bob Schiebel encounters some secondary opposition.

After a poor '62 season (2 wins, 6 losses), people wondered if Prep could make that long, hard leap back to the stature of a winning team in just one year. The Eagles answered that question in their first game of the season by sending a speedy St. Agnes team to a 19-6 defeat. The defensive line was especially effective, causing the Stag quarterback to hurry his passes, one of which was intercepted by defensive halfback Joe Pulito. He spotted the goal line 60 yards away and didn't stop until he had sprinted across untouched. A long drive downfield, highlighted by the jarring running of fullback Bob Schiebel, was climaxed when Brian Curtis dashed through a gaping hole made by the left side of the line for a T.D. from 12 yards out. Then St. Agnes was practically handed a touchdown when one of Prep's defensive safety men interfered with a Stag receiver on the Eagles' one-yard line, and St. Agnes took the ball that last yard themselves to make the score read 12-6 in Prep's favor. Later, the Eagles scored again when they gave fullback Bob Schiebel the perfect combination—a football and a hole to run through—and, true to form, he streaked down the last 15 yards for the score. Halfbacks Tim Fenlon and Dave Shanks both excelled, averaging over

6 yards per carry during the game. Above all, the only possible word for the play of the Eagle linemen was "tremendous."

Prep then met Don Bosco High School in Ramsey, New Jersey. After Terry Wolfe carried the ball over for a quick six points for the opposition, Bob Schiebel returned to climax a drive by diving over from the one-yard line. Don Bosco tallied again and the half-time score was 12-7. Early in the second half, Brooklyn drove down to the Bosco 28-yard line after nice runs by Curtis and Shanks, but then bogged down and had to relinquish the ball. After quickly recovering a Bosco fumble, Prep slumped again and the Jersey team took over, scoring quickly on a 60-yard pass-play. Don Bosco's quarterback Kosma later passed for another T.D. Then Prep put together a 30-yard run by Shanks and a 47-yard Kelley-to-Fenlon pass for the score. Prep recovered a Bosco fumble and Kelley threw again, this time to Curtis, and Prep was moving again, but unfortunately, so was the clock. The final score found Don Bosco in command of a 25-14 lead. Among the outstanding players for Prep were tackle Tony Manz, who recovered a fumble, and quarterback Ray Siwec, who gained 90 yards by passing and running.

Return To Power

This season, three-year varsity quarterback Bob Kelley punted as well as he passed.

End Mike Heaney hauls down a pass in the Fordham game.

Speedy halfback Dave Shanks follows All-Conference guard Jeff Lynch downfield.

Eager to return to the winning column, Prep then joined battle with New Dorp High School, a well-established football power from Staten Island. After a hard-fought, well-played first half, the Prep led by a 7-6 score. New Dorp bounced back in the second half, showing the slower Eagles their heels. Just as in the Don Bosco game, Prep was hurt by poor pass-defense, as the normally ground-minded Centrals took to the air. When the game ended, New Dorp led their disappointed rivals, 19-7.

Sporting a soggy 1-2 record, Prep was picked to be massacred by an undefeated Fordham team. The Eagles knew two things: that this was their first C.F.C. game and that the injured Bob Schiebel would miss the game. Prep beat Fordham, 18-6. Junior Joe Pulito, substituting at fullback, scored two touchdowns for Prep and won the trophy for being the game's outstanding player. Prep's other touchdown was scored by Tom Hession, who drove across from three yards out after Tim Fenlon's spectacular catch of a 40-yard pass from Siwec. Prep defense was especially strong, led by Tom Harmon, Jeff Lynch, Tony Crimi, and Tony Manz. The better part of the Eagles' yardage came via the air, with Siwec and Kelley passing successfully eight times to combined forces of Mike Heaney, Timmy Fenlon, Jack McGowan, and Bob Fedoryszyn. Tom Hession, also a quick-handed defensive halfback, stopped the little Rams in their tracks twice with his key interceptions.

The next game saw the now confident Eagle team facing a speedy Seton Hall team. Seton Hall promptly scored to lead the surprised but unshaken Prep team. Then the Prep offense started to move and the situation was completely reversed. Ray Siwiec ran and threw for 96 yards, and had a 50-yard T.D. on an interception called back due to a penalty. End Charlie Scheer added 50 yards of his own by grabbing two Eagle passes. Tim Fenlon climaxed a drive highlighted by his own 30-yard scamper. Schiebel scored early in the second half by gaining 22 of his 79 yards on one play, right up the middle and into paydirt for the T.D. The hard blocking, "gang" tackling Eagle line, after completely subduing the opposition, opened up a gaping hole for Curtis as he scored from the 8-yard line for the final T.D., making it Prep 22, Seton Hall 6.

The next game was against Xavier at Randalls Island, and the Eagles, led by the passing of Bob Kelley and the running of the game's most valuable player, Bob Schiebel, went on to a resounding victory. The line play, led by such formidable players as Rich Mount, Neil Corry, Jeff Lynch, Tony Manz, Jack McGowan, Charlie Scheer, and Tom Harmon, was superb. Schiebel kept the game hopping with 165 yards gained, and halfback Tim Fenlon was unstoppable as he ran for 53 yards and caught passes for another 110 yards. Tackle Tom Harmon surprised everyone by hauling in two aerials for substantial gains, and the final gun sounded with Tom Hession holding the pigskin in the Xavier end-zone after catching a crossover pass from Kelley, making the final score: Prep 24, Xavier 0.

The traditional contest between the Eagles of Brooklyn Prep and the Redmen of St. John's Prep proved to be very well-fought to the very last seconds. Early in the game, St. John's picked off an Eagle aerial and then drove 25 yards for the touchdown. After sophomore Pete McCall ran back the following kickoff to midfield, Prep drove down the next 50 yards behind the running of Tim Fenlon and Bob Schiebel, who carried over for the score and two extra points. The half ended with the score 8-6. In the second half, the aroused Eagle team took the ball and drove downfield after Kelley passed 25 yards to Fenlon, with Bob Schiebel going over again. Captain Tom Harmon caught Bob Kelley's pass over the middle for the extra two points. Redskin sophomore John Carberry grabbed the kickoff and raced untouched down the field for the T.D. The Eagles' offense then bogged down and fell back before the driving Redskins, who picked up a Prep fumble and then churned out one more touch-down to defeat Prep by a score of 20-16.

Strong

Although this year's J.V. squad was not able to chalk up a winning record, the team showed itself to be rich in varsity material. Such outstanding players as Joe Russo, Mike O'Hara and Pete McCall, as well as linemen like Pete Stevens and Kevin Serrapede, will prove to be tough varsity ball players next season.

Prep's first contest was against a strong Mount St. Michael team. Weakened by injuries to three valuable men, Prep lost its opener to the Mounties. The Prep men revenged this loss one week later by defeating a strong Brooklyn Tech team. The J.V. Eagles showed remarkable spirit and rugged play. The passing of O'Hara, the running of Russo and McCall, and the pass-catching of Serrapede proved to be too much for the Engineers, and the Eagles tallied their first win of the season with a 14-6 victory. Prep did not play again until two weeks later when they met their arch-rivals, the Redmen of St. John's Prep. Because of the injuries to O'Hara and Severin the Johnnies were able to upset the balance and nudge out Prep, 10-6. Next week a highly spirited Fordham Prep squad won by catching the Eagles off-guard in the first half.

With the end of the scheduled Frosh season, the rookie squad joined the J.V. ranks for the Xavier game. The Kaydets were able to get a 6-0 lead in the first half of a very muddy game. Playing on both offense and defense, the Prep Frosh could not do much in either direction, and fell before the very strong Xavier team. Nine days later, the Eagles broke their losing streak when they met Poly Prep. Quarterback Mike O'Hara played an exceptional game on offense and defense. The Poly squad had a hard time against the Brooklyn defense. The Eagles won the game by a 14-7 score. In the final game, Prep met Thomas Jefferson. Pete McCall played a fine game at quarterback, and Joe Russo excelled at halfback. Brian Butler set up the winning T.D. The spirited Prep offense and defense finished the season with this 20-16 victory over the powerful Jefferson squad.

Halfback Joe Bilello sets his eyes on paydirt as he breaks away from would-be St. John's tacklers.

Frosh Tally 1-3 Record

Bolstered by good coaching, plenty of talent, and a strong desire to win, Coach Kelly molded this year's Freshman Football team. A promise of a successful season was foreseen when the Frosh coasted to a 6-0 victory over St. Francis in a pre-season scrimmage.

Confident after the victory, the Eaglets were soon brought down to earth by a strong squad from Berner High School. Prep's offense bogged down and never did get rolling. Berner scored two touchdowns and defeated the game Eaglets by a score of 14-0.

Angered by the loss, the Frosh then met the speedy squad of Poly Prep. An early touchdown by Poly put Prep on the losing side at the start of the fourth quarter. However, during the final four minutes the Frosh began to come alive. Quarterback Tom Corridan passed to Ernie Vaughn for Prep's first tally. On the following play, Prep successfully completed an on-side kick when Mike Durkin downed a Frank Wolfer kick. On the next play from scrimmage, halfback Dick Cummings scampered for a 40 yard touchdown. Fullback Gene Vascatto scored on the conversion, and Prep won by a 14-8 margin.

Against Chaminade, Prep was completely outclassed by the Flyers and dropped the game by a 25-0 score. Despite the score, Coach Kelly felt that this was the strongest game of the Eaglets' season.

The Frosh then closed out their season by losing to a powerful St. Agnes team by a score of 35-21. In spite of a disappointing season, the freshman team fulfilled its purpose: it has begun the preparation of future Prep Varsity football players.

Bob Berger (32), Gerry Jones (49), Ernie Vaughn (15), Gene Vascotto (22), Pat Trilly (24), and James Roden (27) take a breather from the hard play of the Chaminade game.

Spirited

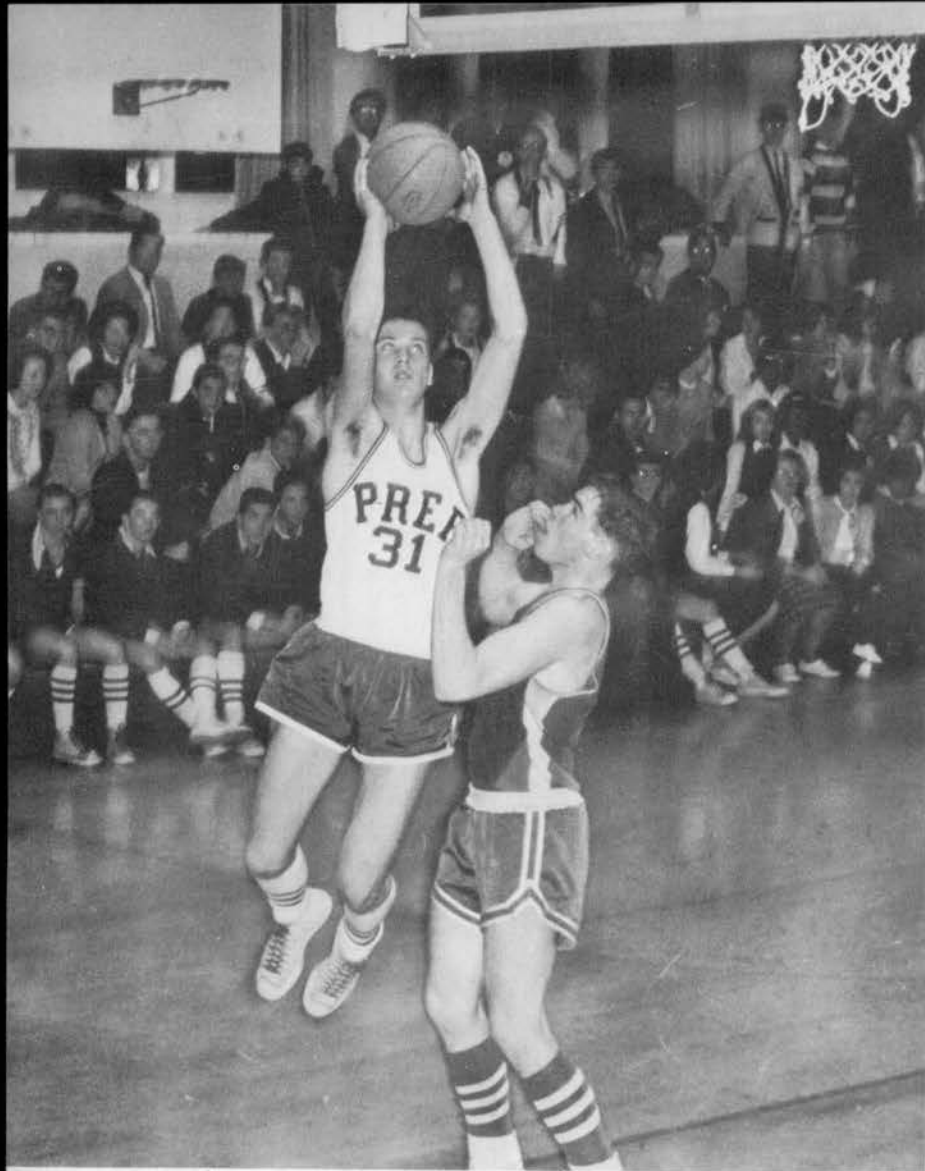

Pre-season predictions for the Brooklyn Prep varsity basketball team were not optimistic this year. Sportswriters and observers were typically height-conscious. When a team's "tall men" average about 6'2", no one expects a winner. But the Eagles, led by their "iron man" five of Kevin Loftus, Paul Walsh, Pete Gillen, and Co-captains Jim O'Brien and Charlie Kasper, showed the opposition that hustle, not height, and talent, not experience, are the winning factors of any team.

After a resounding victory over the ancient Eagles of the B.P. Alumni, Prep met a surprisingly strong team from Regis. Despite Kasper's 18 points, the Prep varsity dropped the game by 4 points.

The Eagles then beat the Lions of Loughlin as Kasper, Walsh, O'Brien, and Loftus hit for double figures. St. John's fell before the Eagles and Charlie Kasper with his 10 field goals and 7 free throws. After defeating a swift Trinity squad on a real team effort, Prep beat Cathedral on the sharpshooting efforts of Kasper and O'Brien.

In the first game of the Jesuit Christmas Tournament, the Eagles downed an accurate Xavier team with Pete Gillen, Paul Walsh, and Charlie Kasper leading the way. With 15 point contributions from Gillen and Kasper, Prep rolled over its next Jesuit rival, McQuaid High School from Rochester, N.Y. Despite 15 points by Jim O'Brien, Prep lost the following game by a single point to place second in the holiday tournament.

The following contest saw Prep meeting the league-leading Flyers of Chaminade. Although Chaminade sharpshooter Ed Kissane netted 29 points, Prep hustled throughout the game and won by one as O'Brien threw in 20 and Loftus contributed 15.

Co-captain Jim O'Brien awes the opposition as he takes a jump shot from well inside the key.

The intense expressions in a time-out strategy conference show why this unit was a winner.

All the attention is focused on sharpshooter Pete Gillen as he adds two more to Prep's score.

Eagles Reach Semi-Finals

After Jim O'Brien's 29 points downed St. Augustine, Prep won a tough one from the ferocious but unsuccessful Loughlin Lions. The Eagles then downed St. Augustine as Kev Loftus starred defensively and Kasper poured in 25.

McClancy outshot the Eagles in their next encounter to keep Prep in second place in the league standings with an 8-2 record. Pete Gillen carved up Cathedral with 19 points on his precision set shots. The Eagles then played host to a fast-improving St. John's team. The Redmen gave Prep a good battle, but not good enough to match the likes of O'Brien with 26 and Kasper with 20.

The next contest was a catastrophe for the Prep as Molloy annihilated the Eagles by 22 points. Prep rebounded from its previous defeat to defeat Xavier by 10 points.

After downing the Terriers of St. Francis on stellar performances by Walsh, O'Brien, and Kasper, Prep met Chaminade in a game for second place in the Brooklyn-Queens division of the C.H.S.A.A. This time Kissane's 33 points were too much for the Eagles, who dropped the game by a 65-57 score. The Eagles then met Mater Christi, defeating that squad by a 14 point margin.

In the quarterfinals for the city championship, Prep showed its prowess once again, against the very strong team of LaSalle. With four of its starters hitting for double figures, Prep could not be stopped and beat LaSalle, 62-48.

Paul Walsh hustles for the ball against McQuaid.

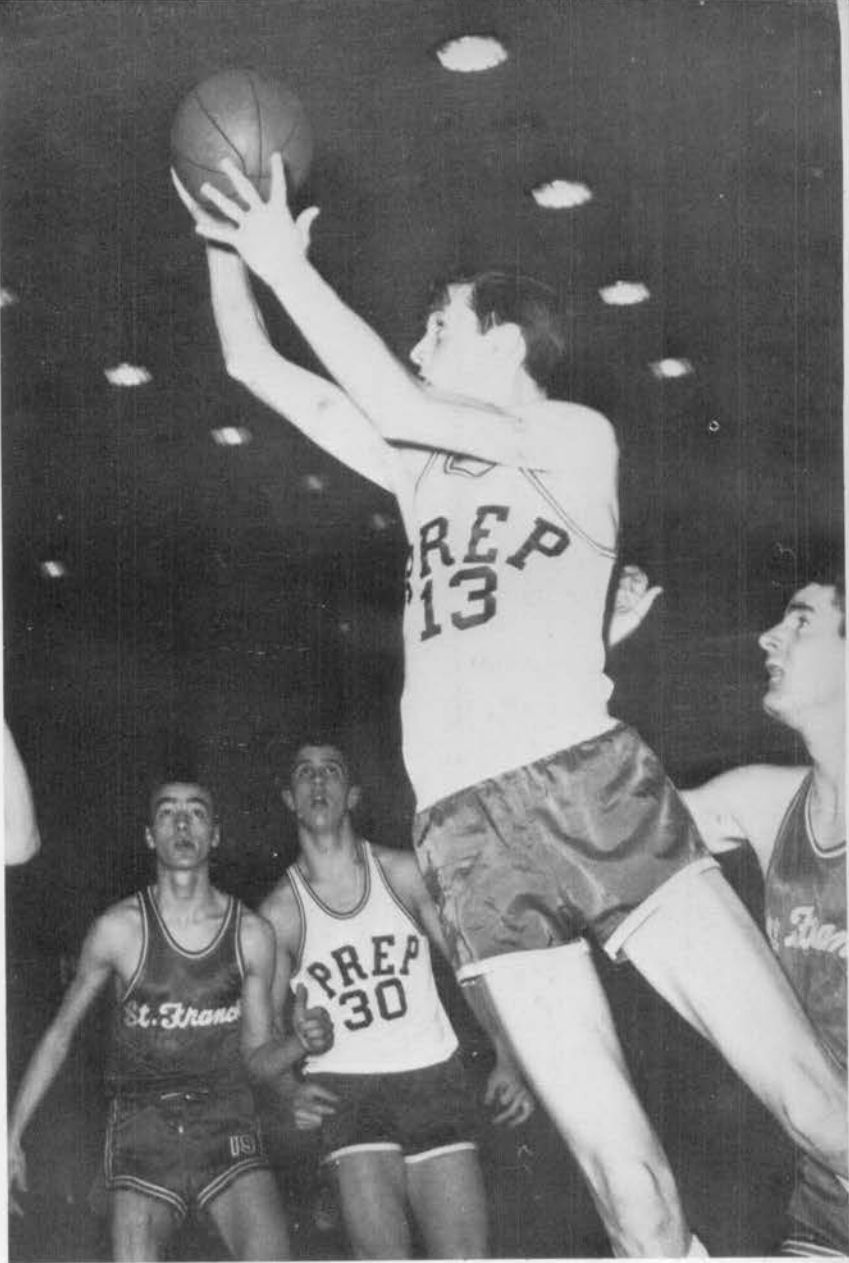

The semi-finals saw Prep matched against its most important and most successful opponent, Archbishop Molloy. Throughout the game Kevin Loftus showed the outstanding defensive talents that eventually won him a place on the five-man all-tournament team. But Molloy's Bogad and Trunfio were too much for the Eagles, who, despite their fighting spirit, dropped this close and hard-fought contest. The dispirited Eagles lost their final contest, for third place in the city, to Rice. Once again Loftus was an outstanding two-way performer.

Indicative of the fine talent that the Eagles displayed this season were the all-city awards and honorable mentions garnered by its players. Jim O'Brien was selected by the Daily News as a member of the first team Brooklyn-Queens division. Charlie Kasper was also chosen by nearly every newspaper as a member of its All-City team, in some capacity, and his fine average of 16 points per game speaks highly of his talents. Kevin Loftus was cited by many newspapers, and his selection to the season's most important tournament team was particularly outstanding. Pete Gillen and Paul Walsh, consistently fine performers throughout the season, were also cited as outstanding by such papers as the Journal-American and the Tablet.

Much credit for the team's success goes to their truly outstanding coach, Mr. Jack Lawn. Throughout the season he constantly worked hard to improve his players, and his fine work was justly recognized when he was cited as Coach of the Year by the Tablet.

Charlie Kasper is untouchable as he drops one in on a perfect fast break.

Key Loftus outjumps the opposition to haul in a rebound against St. Francis.

Eagle J.V.

Led by its high scorer Gary Uhl, the Brooklyn Prep Junior Varsity basketball team won its season opener against the Loughlin Lions. After losing its next four games to Holy Cross, St. John's, Bishop Ford, and Trinity, it seemed as if it were going to be one of those futile years for the Eagles. In its next contest, Prep, led by the pin-point shooting and constant hustling of Gene Carty and Joe Russo, came back to defeat Cathedral by a comfortable 15 point margin. The Prep dropped the following game with Chaminade by one point in a real heartbreaker.

The hungry Prep squad then put down its next two opponents, aided by strong contributions from Pete McCall, John Hartnett, and Paul Atanasio. After a poor showing against McClancy, Prep rebounded to defeat Nazareth on a powerful 22 point performance by John Hartnett. Despite a tremendous showing by Gary Uhl, Prep dropped its following three games. Brian Butler, Gene Carty, and Greg Foley all contributed fine performances, but Prep still could not stop St. John's, Molloy, or Xavier, who beat the Eagles by one point.

In its next to last game, Uhl's 36 points led the team to a solid victory over the Terriers of St. Francis. Prep's final game and victory came against a speedy team from Mater Christi.

Paul Atanasio eludes a St. Francis defender and drops in two points en route to a solid 67-51 victory.

Frosh Rebound

Led by the fine shooting of Francis De Peter and Raymond Battistoni, the frosh five succeeded in defeating the Raiders from Regis in their first encounter in the CHSAA competition. The fruits of victory were not tasted too long, however, for the Eaglets failed to overcome their next three opponents and were beaten by the tough squads of St. John's and Trinity. It was during the second game with Trinity that Frank Wolfer in a great effort scored 23 points although the team was beaten. Wolfer lived up to the expectations of his coach, Fr. O'Connor, and played an important part in the wins over St. Leonard's and St. Augustine's. Frank boosted his point-score by racking up 19 against Xavier in their home court.

The next game of note took place when the Eaglets flew to the den of the Loughlin Lion. The score was close through the greater part of the game, but led by the sharpshooting of Ed Gaffney, who threw in 18 points, the Brooklyn Prep squad pulled out an exciting, much desired victory.

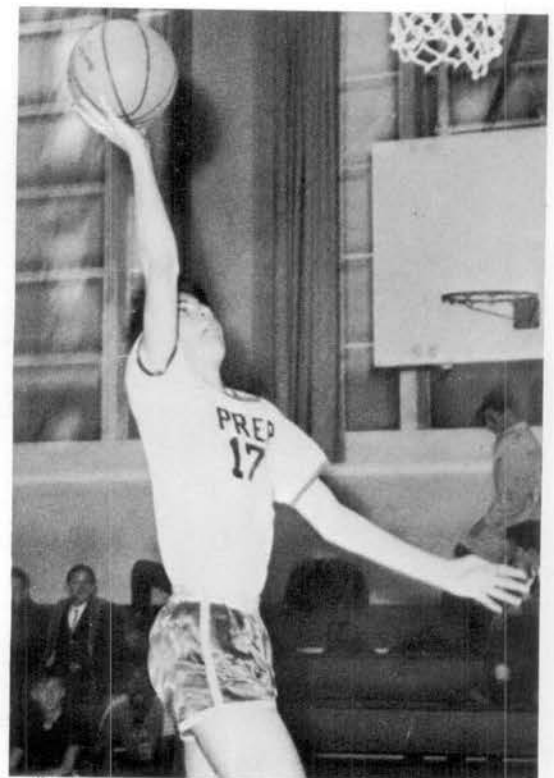

It is this quality of the individuals on the team to lead their squad to victory when it was needed most that enabled the team to keep its winning record.

Harriers Win CHSAA

Several members of the freshman squad discuss the fine points of Latin grammar with Mr. Fordi, S.J., as they wait for the completion of the varsity contest.

Led by veteran harriers Kevin Lanigan and Bill Azzinaro, the Cross Country team enjoyed a banner year, placing in every meet and winning the Brooklyn section of the CHSAA championships. Co-captains Lanigan and Azzinaro have been assets to the varsity team since their sophomore year and have consistently placed first and second on the team. Junior Wally O'Brien is third man while Bruce Buono, Bob Grossberger, Pete Geraghty, and Frank Zagare complete the varsity seven. Although the entire squad has accomplished the noteworthy achievement of completing the grueling 2½ mile course in less than fifteen minutes, Lanigan has the singular distinction of turning in a time of less than fourteen minutes. Besides this victory, the varsity squad placed second in the Private Schools Meet, second in the Eastern States Championship.

The Junior Varsity team has also been turning in superior performances regularly, thus providing vital points for team wins. Seniors Joe Fedele and Mark Cunniff are in the forefront for the Prep seven, followed closely by John O'Brien, Jerry Middlemiss, Tom Patitucci, Jim Clark and Al Renna. O'Brien, Middlemiss, and Clark are sophomores and if they realize the expectations of their coach, Mr. Lawrence, they promise to be standouts in the near future. The J.V. won the CHSAA Brooklyn Championships and the Private Schools Meet.

While it is true that the Cross Country team will lose several outstanding performers because of graduation, Coach Murt Lawrence is confident that with the caliber of our underclassmen our team will continue its winning tradition.

After completing his race, Junior Al Renna hands in his competitor's card to coach Murt Lawrence, serving as an official.

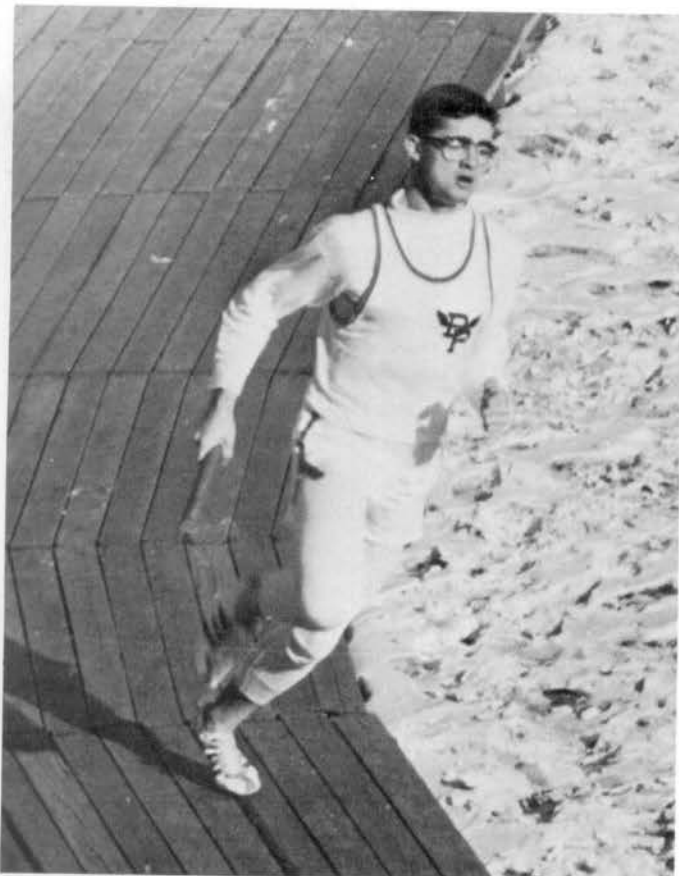

Two Mile Relay

Making the turn on his leg of the two-mile relay, Kev Lanigan keeps his team in top position at the Knights of Columbus meet.

Brooklyn Prep's '63-'64 indoor track season was highlighted by the phenomenal success of our two-mile relay team. Part of their good fortune must be attributed to a stroke of luck, for were it not for poor weather postponing the Jesuit Meet, our team would never have been entered in the Mayor's Meet. Luck, however, did not place Bill Azzinaro, Walt O'Brien, Kev Lanigan and Bob Grossberger in the record books, for their accomplishment was the result of their long and arduous sessions of constant practice. Bill Azzinaro, the lead-off man, came in third with a time of 2:04.8. Walt O'Brien and Kev Lanigan kept their position, turning in times of 2:00.1 and 2:00.6, respectively. When anchor man Bob Grossberger received the baton, the race was immediately opened up. Bob succeeded in passing Cotter of Molloy and Greer of Xavier, and turned in a time of 1:57.6. This clocking turned out to be the best time ever recorded by a Prepman on an indoor track. The team time broke the school record, the meet record, the armory record and also the National Interscholastic record on a flat-board track.

The postponed Jesuit Meet finally did take place, and our trackmen did extremely well. The three-lap senior relay of Rich Loehfelm, Kevin Serrapede, Tom Witko and Greg Milmoie set a new meet record. A similar feat was accomplished by the senior Mile Relay of Mark Cunniff, Mike Voldstad, Vic Garcia and Frank Rager.

With the help of his winter underwear, Bill Azzinaro defeats the cold and manages to win his race in the dual meet against St. John's.

Sets National Record

On April 24, the varsity track team journeyed to Philadelphia to participate in the 70th annual running of the Penn Relays. The highlights of the trip came on the second day. The mile relay of Loehfelm, Voldstad, Milmoie, and Garcia took third in their class and won bronze medals for their fine showing. The two mile relay of Kev Lanigan, Bob Grossberger, Bill Azzinaro, and Walt O'Brien took third place in the small school championship race and also won bronze medals. The team then returned home weary but satisfied with their fine performances turned in at the Penn Relays.

Seniors that are closing off their schoolboy track careers such as Ron Homer, Bruce Buono, Tom Patitucci, Kev Lanigan, Bill Azzinaro and Tom Witko are greatly responsible for the success of the Prep track team over the years. Aided by underclassmen such as Bob Grossberger, Walt and John O'Brien, Sam Navarro, Ron Howell, Mike O'Brien, and Chris Termini, Coach Murt Lawrence is confident of maintaining Prep's reputation in the realm of indoor and outdoor track competition.

Encouraged by his teammates, John O'Brien succeeds in outdistancing his challenger on Prep's wooden track.

Varsity Wins City Crown

A young Brooklyn Prep varsity swimming squad, after being defeated in its first meet this season, rebounded to fight its way to three championships at the season's close. For a team having just four seniors, Prep did remarkably well, receiving strong support from swimmers of all four years.

In the first dual meet of the season the Eagle mermen bowed to Loughlin by a single point which could have gone just as easily for the luckless Prep team. With spirit characteristic of a championship team, the Brooklyn Prep swimmers came back to annihilate Holy Cross and Trinity in their next two encounters. Prep then met and defeated its only public school opponent, the strong squad from Madison High School. After routing the inexperienced Nazareth swimmers, the Eagles came to their final dual meet of the regular season with St. Francis. Despite a tremendous Eagle effort, the meet ended with St. Francis three points ahead. With the regular season over, Prep met its previous victorious opponents from Loughlin for second place in the Brooklyn-Queens division. Prep glided by Loughlin and put themselves into contention for the Catholic High Schools Dual Meet Championship. In the swim-offs for the title, Prep found itself matched against a speedy team of Rice from Manhattan. The Eagles took this close one with a tremendous performance by nearly every swimmer. The final meet for the championship saw the Eagles and the Terriers of St. Francis competing once again, only this time the story was somewhat different. The Eagles took six of the ten first places and ran the score up to 21-4 in the opening moments of the contest after the 200 yard medley relay team of Carney, Treadway, Stone and Bell finished first with a fine time of 1:54.2; as did Bob Burke and Rich McAteer with very quick times in the 200 yard freestyle and the 50 yard freestyle respectively. McAteer repeated in the 100 free as did Burke in the 400 free. John Doherty looked very strong as he outchurned the opposition in the 100 yard backstroke. The meet ended with Prep the Catholic Dual Meet champs by a score of 54-41.

Five of the city's finest: Charlie Stone, Rich McAteer, Coach Walter Doolan, John Doherty, and Bob Burke.

Ed Mallen's fine diving form shows how he scored so well throughout this season's competition.

Sophomore star Bob Burke takes a breather during practice. Two of the many record breaking times he had this year were his 1:57.0 clocking in the 200 free, and 4:09.6 for the 400 free, both at the CHSAA Senior Individual Championship.

The next post-season contest was the CHSAA Senior Individual Championships held at the quick and record producing Prep pool. The Eagles really put on a display, led by their sophomore wonder Bob Burke whose 1:57.0 clocking bettered the 200 free record by 2 seconds, and whose 4:09.6 time in the 400 free smashed the standing record by an incredible 7.4 seconds. The medley relay team of Steve Treadway, Charlie Stone, and co-captains Doherty and McAteer came across in 1:51.6, cracking the old mark by .9 of a second. Doherty's trial time of 1:02.1 was .5 second better than the 100 backstroke record. Prep's total was 47.5 points, enough to add the CHSAA Individual Championship to their laurels.

In the final meet of the season, the Association of Private Schools Championship, Prep once more placed second to none. Prep finished with 49 points, 4 better than second place McBurney. Thus a team great for its talent and spirit finished a truly fabulous season.

The team owed much of its success to the fine leadership and experience of Coach Doolan. It relied on men like Dennis Drake who showed great improvement as a result of exemplary effort. The Squad could not have gone so far without the constantly excellent diving of frosh Ed Mallen, and the swimming of his classmates Ed Jones and Rich Bell. Outstanding sophomores must include Bob Sharkey, Tom Beck, and Bob Burns, and the junior contingent of Charlie Stone, Denny Drake, Steve Treadway, Jim Carey and Tom Sherry was consistently successful.

Thus the swimming at Prep in '64 produced City champs on both the freshman and varsity levels. This fact alone is tribute to the great Prep swimmers of '64.

CHSAA Title

Coach William Beck put his team in the water expecting to have a fair season, but he managed to equal last year's clean slate of victories. Led by captain Rich Bell, the frosh team managed to keep the Brooklyn Prep record unblemished and to extend its streak to 22 consecutive wins. The first three meets were quite easy, but the St. Francis meet proved to be a challenge to the Eagles. The frosh came from behind, putting forth a surge of splashing power in the last two events and defeated the Terriers 44-33.

Frank Jones, Rich Bell, and ace diver Ed Mallen, who have moved up to varsity competition, deserve much of the credit for the Freshman undefeated record.

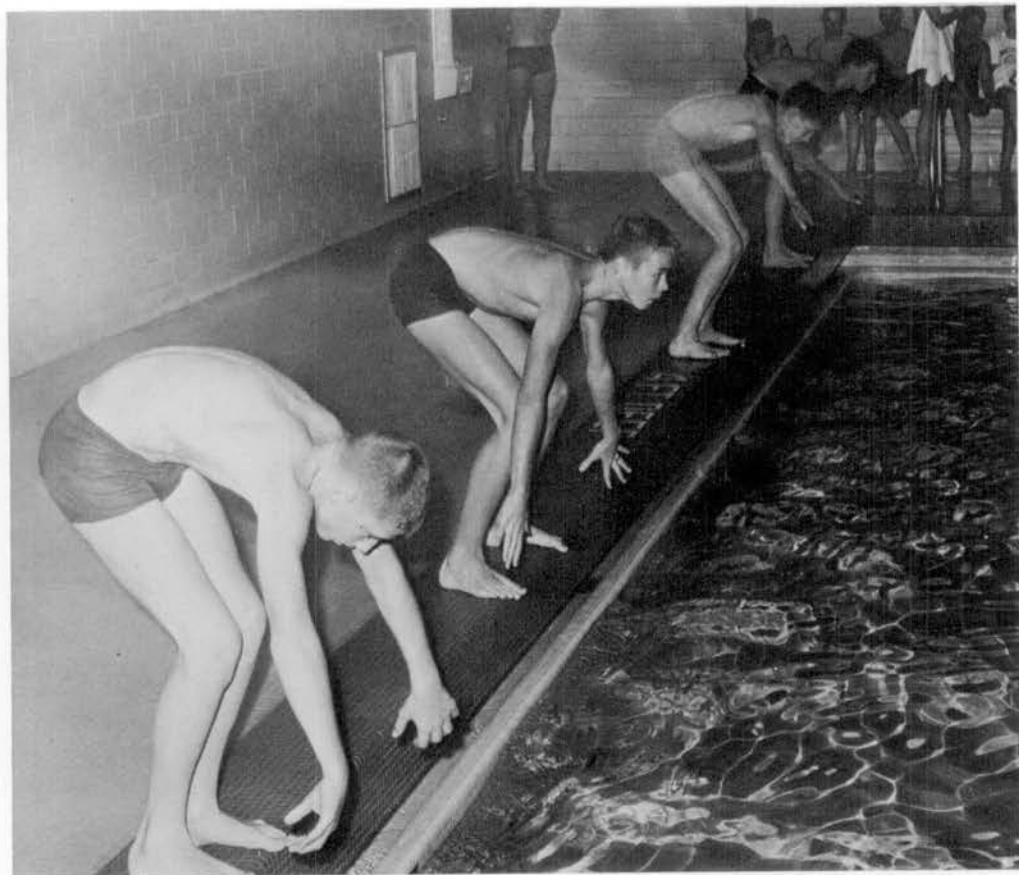

Besides their success in dual-meet competition, the Blue and White aquamen also retained their individual CHSAA championship by defeating Fordham Prep, 54-23. Rich Bell turned in a time of 31.9 seconds for the 50-yard backstroke, bettering the city record by three-tenths of a second. Gerry McGrath, Tom Shanks, Joe Needham, and Ed Viola also supported the Eagles' cause by constantly turning in brilliant performances.

When asked of the swimming team's sudden success in the last few years, Mr. Beck stated, "Success breeds success. The amount of practice before and after school and the use of our own pool have significantly added to the team's greatness." Looking into the crystal ball, the outlook for the future is truly optimistic.

Frosh Richie Bell, who later excelled in varsity competition, touches home well ahead of the competition.

Varsity in Strong Contention

As this publication went to press, the varsity baseball season at Prep was just three games old. Despite this short period of time, it was not difficult to form an estimation of the 1964 Eagle nine.

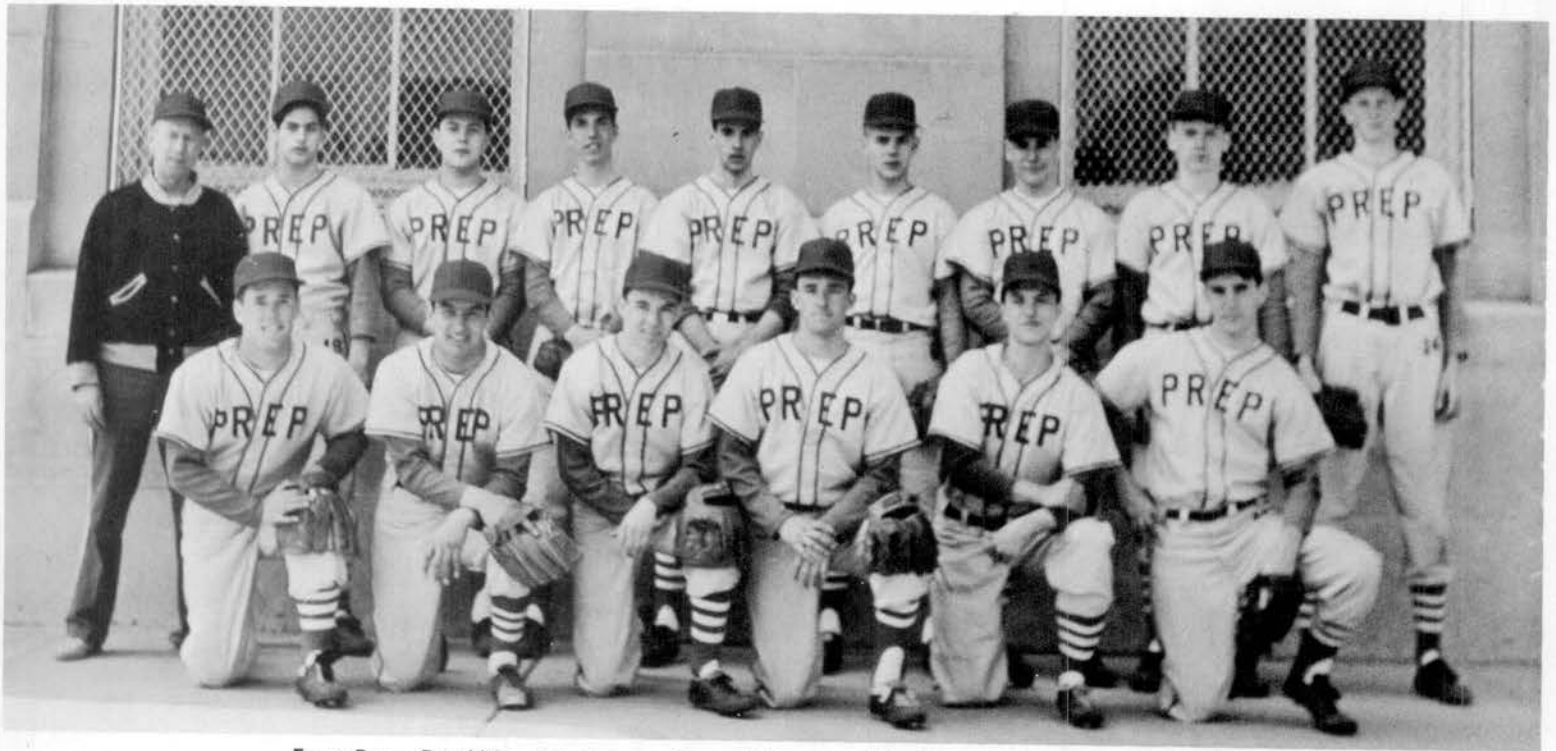

It was obvious from the start of the first game that the Eagles' strength would lie in its pitching and its consistently fine defensive play. Senior righthander Fred Partenio was as fast and as effective as ever, and Bob Kelley, a big man at the plate and in the field, as well as on the mound, provided some very effective hurling for the team. One of last year's big winners, southpaw Mike Celenza, again set back the opposition with his variety of speeds, motions, and pitches. Senior Dan Griesbach and junior Bob Colozza effectively rounded out this solid pitching staff.

The infield included junior Tony Giordano behind the plate, Ed Petrazzolo and John Larsen at first base, and Pete Gillen, as talented in baseball as in basketball, at second. Gerry McDermott held down the shortstop position, while Ray Miles and Bob Fedoryszyn shared the work at third base. In the outfield, co-captains Tim Fenlon starred in center; Mike Sisti, Bob Schiebel, and Pete Allutto held down the other outfield positions while fleet-footed co-captain Bob Kelley roamed right field when not pitching.

The early season hitting honors belonged chiefly to Tim Fenlon. When not shagging flies in the field, Junkball pitcher Mike Celenza shows us the form by which he threw the season's only no-hitter. On the very next day Celenza followed his no-hit game with a two-hitter.

Fireballer Fred Partenio lets loose a high hard one.

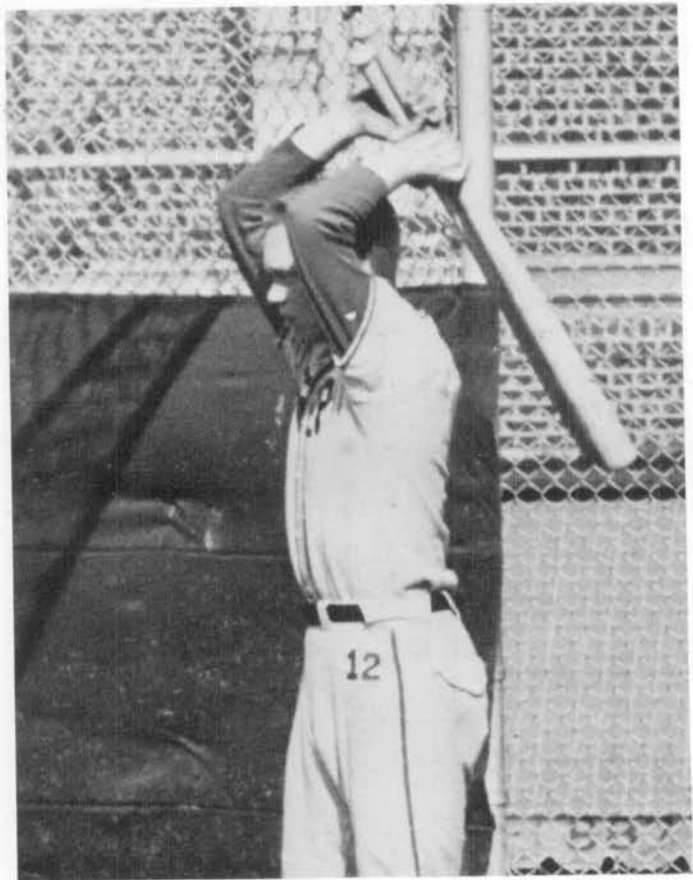

Tim found time to bat .525 in the first three games and contributed three solid doubles in the Eagles' defeat of Trinity. Bob Kelley added some key smashes, and Gillen, McDermott, Sisti, Miles, and Giordano also looked strong at the plate.

Prep's first opponent, Archbishop Molloy, proved to be a very strong competitor. Three consecutive walks quickly followed by a homerun into the beautiful foliage of Carroll Street proved to be the Eagles' undoing. Prep lost the contest by a 7-0 score. The varsity nine's next league game was against the Lions of Loughlin. Good pitching by Mike Celenza, clear defensive superiority, and a few hot bats like Fenlon's put the Blue and White out in front by a score of 5-3. The third game posed Prep against a formidable Trinity squad. The Eagles quickly demonstrated their offensive power as they scored a decisive seven runs on the hapless Trinity squad. Trinity, in return, was held to a mere four tallies by some dazzling defensive maneuvers on Prep's part.

A few words should be said about the Eagles' mentor, Coach Walter Doolan. Fresh from guiding Prep's swimmers to the city championship, Mr. Doolan has been making excellent use of the talent at his disposal, and it is very possible that he will be the coach of two championship teams before the year is over, one of which will be, of course, the 1964 Brooklyn Prep varsity baseball team.

On the way to second base, hustling Tim Fenlon bears down on a single hit by the next batter.

On-deck Pete Gillen swings a few menacing bats in the extra-innings victory over Loughlin.

This is how it looks to opposing batters when Bob Kelley fires one in.

J.V. Off to

On the way to a four-hit, 10-0 victory over Trinity, fire-baller Chris Termini whips another strike across.

Prep's junior varsity baseball team began its season with a doubleheader against Trinity because of rainy conditions on the scheduled opening day. The young Eagles were quick to show their power and potential as they downed the opposition by an 8-5 score in the first game and a 10-0 total in the second.

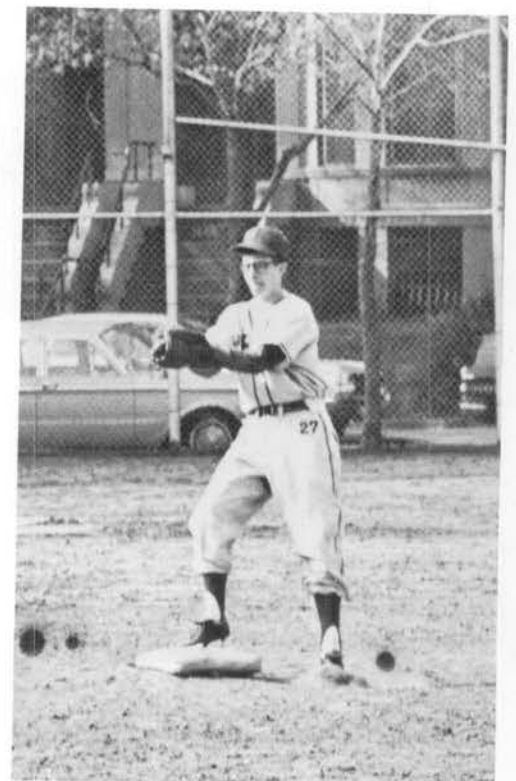

Joe Russo and Pete McCall both showed their offensive talents by their early season averages of better than .500 apiece. Frank Wolfer was the winning pitcher in the opener, and Chris Termini hurled a brilliant 5-hit shutout in the following game.

The infield was composed of catchers John Lombardo and Mike O'Hara. Butch Halpin was stationed at first, while freshman flash Ernie Vaughn worked at first base. Joe Russo was as effective at shortstop as he was at the plate, and Gerry Jones held down the third base job. Joe Bilello played left field, and Pete McCall was a strong defensive centerfielder. Speedy John Lombardo was stationed in right field.

Mr. Duffy, the renowned J.V. mentor, guided these players, and such other outstanding men as Ray Carty, Greg Foley, Bill Kelly, John Meredith, and Tom Larkin, to victory. The outlook for the 1964 season is indeed optimistic.

J.V. Coach Bill Duffy congratulates his players after sweeping the Trinity doubleheader.

Fair Season For Bowlers

Jeff Killeen prepares to strike, while Joe Caruso looks on in approval.

Under the direction of Mr. Murray, S.J., the bowling team finished fourth in the CHSAA bowling league. Despite losses to Loughlin and St. Augustine, the team managed to finish the season with an impressive record. The stand-outs on this year's team include Dan Verdecchia with an average of 178, Fred Partenio with an average of 185, Joe Caruso with an average of 157 and Jeff Killeen with an average of 153. Verdecchia and Partenio were honored with trophies at the end of the year for their performances. Although these seniors are leaving, the reserves on the team are capable of repeating this season's fine performance.

Racket Men in Winning Form

The outlook is optimistic for the Eagle tennis squad of 1964. Among the more experienced members of this year's team are two year varsity players Frank Cardinale, John Carberry, and Mark Dushnyck. Other outstanding players include Brian Curtis, Steve Bier, Jerry Render, and John Walters. Dushnyck and Cardinale have shown their talents in the past and so they have the ability to make '64 the best yet for the team and for themselves. Curtis, on the team this season for the first time, displayed much promise in the pre-season drills. Although Carberry is just a junior, he already has proved his talent in varsity competition. Early season matches have indicated that this season, without a doubt, will be successful in every way.

This year's captains were Carberry and Cardinale.

Golf Team Starts Strong

Pete Riebling, Warren Carlstrom, Phil Spingler, Gene Keogh, Walter Voytus, Kurt Choutka, Ray LaFlare, Neil Donovan, Fr. John Alexander, S.J., Moderator.

Sophomore star Neil Donovan shows the form that makes him one of the best golfers in the league.

Three congenial linkmen, Ray LaFlare, Kurt Choutka, and Walter Voytus, take a pause before the day's match.

Led by soph Neil Donovan, the Blue and White golf team promises to enjoy an extremely good season. As the Blue Book goes to press, two out of our top three starters won their matches against McClancy at the Forest Park course. In addition to Donovan, Coach Joe Montana places his trust in soph Pete Riebling, senior Walter Voytus, and juniors Ray LaFlare and Kurt Choutka. Substitutes for the top five are Gene Keogh, Phil Spingler and Warren Carlstrom.

Donovan won his first match with a birdie on the tenth hole. Pete Riebling is another sophomore that promises to keep up his winning ways in the years to come. The golfmen have four more opportunities to prove their value in the two matches with St. Peter's Prep, and others with St. Agnes and Hewlett High. Moderator Father Alexander is confident that the starting five, supported by their substitutes, will prove to be one of the best golf teams in this area.

Intramurals

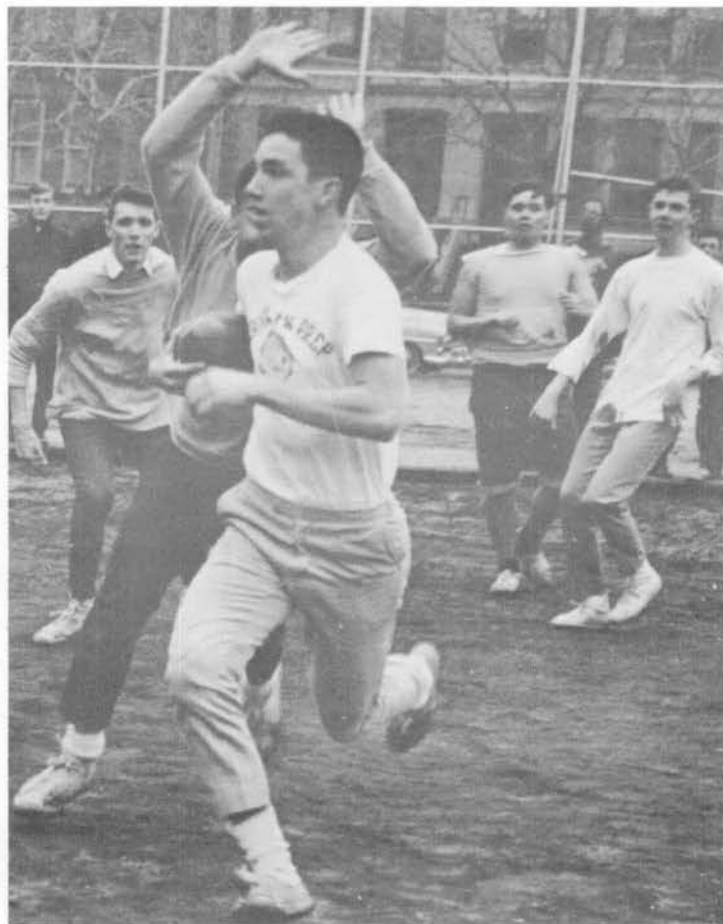

For the many students who find themselves without the ability or time to participate in sports on the freshman, J.V. or varsity levels, the Prep intramural athletic program affords a constructive and energetic outlet for their athletic interests. This year the intramural competition has been extremely aggressive.

The laurels of the autumn bench league were garnered by class 4B led by Tom Witko, Joe Caruso, and John Calabro. They gained the title only after defeating a varied field of senior and underclass competitors.

Once again 4B was one of the top competitors as winter and intramural basketball rolled around to the Prep. The winning team, however, turned out to be 4G, whose leaders were John Larsen, Frank Egan, Den Turner and Jack McGowan. In third year, 3C completely outclassed the competition.

As the weather grew warmer and this publication went to press, the intramural softball competition was wide open, and it was anyone's guess as to who would be the school champs.

In one sense, however, everyone who plays in intramural competition is a winner because the profits of a sound body and spiritual fun are really ample rewards.

Junior Eddie Petrazzolo eludes the outstretched arms of senior Dave Robinson as he turns the corner and heads upfield.

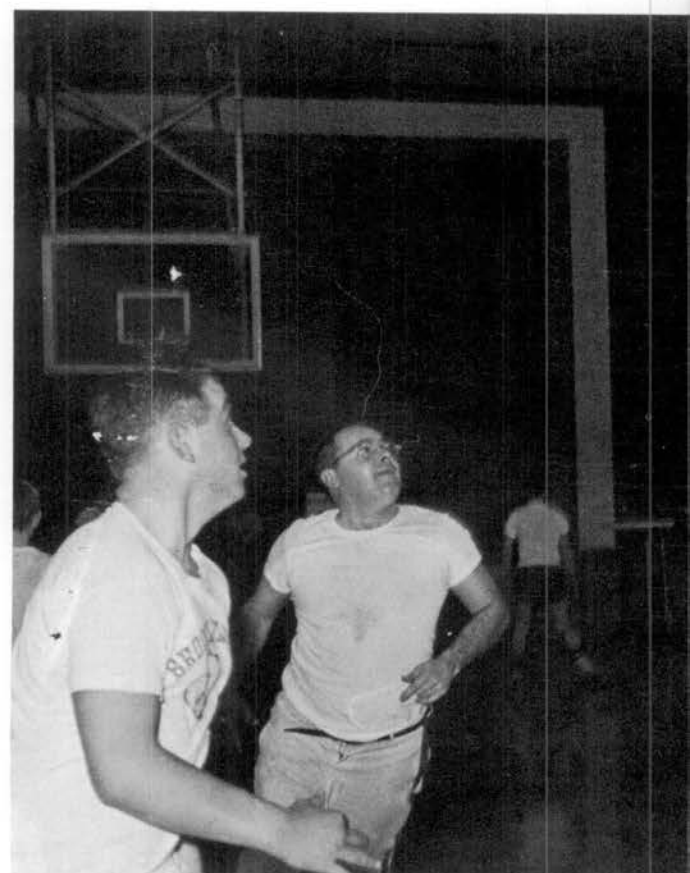

As Mr. Bartley exemplifies the "Marine strategic withdrawal," Mr. McCarthy and Mr. Eil demonstrate the faculty's paternal feeling toward the seniors.

Mr. Lawn leads the old guard for an easy victory over the new.

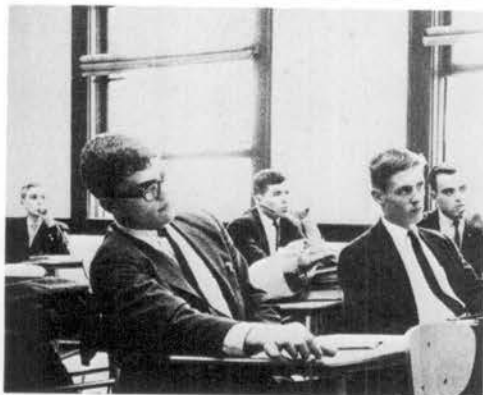

Mike Voldstad swings at a 3G pitch while Rich Loehfelm anticipates a miss.

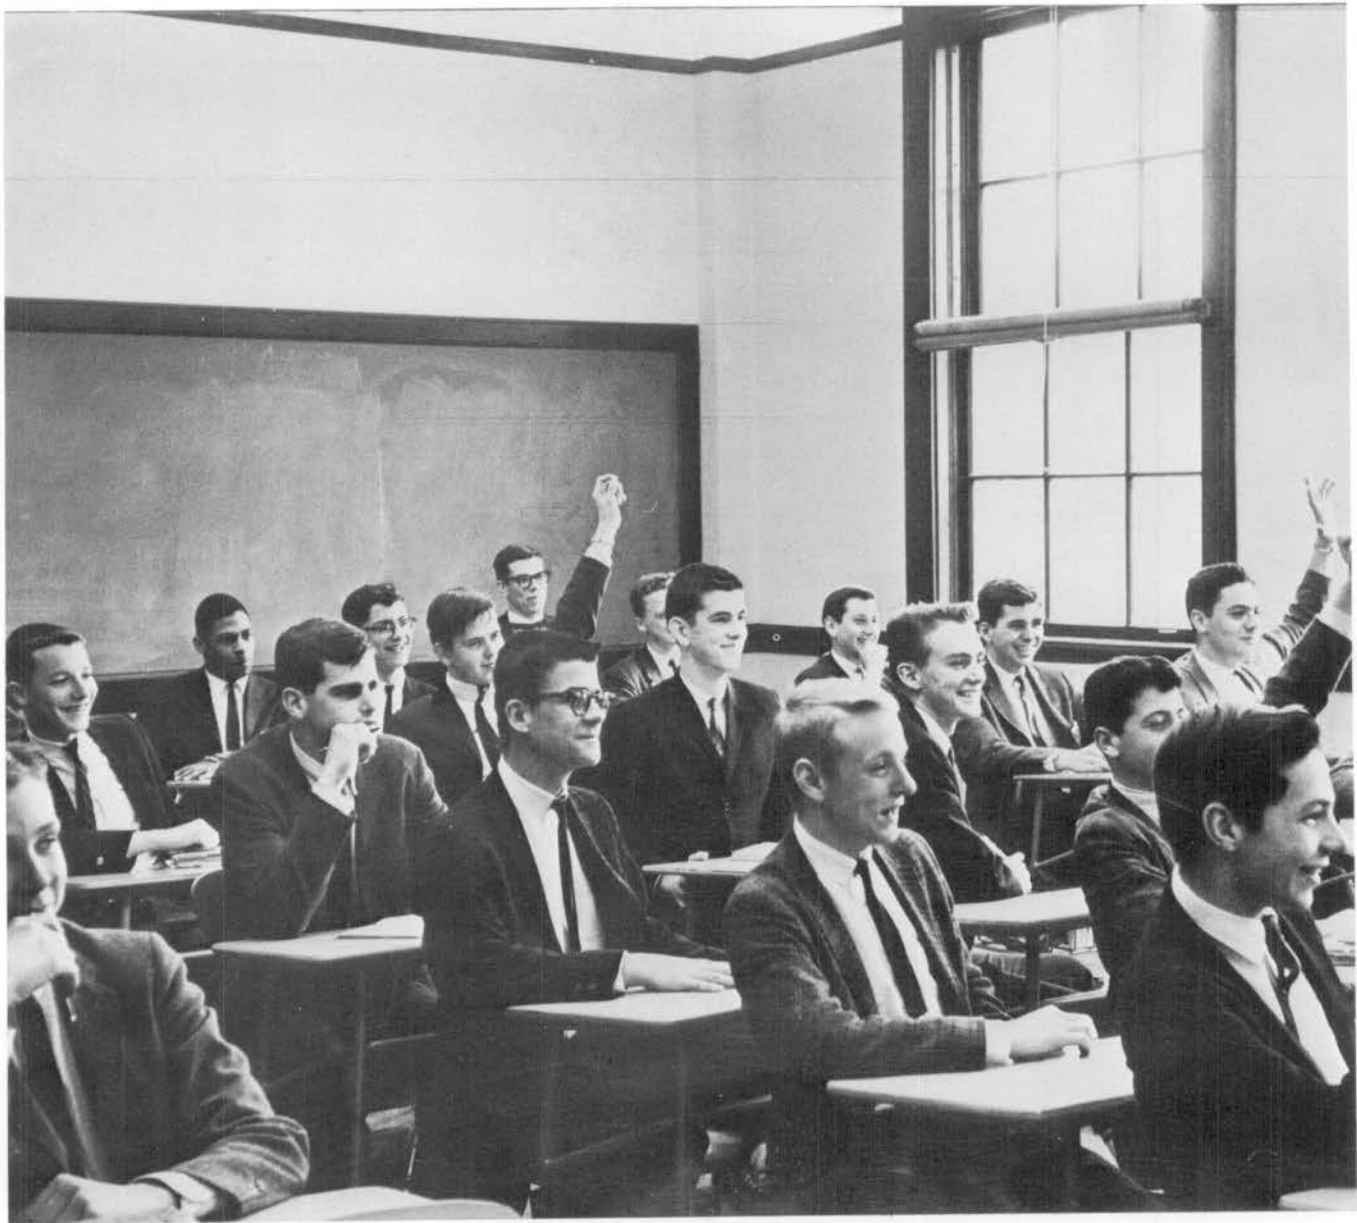

As Umpire Andy Fellingham assumes an authoritative pose, Bill Mattison strains to deliver just the right pitch.

By its very name Brooklyn Preparatory School announces its purpose. It is one of preparing its students. This means, of course, preparing them for entrance into college, since the program of studies works toward that end, but it also means much more than that. In this high school, preparation is a synonym for development of the student, a development harmoniously carried out on many levels. Guided by the school, we are to develop our many talents—intellect, will, body—so that we may think and act intelligently and wisely. We are to develop as loyal and knowledgeable American citizens, aware of our obligations and ready to fulfill them. We are to develop an appreciation for things cultural, respecting the past and contributing to the future. Most important, we are to develop as true Christians who strive to love God and all men in Him.

In Memoriam

JOSEPH LOUGHLIN, III

For ten weeks Jay Loughlin had been suffering intense pain. Those who saw him know that he never questioned why he had to suffer, but that he accepted and offered it to God as part of Christ's passion. During all this time one thought especially bothered Jay, the thought that, if he did not get well soon, he might have to drop out of the class he had been with since the beginning of freshman year. During these weeks his classmates in 2G had been studying the new religion course. The climax of that course, they found, was to be the events of the Church's Easter Vigil, when the liturgy recalls the victory of the crucified Christ over death. That night the Paschal Candle would be lit, symbolizing Christ, the Light of the World, overcoming the powers of darkness.

The day when these events were to happen had just begun when Jay was called by Christ to share in His victory. We regret the departure of our friend and fellow student, but we also rejoice, knowing that he now has the everlasting joy of Easter.

FRANK BALL

The publication of a yearbook always demands an acknowledgment of great gratitude, for many people have made this book possible. We are especially grateful to:

- ... the school administration and faculty, whose cooperation was always generously given
- ... the patrons, sponsors, and donors, whose financial support is essential
- ... Mr. George Rubens and Mr. William Welter of Lorstan-Thomas Studios, official photographers for the 1964 Blue Book, whose time and labor were freely given for our benefit
- ... Mr. Fred Ball, Mr. Frank Ball, Jr., and Mr. E. J. Adomilli of the New City Printing Company, printers of the Blue Book for two decades.

Finally, a special acknowledgment must be made: Since the last Blue Book went to press, death has made a deep impression upon all of us at Brooklyn Prep—Pope John XXIII, President John F. Kennedy, Jay Loughlin, General Douglas MacArthur, Father Ricardo Fernandez, S.J.—all have been called from this life in recent months, and all of us have felt the loss. And yet, those of us who have worked on the yearbook staff for a long or short time have experienced another tragic loss. On February 24, 1964, Mr. Frank Ball, Vice-President of the New City Printing Company, passed away. Since 1944 Mr. Ball had worked with every Blue Book staff, laboring and worrying over every yearbook. His personal concern for Brooklyn Prep's yearbook was truly extraordinary, and it is quite accurate to say that the Blue Book over the years owes more to Frank Ball than to any other individual. Even though he was known by only a few Prep students each year, Brooklyn Prep has suffered a great loss. We deeply regret his passing.
