FOREWORD

CHAPELLE DU MARTYRE, MONTMARTRE, PARIS

This book, dedicated to the first members of the Society of Jesus, is offered to the graduating class of nineteen thirty-four. The first Jesuits in fifteen thirty-four devoted themselves to the formation of Christ in the souls of the young. Their successors through four hundred years have striven to fulfil the desire of their holy founder by their educational work in schools all over the world. It is our hope that these pages will, in years to come, serve to recall the ideals and principles which their old Jesuit teachers endeavored to impart to them by their instruction and example.

THE FEBRUARY CLASS OF 4-B-1

Class of 4—B—1

ON the opposite page you see the class of 4-B-1. But in accordance with the belief that you can learn more about a man by looking at him than by any description of words, I believe that you can learn more about the class of 4-B-1 if I identify the characters in the picture for you and let you become acquainted with each one, than by any class write-up a Hilaire Belloc could write.

Reading from left to right as in all important pictures, the first two seated figures are Austin Finan and Augustine Grady. These two young men are the scholars and delegates to the monthly Honor Roll. Gus is also the Head Librarian with Austin acting as his assistant on the Staff. Next to Gus, you see the author of this poor piece who holds his distinguished position on the right of our beloved teacher, Fr. Reilly, as President of the Class.

Astonished, we note Bob Walton in an unaccustomed position on the teacher's left. Bob is usually not so close to a teacher even though he was one of the Captains of the Student Police. Directly behind Bob is his companion and fellow punster, Hugh Perry, whom you will immediately recognize as the handsome soloist of the Prep Play.

Next come Joe O'Brien, Bob Pollock, and Frank Donovan, in the order named. These three young roisterers are inseparable. Many of you will recognize Joe as an outstanding member of Prep's basketball team and perhaps our feminine readers will discern in Bob our man-about-town, but as for Frank, the class knows him best for his work in Latin and Greek. Frank's translations are famous for their accuracy.

In the next row, reading from right to left for variety, we have the class' intellectual stars, namely, Messrs. Pfeiffer, Lynch, Pregonzer, Nace and Rushmore. Bernie Pfeiffer and Martin Lynch are the boys around whom everyone clusters before a test while in Paul Nace we have an embryonic surgeon. Paul has earned his "rep" as the President of the Science Club. As for Elbert Rushmore, he has made his mark in the Prep as a member of the Library Staff and the Debating Society and as an officer of the Senior Sodality.

Those three young men on the extreme left who appear to be rather small are Augie Sidler, Willie Otramba and Clarence Pramuk. These are the men who enlighten the dark hours of class work with their ready wit. Mr. Sidler enjoys the reputation of being Mr. Flynn's favorite "pip."

That serious young man at the left of the third row is George McFadden, the companion of the smiling young fellow you see third from the left, Bud Zangle. George earns this worried look as Captain of Prep's Chess Team while Bud has won his letter as a member of the Varsity Tennis team.

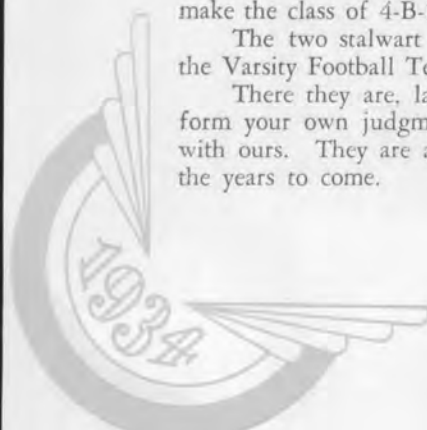

But, you may ask, "Who is the one you skipped, the second from the left?" Ah! He is Ed Droleskey, inseparable comrade of the young man you see on Mr. Zangle's left, Harold Masterson. These are the original "Three Little Boys in Blue." See one, see both.

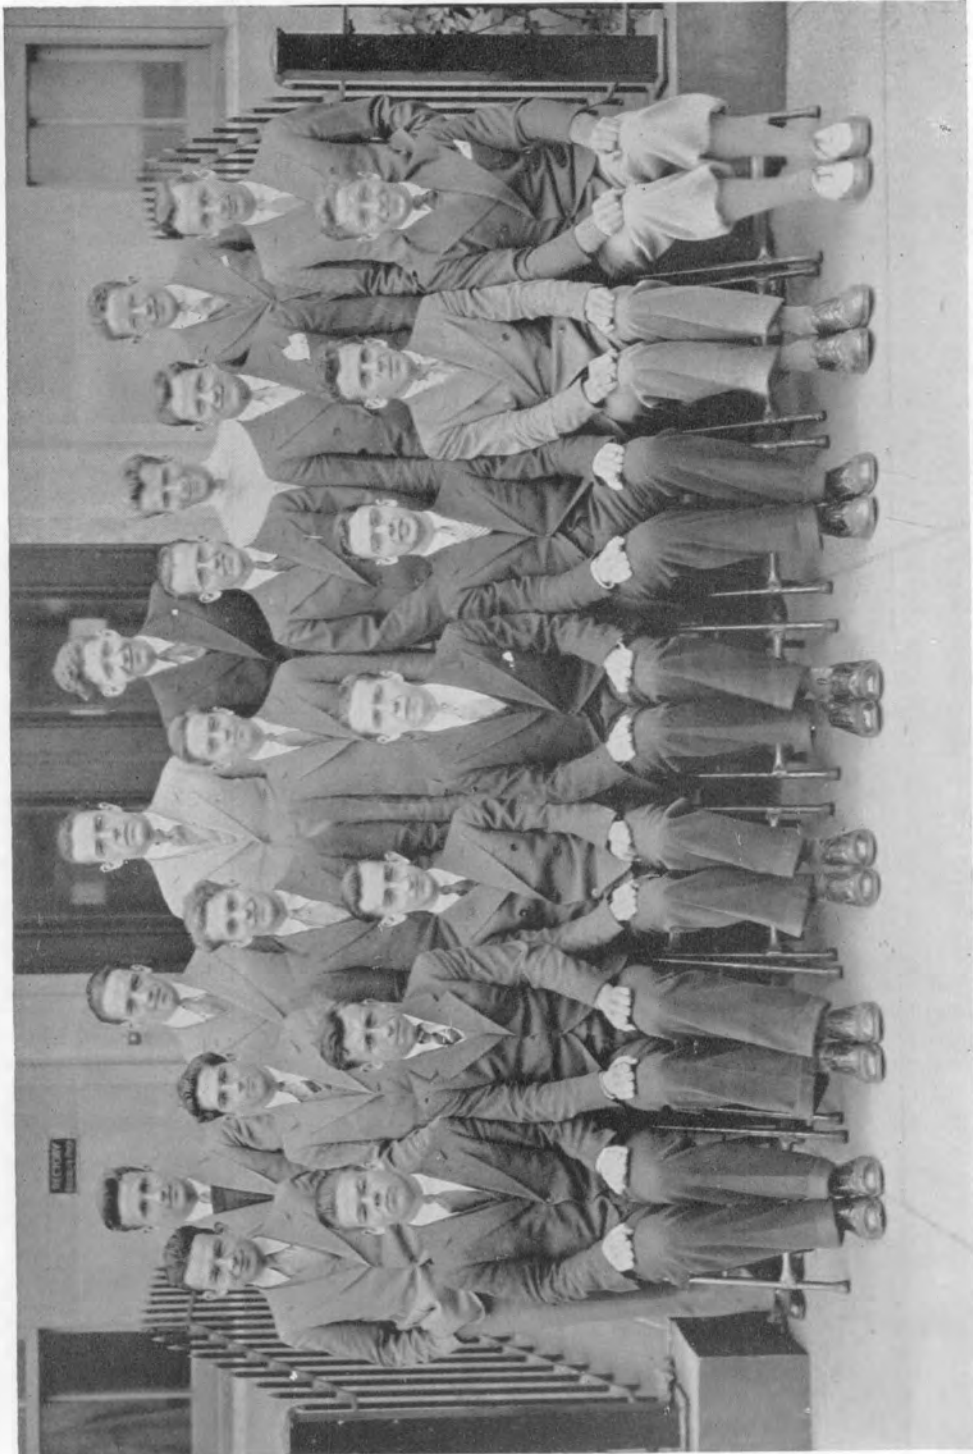

See that tall fellow in the middle of the rear row? He's our pride, "Long John" Concannon. The fellow on his right is Bill Marguet, our sensational swimming star, and the other on his left is Jim Brady. These three young men have done much to make the class of 4-B-1 what it is today.

There they are, ladies and gentlemen. Now that you know who's who you can form your own judgment about them. But I know that yours will be in agreement with ours. They are a fine bunch of fellows, and we expect great things of them in the years to come.

GEORGE A. DIES, JR.

THE FEBRUARY CLASS OF 4-B-2

The February Class of 4—B—2

AFTER a period of four years, years that seemed like days, as members of the student body, we are ready to step through the portals of the Prep on to the road to College and Career. We are waiting to join the ranks of the other Prep classes which have preceded us and are now well ahead of us on Life's journey. It is fitting, then, to let the members of this particular class pass in review for the last time as fellow-students.

First let us extend a hearty handshake and wish for success to Gene Bannin, our class man-about-town, who we are confident will impress the fellows at St. Peter's with his gentlemanly ways as he has impressed us who have known him so long; to Dennis Burke with his likeable Irish smile, to Leo Callahan with his distinctive curly hair and to Justin Collins, the old chin-rubber himself.

Then "Adios" to "Hank" Donovan, who, we hope, will turn his soft pleasing voice to better use than crooning; to George Grady whose ready wit and handsome features we shall miss and in whom we see the possibility for a successful art career; and to Jack Greene, a quiet well-dressed gentleman.

We say, "So long and best of wishes to you, Felix Guido." May you succeed in your law study and may your practice be a goodly one! To "Red" Kelly who, in spite of Lenny Swords close rivalry, we think may safely claim the championship of the latecomers; and to Bill King, the class chubby boy.

As for Don La Vine and Charlie Masterson, we hope they will have an open field before them in carrying the ball across the line of success.

To Ed Lilly (his middle name is basketball) who is about to study for the noble profession of medicine; to "Doc" McGroarty who, we think, would make a first class college professor because of his dark rimmed glasses and his extensive vocabulary; and to Johnny Needham who has done his part on the basketball court and is now about to study dentistry, we say: "May good fortune follow each and every one of you in your endeavors."

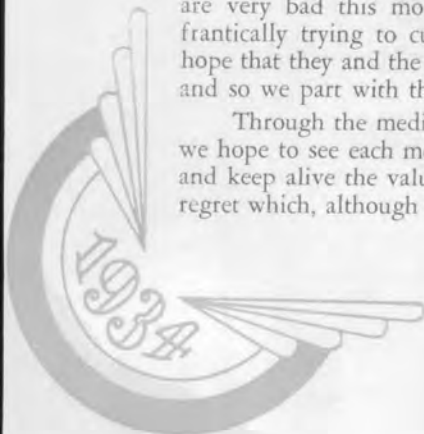

"Happy days and best of luck" to Paul Pfizenmayer whose entertaining laugh we are to hear no more; to Tom Reilly famous as an altar-boy and to Lenny Swords, the fellow with the permanent-wave hair, who has demonstrated his literary talents this past term as a columnist for the Blue Jug.

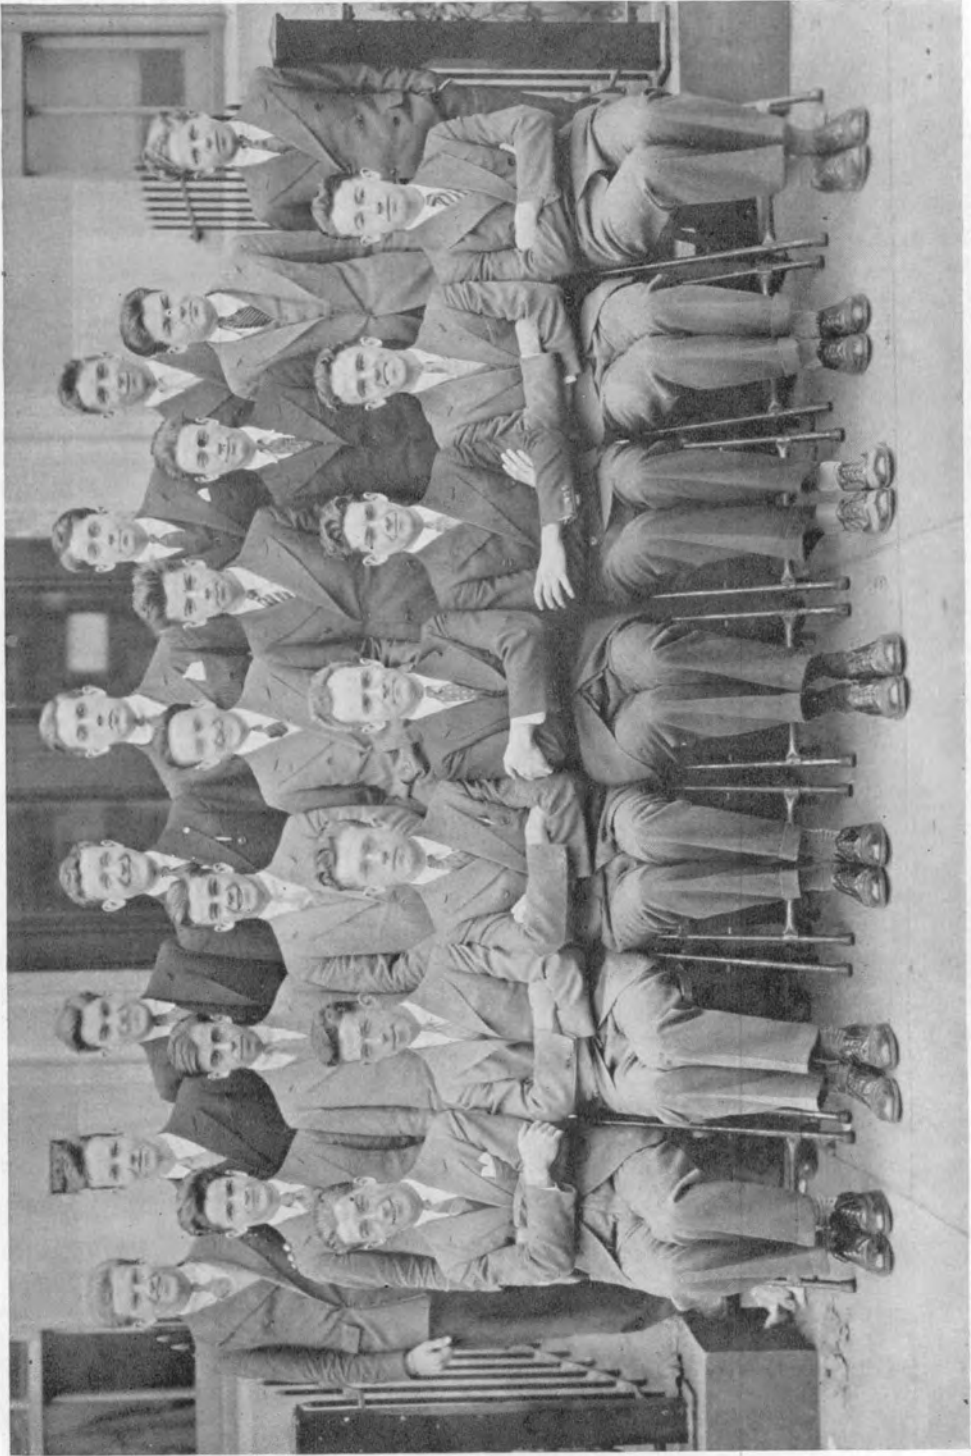

To Jack Whelan, stalwart member of Prep's victorious 1933 football team, we bid reluctant good-bye, and to Bill Wiseman, the rear guard of our procession, we say: "May you show the way at St. John's and may you not be long in attaining that success which you so richly deserve."

Of course, it would be impossible to leave without mentioning the worthy professors who have acquired gray hair endeavoring to impart to us a good education. No more are we to hear Mr. McCabe expressing in his nasal twang his disgust at our "remarkable" Latin translations, or to Mr. Foley's constant reminder that the "marks are very bad this month, boys," nor will the Spanish students hear Mr. Fitzgerald frantically trying to curb the antics of the "uncouth creatures" in his class. But we hope that they and the other gentlemen who have taught us will forgive us our trespasses and so we part with them, saying: "No hard feelings, gentlemen, and good-by to you."

Through the medium of the Prep Alumni Society now in the process of formation, we hope to see each member of the class from time to time, discuss plans for the future and keep alive the valuable friendships formed at school. This thought will soften the regret which, although we hesitate to admit openly, I am sure we feel at leaving the Prep.

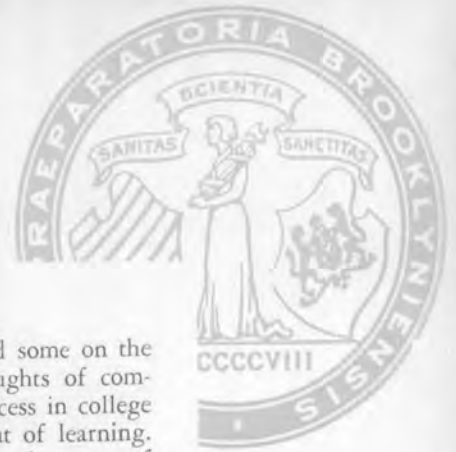

ARTHUR D. FIORE.

THE FEBRUARY CLASS OF 4-B-3

The February Class of 4-B-3

DOUBTLESS, at this time we are all pondering, some on the past and some on the future. To some come thoughts of graduation and to others thoughts of commencement. Commencement! the beginning of our struggle to attain success in college or in business. Graduation! the bidding farewell to an unforgettable seat of learning. To you graduation and commencement may be synonymous; but to us, because of some sentiment this time holds, one signifies the past and the other the future.

Consider the word graduation. What a host of associations it conjures up before us. Perhaps a smile comes to our lips as we see our teachers or a fellow student. Some will always associate, "Pip" with the "never-to-be-denied" Mr. Foley, or fondly recall Mr. Lahey's reference to himself as, "Hawk-eye." And who will wonder if Mr. O'Rourke ever got around to his "dictation," or if Mr. McCabe still remarks to the fellow who invariably keeps his hat on in the corridor, "Now you're the kind of a 'guy' who stands behind a barber chair with a 'baldy' and tells the other fellow how to keep from growing bald."

We who have grown up together during these past four years look about us for the last time. As a class we have a record of which we are proud. Our men have taken a big part in school activities, even from the wide-eyed days of the freshman year. 4-B-3 claims as her own the President of the Student Council, Joe McManus, who aside from this executive capacity saw service in Varsity basketball, baseball and football, and moreover was an honor student. When scholars are mentioned Ray McCaffrey who fears neither gerund nor angle, nor sight translations, smilingly stands ready to solve any difficulty. Tom Wynne, a hustling end, along with Joe Irwin and Mike Mulligan was always to be seen at work with the football team. Don Yerby, Tom Christy and Ed Dietz represent us with the mermen. Chris Phelan and "Doc" Gann, the beadle, are the two promising Ciceros who uphold the class in the verbose wars of the senior debating society. Frank Kelly claims a talent which is indeed rare, he is an accomplished magician with all the genuinely mystifying trimmings. Ray Herbert and Al Huels, the latter a man of undeniable wisdom and unbending dignity, follow close on the heels of Ray McCaffrey. Dick Bean and Joe Coyle who look forward to dentistry and medicine respectively. The former was the backbone of the golf team, while the latter was one of the mainstays of the swimming team. Many an argument do we hear on the respective merits of the two professions as these worthies devour their lunch. As a bill collector, "par excellence," we recommend Ed Duffy, the class treasurer, whose persuasive powers in this line are unexcelled.

There are many more than these but space does not permit their being mentioned. These few will serve to acquaint you with the fellows who have made up our class in these few years which have slipped by so rapidly.

At this, the time of our graduation from the Prep, we are eager for what lies ahead and we wish to practice in our daily lives those principles which the Jesuits have taught us since our entrance here four years ago. But still it is with regret that we leave these portals. Our hearts have become attached to the buildings and to what they mean to us. We have spent many happy hours within these walls. We could stop at this time and recall the many pleasures we have had or else tell you of the discomforts we have experienced in the "Jug" room. But now as we look on these walls our lips reluctantly form our sad "Farewells."

THE JUNE CLASS OF 4-B-1

IN drifting through the latter years of life we will "many times and oft" reflect upon the memories of yesteryear. And among those memories none will be dearer and more enjoyable than those concerning the years spent at Brooklyn Prep. Those years will soon be gone forever, never to be enjoyed again, but their memories will linger on.

But now let us attend in spirit a session of that class whose members will soon separate to pursue different paths in life. There, before us in the well known classroom, is Quentin Lauer, the class President, whose cheery countenance always brightens the oppressive hours. The next fellow in that row is Adrian Driggs. Ade is an ardent debater and a mainstay on the tennis team. The young gentleman behind Ade is Henry Melvin, captain of the football team. "Hank" has achieved success on both the football and baseball teams. Joe Stuckart sits benignly behind "Hank," Joe is resting on his laurels as a scholar, football, and baseball player, and as a German playwright. Next comes popular Jim McNamara, the demon "ad-getter."

Over there in the next row is "Terrible" Terry McPartlan, one of the reasons for Prep's successful football teams and our choice for future All-American. An outstanding natator sits behind Terry. He is Al Maguire, who has also won fame on the hockey team. Next there is quiet Bill Kearney, dependable backstop of our "nine." Now we see Tony Timmes talking with our "Track Brothers," Frank Hart and Ed Wollam. Tony has been a fixture on the hockey team for two years, whereas Frank and Ed have garnered many valuable points for the track team. There is Dominic Maggio, a quiet, energetic student, who is respected by all.

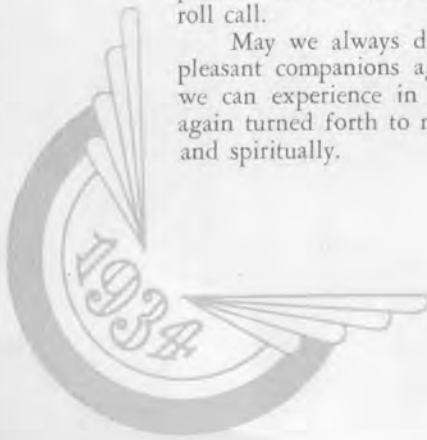

Bill Smith is a prominent debater. The class points with pride at the next man, who is none other than Frank McKeon, co-editor of the Blue Jug and another excellent debater. Then we have two other important fellows, Don McSweeney and Ed Gehrling, who are our representatives in the school orchestra. Next is business-like John McKinney, who takes his jobs seriously. He is co-editor of the Blue Jug. Behind him is Bill Regan, Associate Editor of both the Blue Jug and the Blue Book. Still another Bill do we see in the personage of Bill Phelan, manager and member of several championship hockey teams.

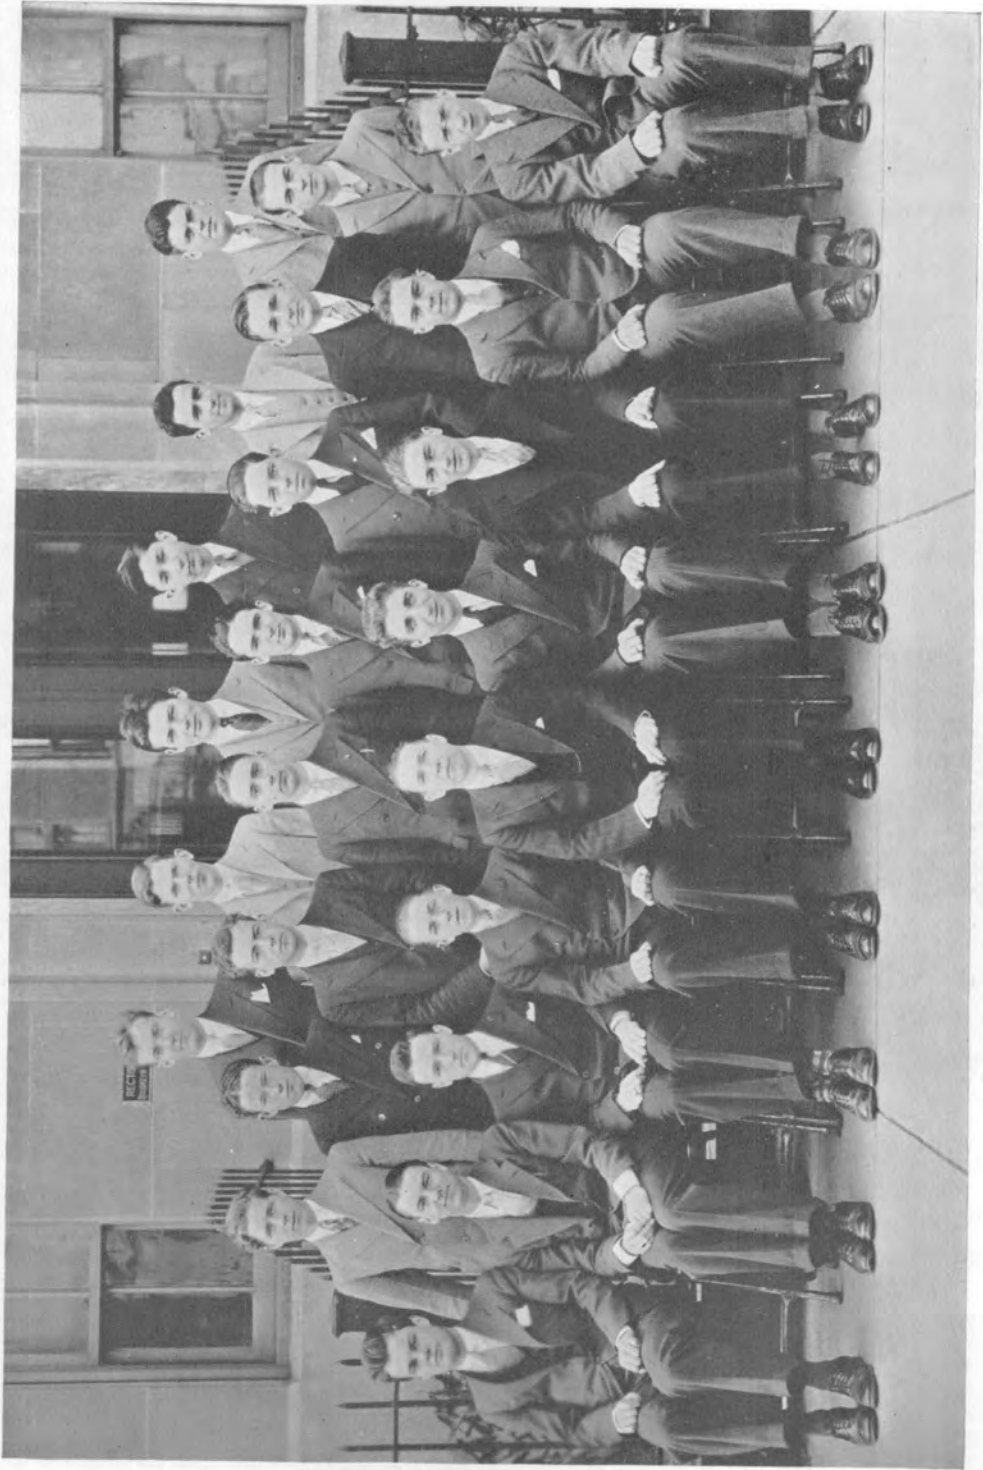

Now we observe the brilliant "chess-nut," John Kelly. Then there's Steve Gill, business man par excellence; he is business manager of the Blue Jug and a noted "ad-producer." Jerry Coyle is the Editor-in-Chief of the Blue Book and member of our basketball quintet. This fellow with the perpetual smile is Aidan McMullen, whose words on any subject are deeply appreciated. Ernie Cafiero is the last fellow in that row. He is well known as the "Slave of Silence" and is genuinely liked by all.

The first man in the next row is Ed "Einstein" McGinty. He's the fellow who drives opposing tackles completely off the field. Bill Mattison is our perennial contestant in Elocution Contests and an actor of no mean ability. Now we come to that famous nonchalant Jack Flanagan, who also represents us on the Blue Jug. Ed Donoghue has assured us of at least one pitching post on the baseball team. The last fellow in that row is the most famous fellow at the Prep and probably the most modest. He has been on both the hockey and baseball teams for three years and last fall had a regular position on the football team. Everybody knows our Danny Hicks. He completes our roll call.

May we always dream of the dear old Prep and imagine ourselves with all our pleasant companions again. But, since "Tempus does fugit," the greatest satisfaction we can experience in later years is the knowledge that in our case, Brooklyn Prep again turned forth to meet the world a group of boys well-trained physically, mentally and spiritually.

ADRIAN P. DRIGGS, JR.

The June Class of 4-B-2

THEY say that the first hundred years are the hardest, but whatever they say, we still think that the last year is the best of four happy years at Brooklyn Prep. It seems to take three years to get acquainted with the running of things and to begin to enjoy it. The first year we are new members of a great fraternity, unknown to most of our fellow members and feeling a bit out of place. With the second year passed the newness of everything has vanished and we begin to realize that we are going to school for a purpose, and then we wonder if our best efforts are being exerted. If, as is often the case, we find that they are not, it requires the third year for us to knuckle down and try our very best to succeed. The beginning of the fourth year shows such a marked improvement that we finally start to enjoy ourselves and get plenty of pleasure out of our school life. So now, about to graduate, we see upon reminiscing what a great year this, our last, has been.

Let us see who is in the class. Jim Corcoran comes first representing the class on the ball diamond at first base. Evy Gibbons is next whom we will find faithfully attending all debating society meetings and always taking an important part in the discussions. "Bucky" Harris whose work with a bat both in class games and for his Alma Mater has been outstanding is third. "Stu" Plante is the fourth of the quartet which goes to make up a good part of every party. Jud Swift, the big fellow with the wide grin, does more than his share in studies and was an active member of the hockey squad this year. Charlie Luzon was end on the varsity football, ace pitcher on the baseball team, and member of the shot-putting division of the track team. Along with him in those same three sports is Ed McCoy, halfback and shortstop. Jim Brady played basketball for the Prep Jayvee at the beginning of the season and was on the varsity squad later. Paul Sutherland and Joe McGrane, inseparable pals, and the class officers are among the foremost debaters and each a member of the Blue Jug Business Staff. Bill Stamm and Chris Grace represented us on the gridiron, both in varsity uniforms. Chuck Wolf, our own John McCormack, is the heavy slugging center fielder on Coach Shanahan's varsity ball club, and when Chuck hits 'em they ride. Charlie Frohne, an English fiend, does plenty of work after class in his capacity as varsity baseball manager. Ed Donovan, who can reel off Virgil like nobody's business, is another first baseman. Don McGratty, oratorical wizard, may be heard any Thursday in 408 doing his very best to convince everyone that he is right (which he often is). Bill McGrath can knock out some mean marks with no trouble at all. Ask Leo Callahan anything you want to know in geometry. He knows all the answers. The Steve Hickie-Boł Loomis-Russ McGuire trio always seem to be conspiring. Please don't ask us what about because that is really a great secret and we really couldn't tell you even if you really wanted to know. But Johnny Rueger will tell you anything concerning the Prep Alumni, that is, if you read the Blue Jug. A promising musical genius is John Parisi who can play anything, if you call it playing. You might like to know something about mechanics. In that case see Amby Blehl or Dick Bodkin.

It is with pleasant memories that we leave the Prep, and also with regret when we think of the good times we had, all of us grouped together into one fine crowd of fellows. Our last hope is that those who follow us, will have had four years as enjoyable as those we have spent at Brooklyn Prep.

JOSEPH F. CARROLL, JR.

THE JUNE CLASS OF 4-B-3

The June Class of 4-B-3

EVERY spring time it is the task of someone to acquaint you, gentle readers, with this class of 4-B-3. I will take you on a tour during lunch period and try to catch my fellow classmates unawares.

Entering the lunch room, we see Mike Abbene, our "beetle," chatting with his assistant Bill Heubach and behind the sandwich counter Bob Quinn, who picks out sandwiches as deftly as a professional stenographer selects the keys of a typewriter—one of the tables Joe Gilbert, Eddie Kane and Dan McCarthy, men about town, conversing with Gerry Crawford—Chubby O'Connor, our basketball wizard, and Bill O'Hara, both of whom are thinking of embarking upon a theatrical career with Mr. Foley!

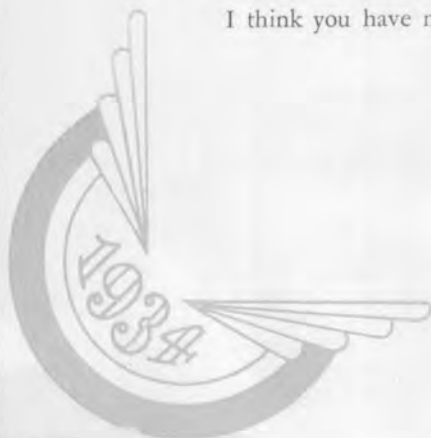

Now we'll take a walk around the track—there's Nick Mullins, our All-American committee-man, and Joe Callahan, chief booster and track man, looking for Gil McCotter, our fashion plate. These three just love to discuss Shakespeare—"Rodney" Emery, who is revising Virgil as we go along, tells his troubles to Bill McGrath. But Bill is doing no worrying—Latin does not fascinate him at all; he enjoys a free first period every day—Joe Newman is digging up the "pole-vaulting" pit while "Ade" Fearon, two letter man, abounds in instructions (he gives 'em free!).—Over in a corner of the field we see "The Boys from Bay Ridge" or "The Sea Beach Speedsters" or "The Four Horsemen of the B. M. T." (choice of any two titles). Ed Murphy is explaining to Jack Cherry, Tom Concannon (varsity debater) and Bernie O'Neill how he just missed the "ten of nine bell" and was sent downstairs for a late slip.

Now let's off to the library—here we see Fred Schroeder and Jim Allaire, two master minds discussing "deep stuff"—Wally Notter was having a pleasant time reading until playful Ralph Hylind came along. But there's Fred Piderit, the "cop" on the beat and he's straightening things out.

In the study-hall Charlie McCarthy, astounds "Doc" Connor with his theories of Physics—Joe Mangiardi is still trying to induce Bill Conroy to join his Radio Club, but I guess Bill has "sales resistance."—Jim Lawton and Lou Lawrence are apparently hard at their books but I'll wager that they are dreaming of all the wholesome fun they have enjoyed while participating in their respective lines of endeavor, Jim in baseball and Lou in swimming and track.

I think you have met everyone by now folks—so long!

GERRY CLARK.

THE CLASS OF 4-A-1

The Class of 4-A-1

BANG! The starter's gun signalizes the beginning of the Prep Marathon. Lithe some bodies spring as if from a catapult and cleave the buoyant atmosphere. The roar of thousands of voices shakes the tremendous stadium. A well set-up figure in white and blue forges ahead. Running easily and effortlessly he holds the lead. At the first lap he falters slightly. Latin, Algebra and History gradually pass him. For a short time the race looks hopeless for 4-A-1. Then he turns on the steam and with renewed vigor catches up to and again commands the field. At the second lap his arch-rival, Latin and the dark horses Greek and Biology slowly draw up to him. He glances over his shoulder and hurriedly quickens his pace. He knows too well what would be the result if these two mighty forces should take the lead. History, English, Civics and Algebra appear fagged out and each, with the exception of English, falls out and lays panting at the completion of the second lap. English alone of the four steadily plods on, waiting for some slight slip of 4-A-1, the leader. Latin and Greek are still pressing hard. They swing into the third lap. New competitors move up. Geometry, French, German and Chemistry rapidly approach. The leader is still gallantly flying over the boards, his arms and legs moving like pistons. The huge crowd goes wild with excitement. They are expressing their admiration for his superb running. Suddenly the crowd gasps—4-A-1 has tripped! The others are even with him. They pass him. Summoning all his reserve power and tremendous stamina he slowly creeps back into his rightful position, first. A plucky exhibition of nerve and endurance!

The pack swings into the fourth and final lap. 4-A-1 is slightly in the lead though sorely pressed by some new faces, Physics and Trig, with the old standbys Latin, Greek and French right behind them. He stiffens his pace and amidst the shouting and tumult of the gallery breasts the tape, the winner by many yards to spare. The judges crowd around and offer their congratulations, the while presenting him with his medal of victory.

Several hours later, amidst the restful surroundings of his hotel suite, the happy victor related to the press the reason for his success. I will enumerate them for you:

John Britt—Social worker, debater, man of many letters (no, no, they are not from his girl) and man about Prep.

Jerry Biggins—Six feet two and one-half inches of virility, basketball luminary.

McCarey, Broderick and Dunn—A modern interpretation of the "Three Musketeers."

George Rafter—A high school Johnny Weismuller; the boy with the cherubic countenance.

Joe O'Sullivan—Staunch defender of the Emerald Isle; football star.

The Two Rileys—Not brothers but fellow consumers of all the Latin and Greek in sight.

George Fenning—A quiet, unassuming Einstein.

Joe Stefano—Track man to whom this opus is respectfully dedicated.

Dick Leonard—O dikaios dunp (Xenophon's quaint way of saying "a just man.")

Matt Shannon—J. V. football and basketball star.

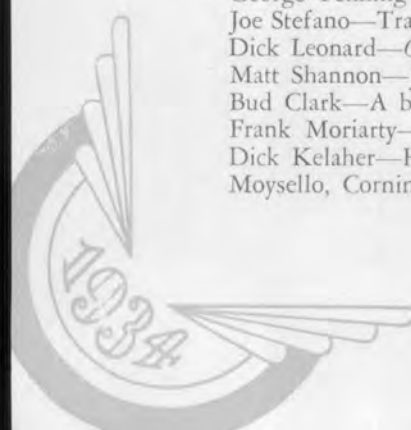

Bud Clark—A boy who in moments of excitement does Caruso.

Frank Moriarty—Our demon news hound.

Dick Kelaher—He likes to fly over wooden high-jump bars.

Moysello, Corning, Ardery, Fox et al., great boys, one and all.

Au revoir,
VINCENT McNALLY.

THE CLASS OF 4-A-2

The Class of 4-A-2

IMAGINE yourself at an Alumni meeting in the year 1954, and let me do the rest. This alumni meeting is the first one ever conducted by the school. Every living graduate has made it his business to attend. The men have gathered in groups according to their classes, and are getting interested in talking about the good old school days. I recognized my class by the smiling, good-natured faces in the crowd. I then went over to join them and I received hearty greetings on all sides.

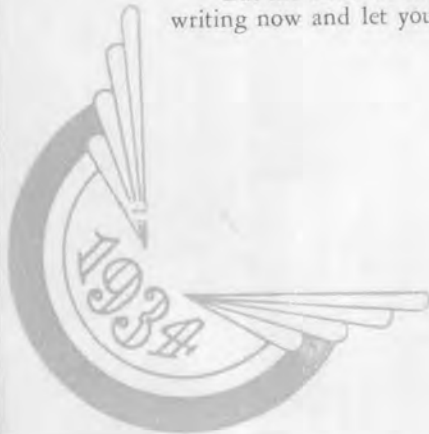

Fred Ardery proposed that we have a class reunion immediately in the room which had supplied us with the best times. We agreed, and Room 309 was chosen unanimously. We at once started up there, and as we reached the door it opened and said, "How do you do, gentlemen? I have missed you for the last twenty years." I acted as spokesman and said affectionately, "That's all right, old boy, we've missed you very much too." We entered the room and saw five men who were guarding the treasures of our class. The treasures were of such value that once lost they could never be regained; they were memories—the memories so near and so dear to an old graduate. These five men, much to our surprise, proved to be the teachers whom we had in 4-A-2. They were Mr. Lahey, Fr. Hearn, S.J., Mr. Matthews, S.J., Mr. Sullivan, S. J., and Mr. Fitzgerald. These men had stored in their memories the pleasant remembrances that were mutual, to teachers and fellows.

We asked Fr. Hearn, S.J., the Professor of Physics, whether or not he had ever heard of any way to recall passed time. His answer was, "Well, now boys, I have been working on a ray which Jules Verne spoke about which is supposed to draw back the portals of the past, but I am only experimenting with it so the effect doesn't last long. However, I'll do my best."

Well! What's this? Here it is 1934 and I'm back in school with the boys. Hooray! the ray is working, we are again in our youth. In the beadle's seat we find Bill Chandler, who is one of the mainstays of the track team as well as an eminent scholar. In his marks, however, he has competition in John Aylward, who is far superior to his track competitors Joe Dunne, Ed Wade and Tommy Tollner. In Ed Kelly and Gill Gestal, we have some very fine varsity football material. George Hambrecht and "Vince" Curley claim J. V. Honors. "Jake" Scannel and "Ed" Burke pile up scores for the Prep Hockey team. Lest we forget, we have an excellent class basketball team composed of Andre Schwitter, "Ed" Kelly, George Dillon, George Hambrecht, "Judge" Dowling, Charlie Fitzpatrick and Bob McKee. The rifle team has its captain, manager, high scorer, in fact everything, in "Woolly" Wolfram. The glee club claims Jack Vaughn for its own, I know not why or how, but it does. Bill Dempsey, Gerard Murphy, Jack Robinson and Henry Hrostoski are more quiet and more serious-minded than the others, and are usually willing and capable of helping out a stragglng classmate. Bill Porter, falling asleep, is trying to think of a way to blow up the school.

But the effect of the ray is beginning to wear off, and as I don't want it to, I'll stop writing now and let you live in your palace of memories of the past.

JOHN VAUGHAN.

THE CLASS OF 4-A-3

The Class of 4-A-3

OVER three years ago when the class of 1-A-1 made its first appearance at the Prep, every member of the group gazed ahead with awe and viewed the senior year as a very distant and a very difficult goal. Yet today as we find ourselves in the middle of our last year at this school which has become so much a part of our lives, we have ample cause to wonder at the swiftness with which the years have passed.

Perhaps no other class is represented in so many extra-curricular organizations and various sports at the Prep. Varsity basketball has become almost a class monopoly with Kennedy, Logan and Riches occupying regular berths this year and thus assuring us of a great team for at least the first half of next year's season. Ray Lawlor, whose work on the line brought favorable comment from all the newspapers and many bruises to disgruntled opponents, and Dick Fennelly who scares the fellow opposite him with his unshaven countenance, both keep up the class tradition on the gridiron. Captain of the track team and stellar half-miler, Bill Dobbins uses up all his remaining energy by yodeling (or bellowing) selections from Lawrence Tibbet's latest broadcast. Jack Kelliher, baseball mainstay, Jack Leary, hockey star, and Homer Leppien, high scorer on the rifle team, complete the list of the athletic great ones.

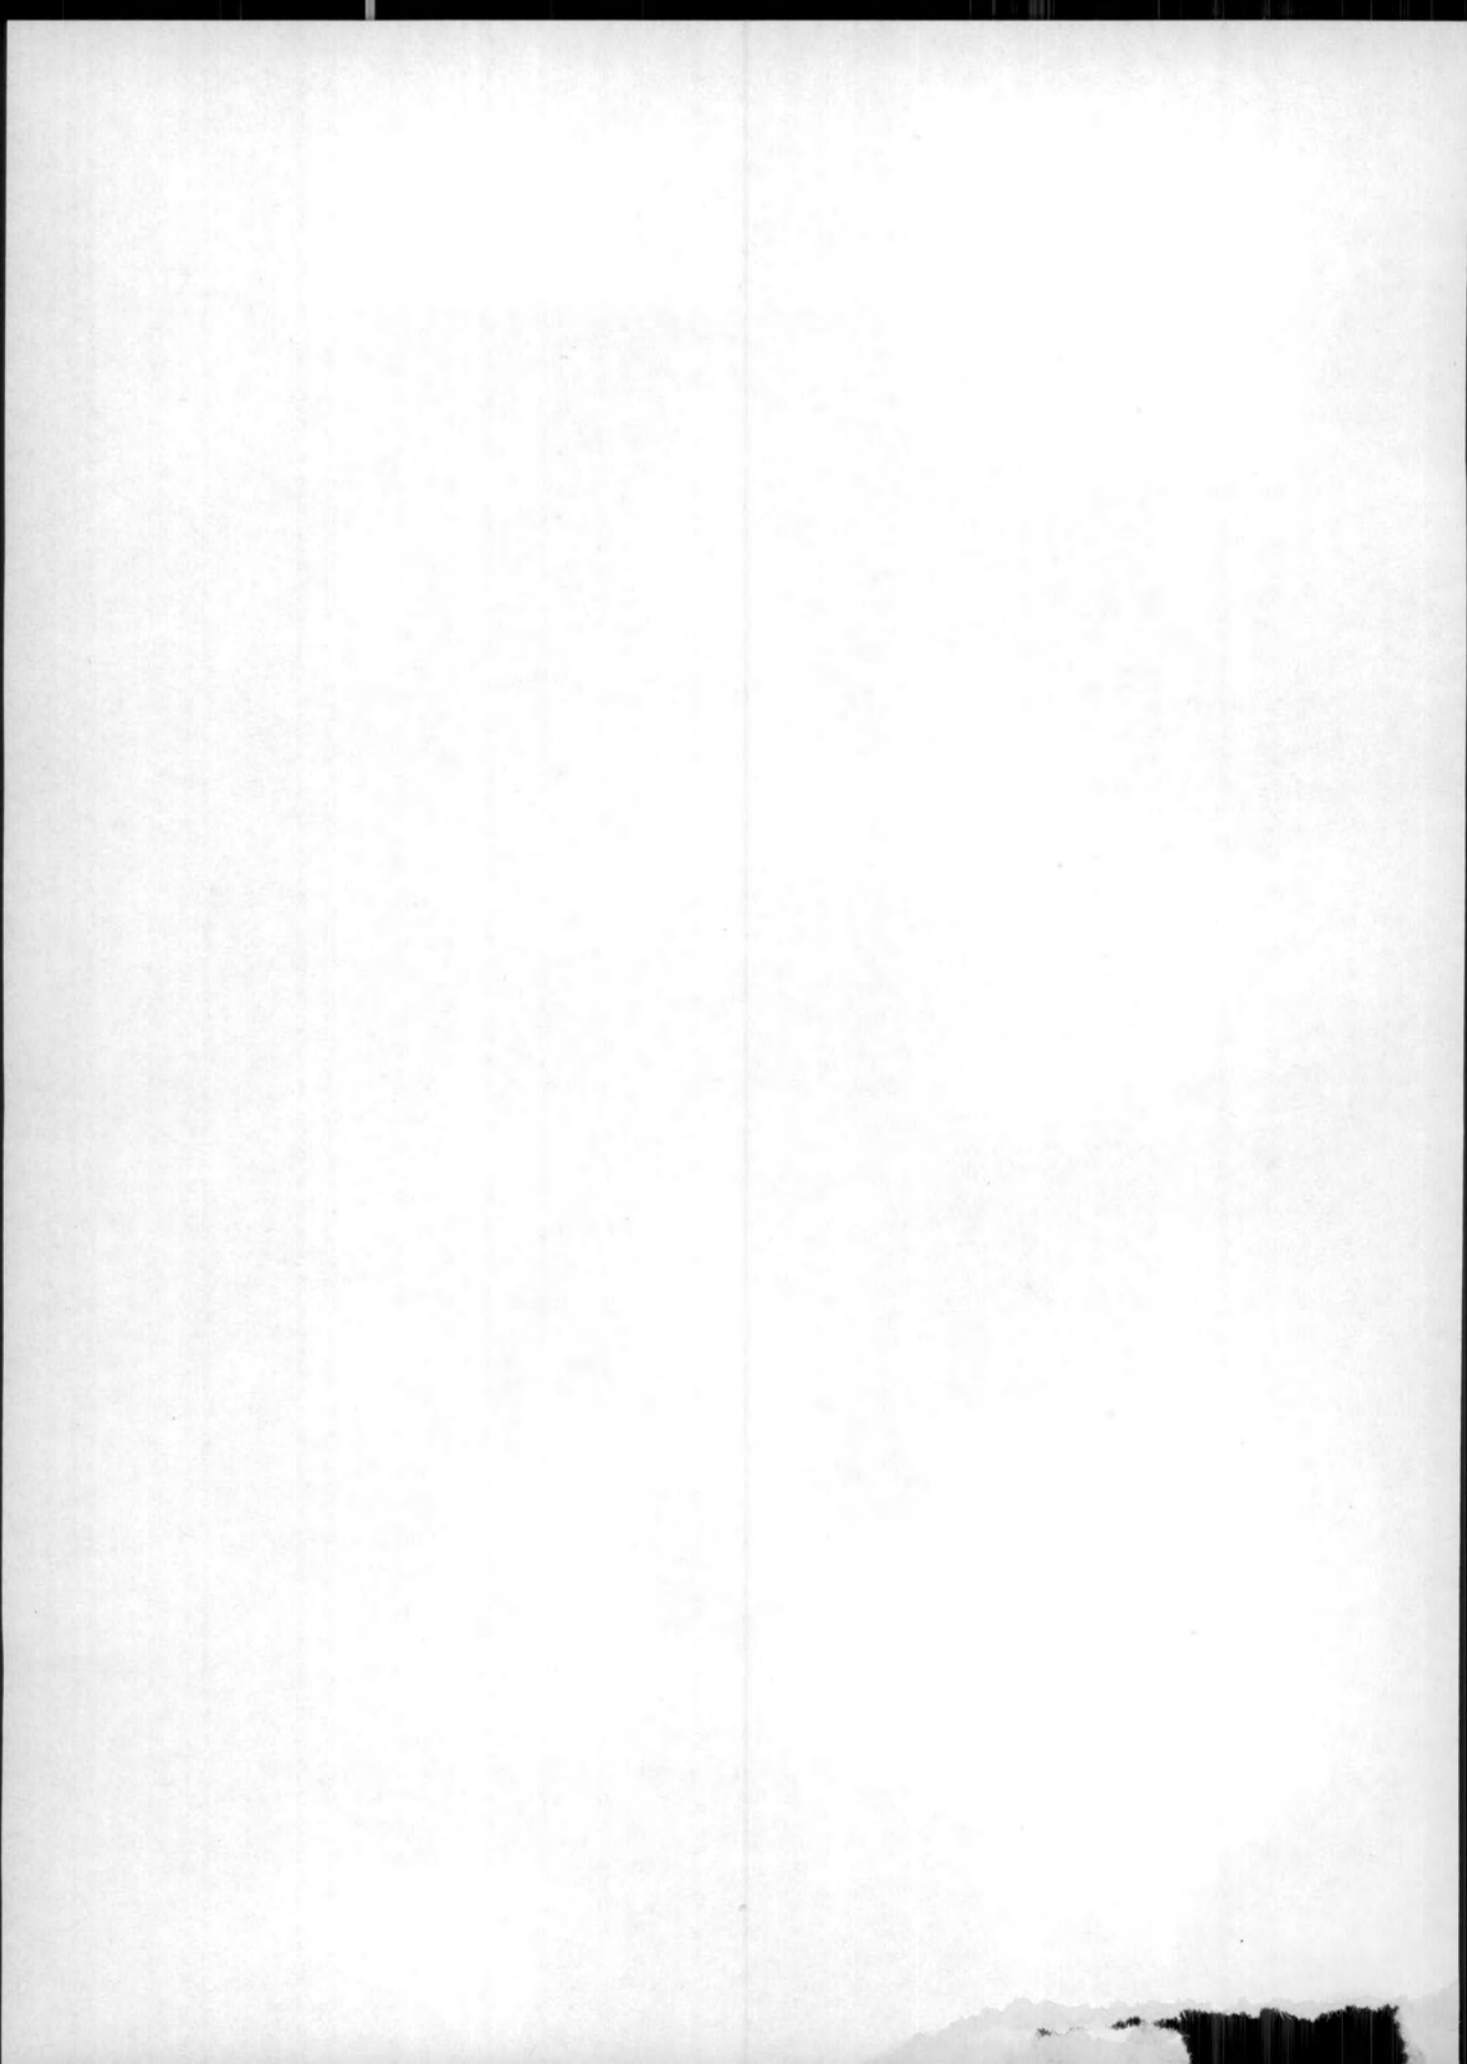

As we turn away from these luminaries, a strange moaning sound like a rising storm, smites our ears, and sure enough we behold Champion, Lawlor, Fogarty and Treacy practicing for the Glee Club in spite of the protests of nearby sufferers. Not far off, Zoller and Fairbanks are shaking the walls in their preparation for the afternoon debate in the Senior Debating Society, while George R. Leonard, III (he insists on the full title) gazes dreamily into the distance and hopes for future dramatic triumphs as a result of his great showing in the last play. Last, but certainly as equally important, we discern the class wizards, Fairbanks, Zoller, Moran and Sharkey, plus Carniaux with his never-failing Latin translations, all these rolling off recitation after recitation with monotonous regularity. Kister, whose renditions of French pronunciation are worth coming miles to hear; O'Neill, who always seems to be isolated in a distant part of the room, and Hrostoski, who is always caught by Mr. Foley in the midst of a sound sleep, all form a combination which keeps the class from ever being dull.

It is certainly fitting to dedicate a paragraph to those luckless beings who must guide us through the mazes of fourth-year school work, Messrs. Walsh, Flynn, Fitzgerald, McCabe and Foley who, together with Father Hearn, are doing a great job in forcing as much knowledge as possible into our respective craniums, in spite of the fact that Trig and Physics are as yet merely a rather vague combination of words.

The conclusion of this review naturally recalls the sobering realization that a year from now, the members of 4-A-3 will have dispersed into very different and widely separated fields. In endeavoring to make this last year a busy and active one at the Prep, you may be sure that we will prepare ourselves in every way to meet the hardships to come. Certainly, remembering the happy times spent here, we will carry on in our future fields with the same spirit which has made the class of 4-A-3 an integral part of Prep life.

THE CLASS OF 3-B-1

"GENTLEMEN, look this way please," the photographer calls. There is a faint click and the indelible reproduction of 3-B-1 is registered on a thin strip of film. This picture goes to press and is stamped in hundreds of similar books. In hundreds of homes admiring Prepsters point to this snapshot and exclaim, "There's Renz, he knows his football." or "That man's Jasper Kennedy! He may look small, but his bat sure packs dynamite." Perhaps the neat figure of Joe Bier draws forth the exclamation, "That man is versatility personified. Scholarship and tennis are just two of the many activities he excels in." The diminutive figure of Frank McMahon is certain to attract notice. Short indeed, but what a student!

These are but a few of the outstanding members of the class. We are proud of them you may be sure. But it is not their fame which has endeared them to our hearts. Closely associated as we are in the classroom, we become thoroughly acquainted with one another. Here many unsuspected traits in each man are brought to light. And it is these characteristics which have decided the corner each individual shall have in our affection.

Few analyses of a man's character could be as nearly correct as one made by a classmate. Thus it is that after three years of almost daily contact with each other we are all convinced that while every fellow may not be a first class student, or athlete, there is not a man amongst us who is not a good sport and a most agreeable classmate.

THE CLASS OF 3-B-2

The Class of 3-B-2

“WAR declared! 3-A-2 declares war on failures!” Thus the cry rang out on that Monday in September when the new scholastic year commenced. The members of 3-A-2 were determined that there should be no casualties.

On that initial day, the army, returned from its summer furlough, was assembled. Joined to our old regiment of 2-B-2 were many from the former 2-B-4 group. Ammunition, in the shape of Cicero, Ovid, geometry and other texts, was distributed and soon the drilling was proceeding apace. After many skirmishes with monthly tests, we felt well prepared for our first major encounter, that with the first term exams. Inevitably came January; equally inevitably came the exams. Venimus, vidimus, vicimus.

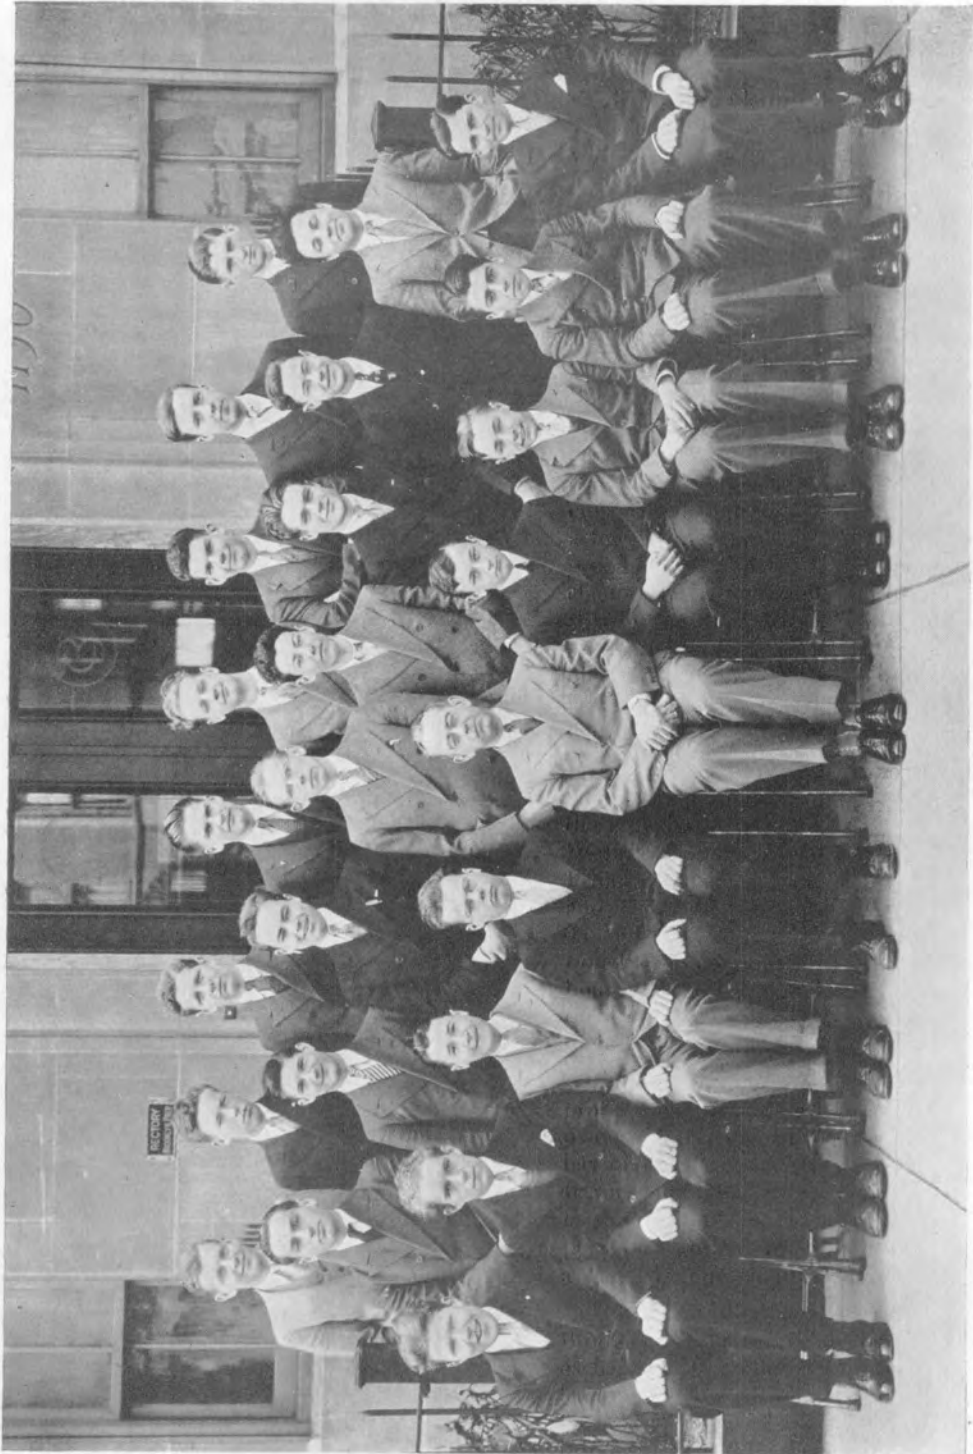

The eagerly desired spoils of victory were ours; promotion to 3-B-2. But this afforded us no opportunity to rest on our laurels. Rather must we do battle the more fiercely since the decisive conflict of the year, the battle with Province Exams, is drawing dangerously close. Preparations for this supreme test of our fighting ability proceed with renewed vigor. Our standing army was even forced to sit down (for it had been remembered that the pen is mightier than the sword and it had been discovered that it's easier to write when seated than when standing).

Yet let it not be supposed that our every minute has been monopolized by work. The Campus Martius affords opportunity for activities other than military drills. Farrington, Toney, Schaumburg and McLaughlin have played football; Robinson has seen action on the basketball court; clouds of dust will undoubtedly be raised by some embryonic Babe Ruth in our midst, sliding safely home to score the winning run for Brooklyn Prep this Spring. Huisking and Treacy are our natators, the latter being also a member of the rifle team. Cullen, our Demosthenes, represented Prep in the High School Oratorical Contest. Aleksunas, Farrington and Kunz have done their best, as members of the Glee Club, to make the welkin ring, while Berinati, Schroepel and Russell were busily engaged in designing bigger and better 'planes for the Aero Club. To those already mentioned add: Toomey—who always knows the answer; Whelan—who thirsts for argument; Forbes—the only one who likes chemistry; McCauley—who can ask more questions; and the rest of us—who could very happily do without Latin themes.

Well-trained in the arts of War, in the arts of Peace well-versed, we, the members of 3-B-2 wish to express our gratitude—a gratitude that springs from sincere hearts—for all that the Prep has done to prepare us for life by making us better men. With heads high and shoulders squared, we advance to our Senior Year, confident that, God willing, success will be ours. May every day that the future, bright with hope, holds forth to us, here at the Prep and in the years to follow, find us faithfully working Ad Majorem Dei Gloriam.

THE CLASS OF 3-B-3

The Class of 3-B-3

AS Mother Nature draws together the somber portals of fading day and Manhattan Island is shrouded by a shadowy pall, the day of June 15, 1974 is ushered out with the darkness.

It is eight o'clock and the banquet table is laid in the small rose ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria for the annual reunion of the Class of 1935. An interesting group of rotund individuals gathers around the fireplace in a far corner, and as Governor McGuire, "Jim" to you, strolls in with the pep of his personality, the scene is enlivened by hand-shaking and shouts of welcome. Poster and Prag, prominent merchants who recently opened a branch in London, talk quietly in one corner. Watson and Welstead, physicists, seem to be in spirited argument over some technicality of the X-Ray Spectrum.

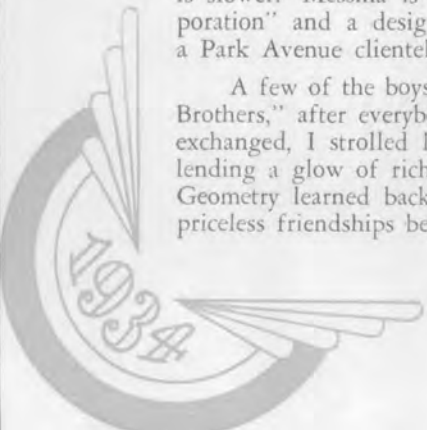

Let's look over the diners: Reil, who shone as a dashing wing on Prep's hockey team in the old days is still enthusiastic, for his Rangers are packing them in at the Garden and are leading the league. Jakoby, our old star disciple of Euclid, has been engaged in putting his theorems to practical use on the new Colorado Dam. He has a few wrinkles now. Bob Lilly, who used to make St. Francis hustle, if not envious, is grooming Bob, Jr., for the Olympic Games in Berlin. Bob, Sr., might qualify for the channel now on account of his girth. Callahan, whose new weekly, "Tomorrow," is stirring the thought of the country, is as studious as when he led his class back in '34. Hollenstein whose voice is familiar to all radio listeners over W B P is taking a night off. Greg O'Keefe, who has been passing up lunches for the problems of corporation law, is making up for lost time tonight with his knife and fork. McCreery, the President of the Board of Aldermen, is surrounded by both Democrats and Republicans.

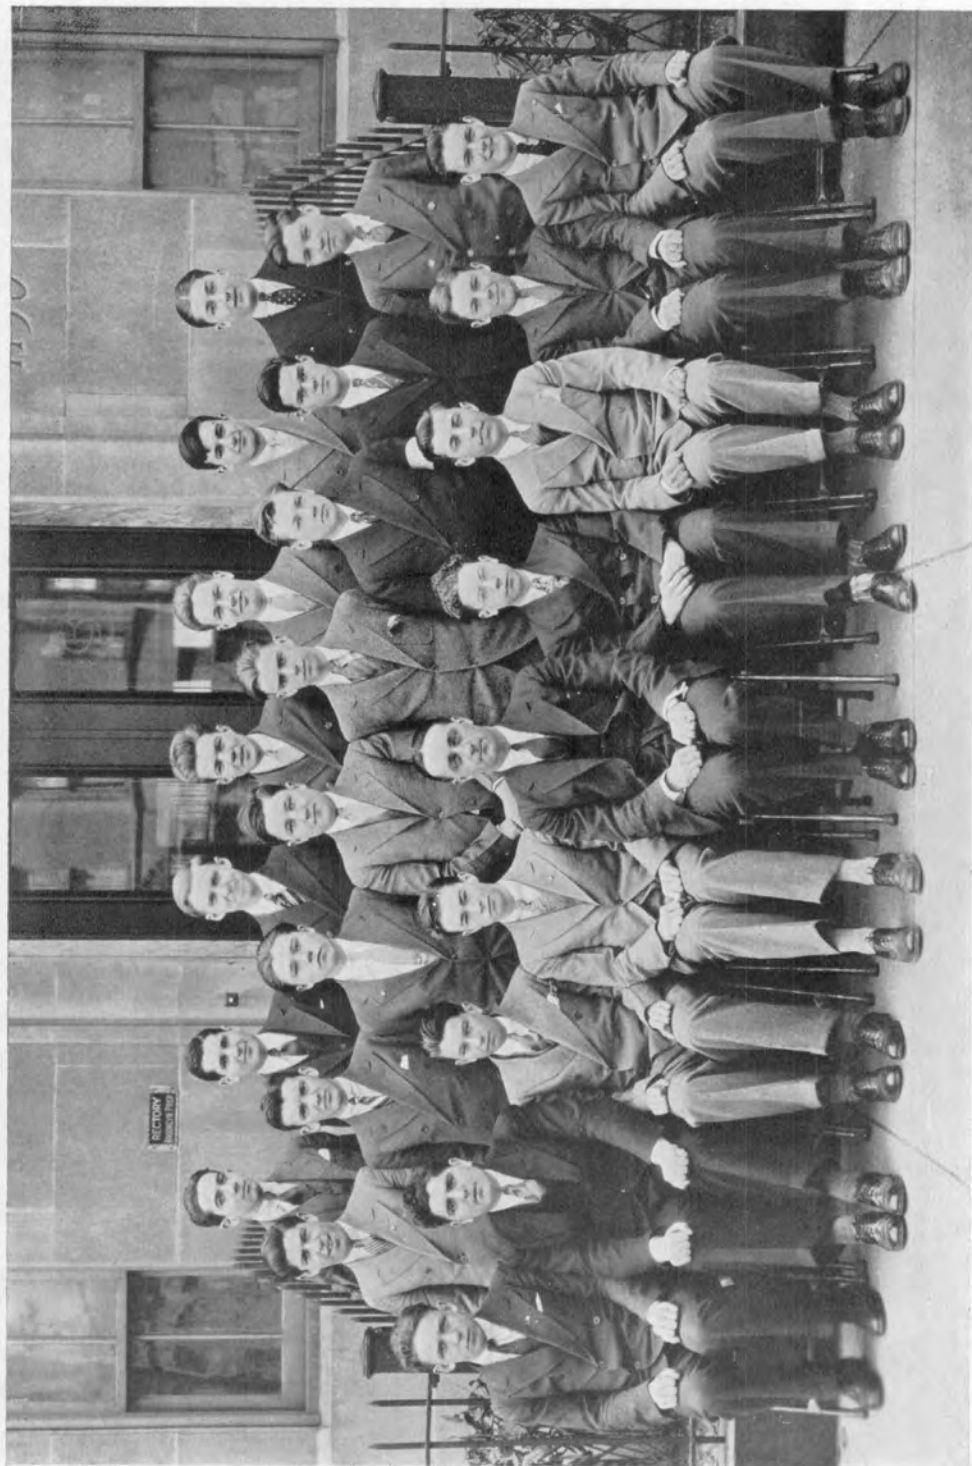

Now that the coffee has been reached and the cigars lit, Fullam, our toastmaster, who passed up theatrical engagements to be with us, raps for order. After greeting the crowd and recalling old scenes he presents Welstead who reads a radiogram from Wallace Donovan, who is busy buying tea in Shanghai, and a telegram from Senator Peterson who is too busy on a treaty with Italy to get away from Washington. Hogan and Toomey, on a world tour, send us salutations from aboard the "S. S. Merengeria." Then Bill Carroll talks to us on the future of aviation. He is ready for the International Air Races, with his "G. B." tuned up to five hundred and fifty miles an hour. McGill and Sclafani entertain us with choice anecdotes from their celebrated careers in football. Both are coaches in leading colleges of the East—both are using their new system—the Prep "side-step."

A bit of music ensued with McAloon, Whalen, Wittschen, Hurley, well-known professional men renewing the "Prep Victory March." Off to the side two steamship owners in the persons of Connelly and Keegan, review trade projects, while Walsh has quite a gathering interested in some stories of his career on the diamond. "Professor" Sinnott is still easy going and cheerful though his hair is graying and his gait is slower. Messina is chief stockholder in the "United Aircraft and Transport Corporation" and a designer of planes. Doctor Leo Hart, tall and robust physician to a Park Avenue clientele, specializes in dragging his patients away from death's door.

A few of the boys who were Elks closed the evening with "Here's to Our Absent Brothers," after everybody has harmonized "Sweet Adeline." After partings had been exchanged, I strolled leisurely up Park Avenue, the fading stars and blushing dawn lending a glow of richness to the scene. I thought that the amount of Chemistry or Geometry learned back in 1934 at the Prep did not seem so important now as the priceless friendships begun there.

JUNIORS!! With a general expansion of everyone's "ego" we learned that we were to answer to that lofty appellation. The freshmen and sophomore years seem to be dim, gray milestones on the road behind us. Already we have passed the midpoint of our career at the Prep. Quickly we are nearing the final goal—graduation.

During the past term the office of President has been very ably held by Joe Catalano, while that of class representative in the Student Council was filled efficiently by Edward Kelly.

Among the possessors of the coveted letters are Jack Quinn, whose prowess at swimming brought him this honor and whose ability in baseball won him a position on the Jayvee team. George Miles wears a letter too for his fine work as goalie on the varsity hockey team. Tony Parmeggiani holds down a line position on the junior varsity football team, while Leo Lawrence is a track star. In the interclass basketball league our team made a very creditable showing, it is composed of O'Toole, Kelly, Miles, Tangney, Behan, Dennehy, Hangarter and Kirwin.

We have saved the best for the last. The scholastic ability of our class is demonstrated by such scholars as Catalano, Behan, Miles, Neagle and Scavullo. We are well represented in the Senior Debating Society by Blehl, Kelly, Behan and Catalano.

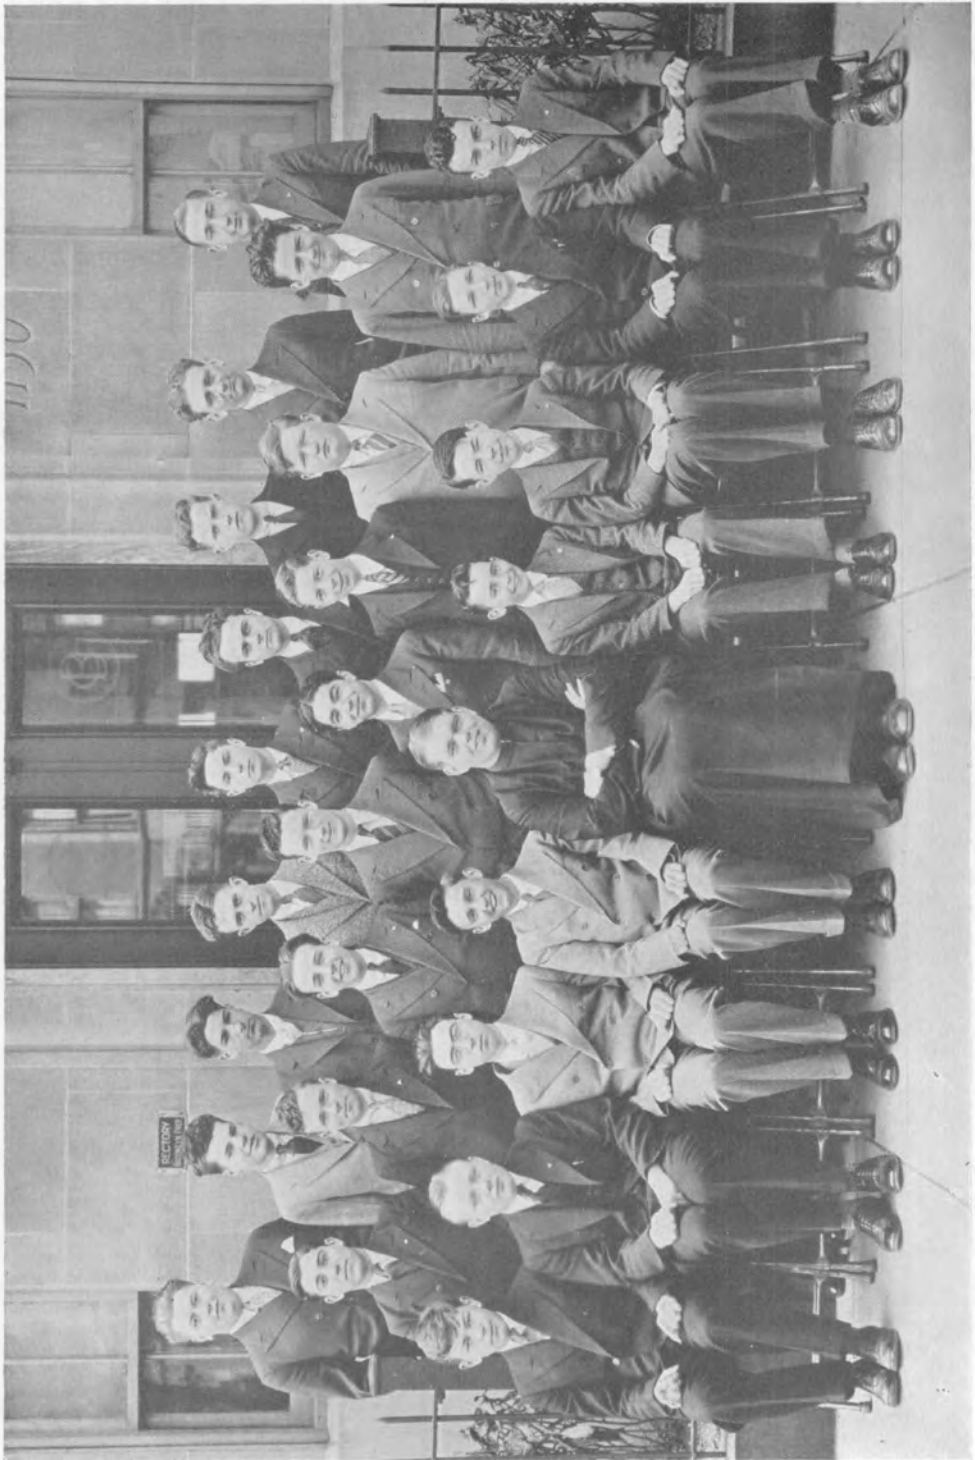

You notice it every day in class:

1. Leo Lawrence's ability to manipulate the King's English.
2. Sullivan's flair for argumentation.
3. The daily manipulation of the window at the back of the room.
4. Ovid memory and subsequent parsing for a certain few.

Brilliant have been the years that have passed and there remain but two. During that time which is gone forever we have tried to uphold the banner of our school in the paths opened before us. The sun of our education has reached its zenith and has started on its downward journey. May its rays brighten our path until at last we stand in the glow of its setting, knowing that we have cherished the honor of our school and confident that we shall continue to do so after we have left her portals.

DANIEL LYNCH.

THE CLASS OF 3-A-3

The Class of 3-A-3

FOR two years we have been together, working as a unit in order that we may leave our Alma Mater as a unit. In the bliss of ignorance, our high school career started. We are now, however, advancing in age and wisdom.

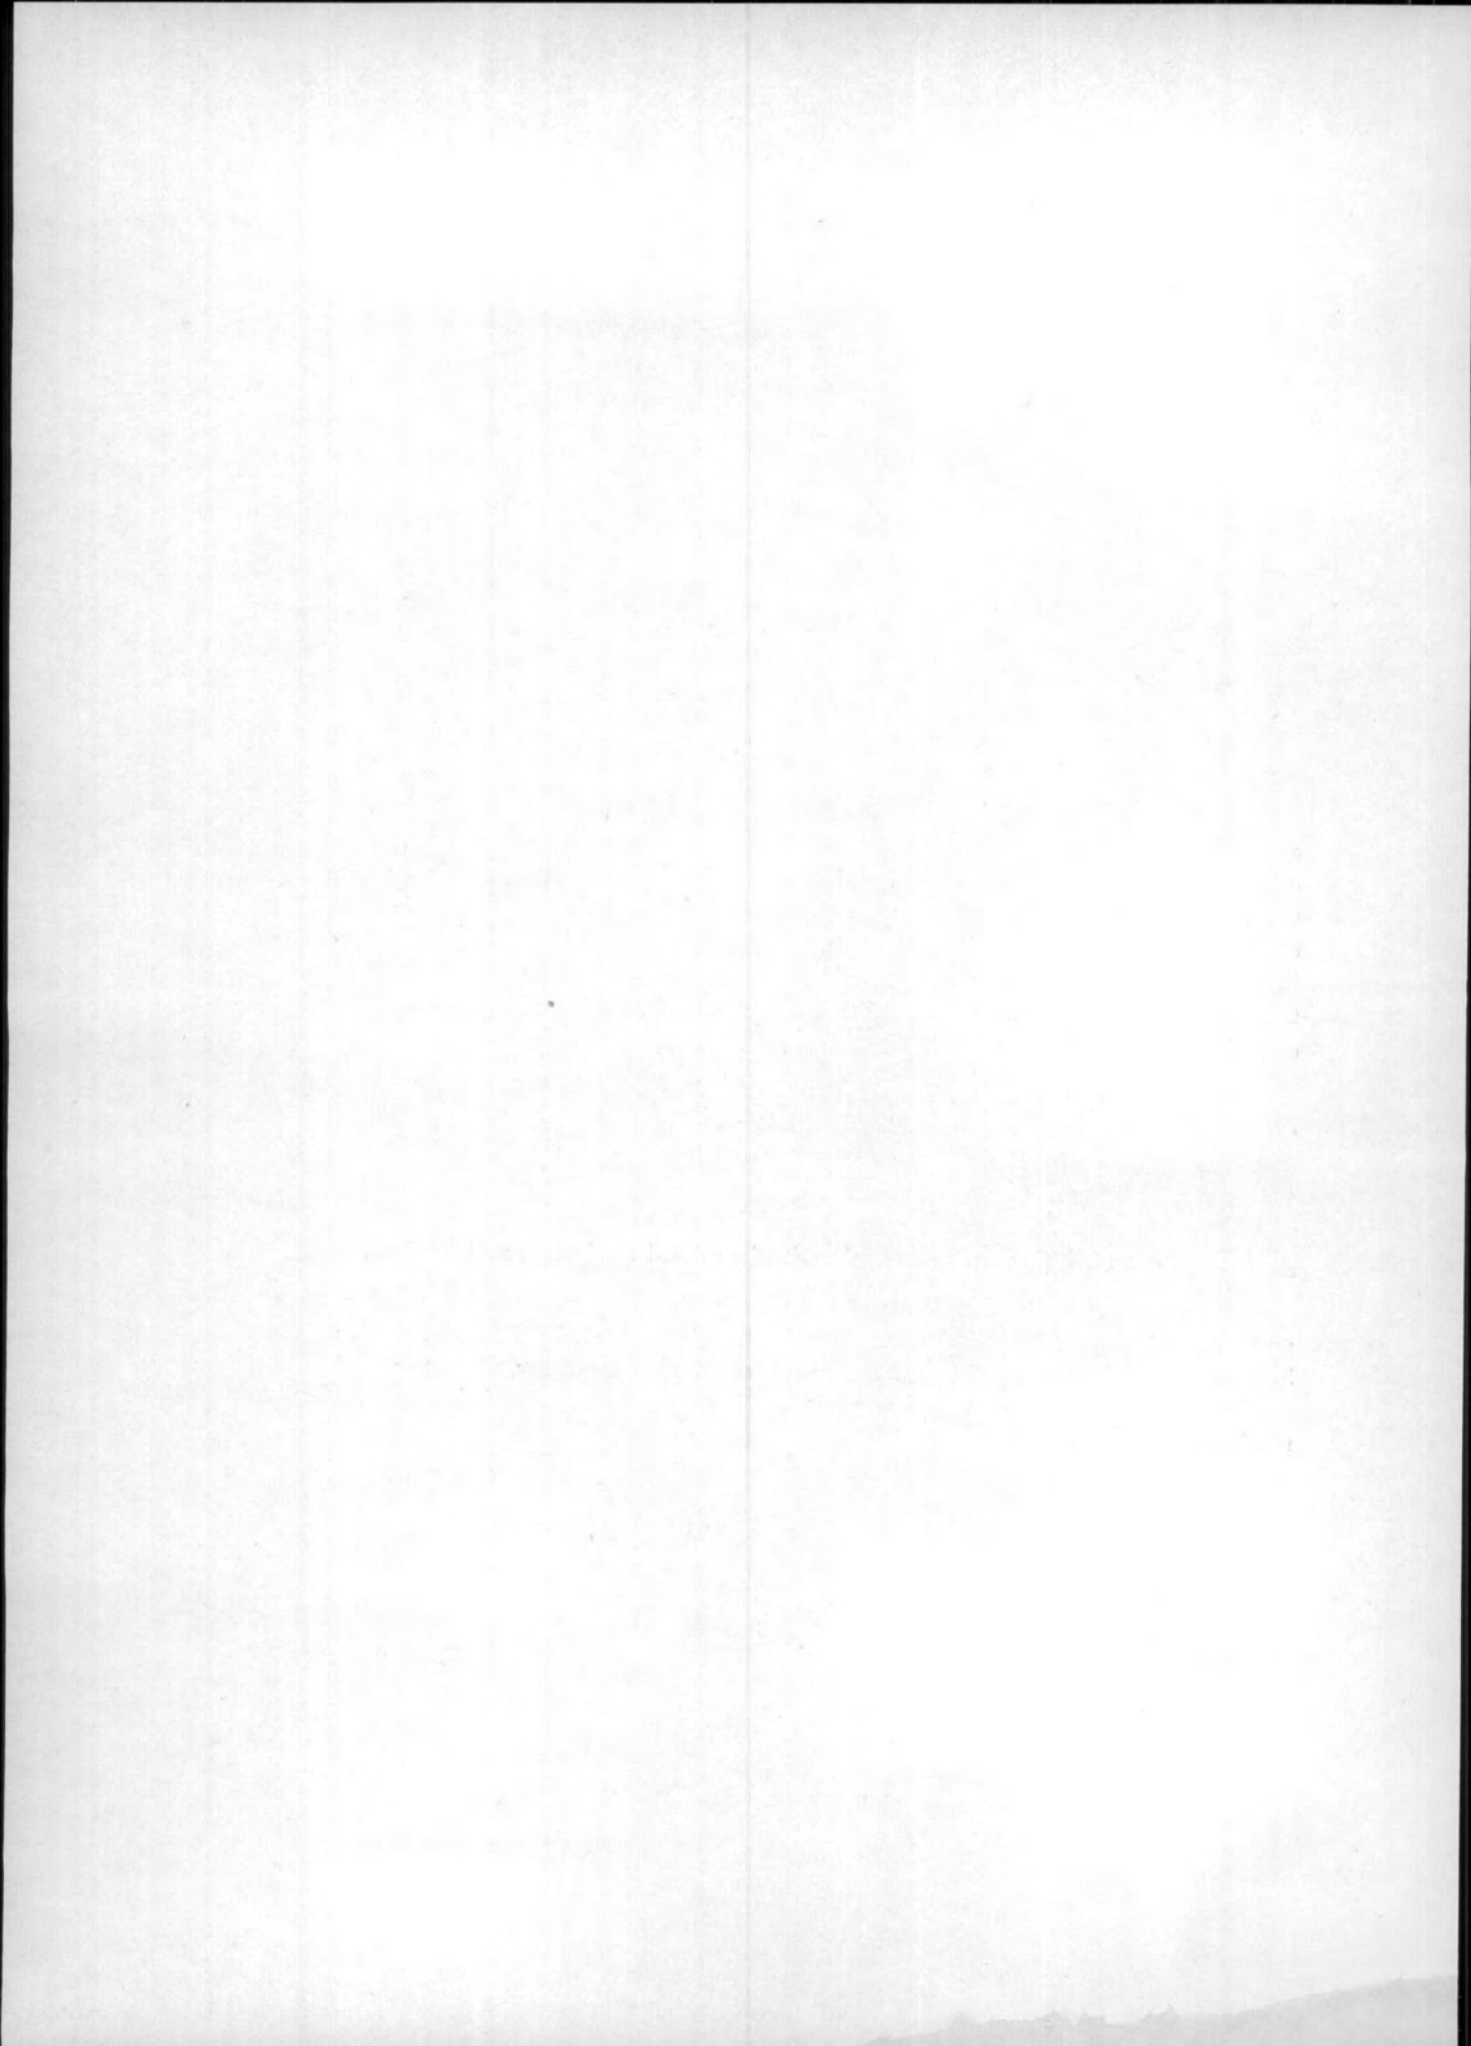

An army, going into battle, necessarily loses a straggler here and there. Like the army, so our class lost a few stragglers in its fight with education. The bulwark of our class is, nevertheless, still struggling. They never give up hope nor do they despair when the reports are sent home; they resolve to better themselves, to show their best efforts, to convince all of their willingness and ability. Whether in class, in sports or in other activities, our scouts are doing their duty. No matter how severe the task they accomplish it. Moreover there exists in this band of red-blooded fighters a spirit of joviality and good-fellowship which is hard to surpass.

To neglect to name some of our luminaries would be unpardonable, for not a few of our class deserve to be mentioned. As scholars we have Courtney, Maher, Shapiro and Vollmerhausen. In the field of sports we have Cloke, Eginton, Graffagnino, Mullin, O'Brien and Ottavino. Our torch singer is Collins, a member of the Glee Club. The class comedian is Oczko, a great wit. This term's award for brilliant Latin translations goes to Spencer Neil (ignotos montes salutavit—he saluted the ignorant mountains).

From the above collection, the reader can easily see that our class is composed of noteworthy characters. The time draws near for the close of this brief history. Let us hope the next history will be about the same class, the same number, characters, and brilliance. In the name of the class of 3-A-3 I close with "Auf Wiedersehen bis naechstes Jahr."

The Class of 2-B-1

IF I am to give to my reader (providing of course that I am so fortunate as to have one) a clear picture of our little colony and its activities, I must first impress upon him the fact that the members of 2-B-1 are no strangers to each other. When first these boys were given the privilege of becoming "Prep Men" they did so hand in hand, and in like manner have they tramped their way up from the lowly positions of freshmen to the long pants stage of sophomores.

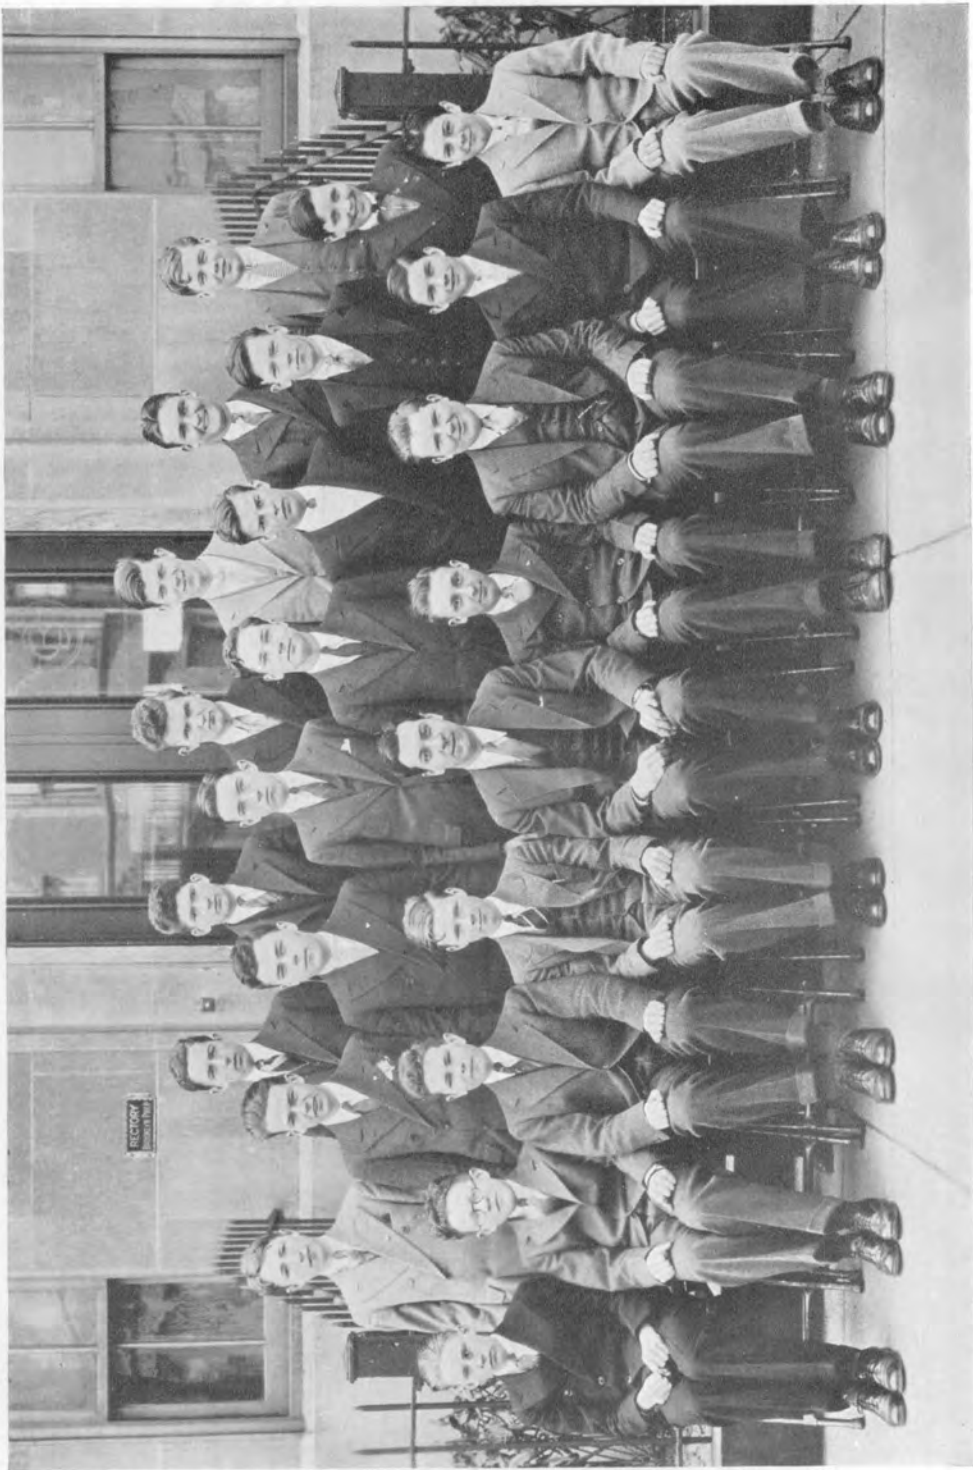

This term the man who guides the destiny of our class is none other than Jack Coakley, whose feats in the aquatic games have merited him no end of applause. Our football captain, Vice-President Ferguson, is his right hand man. Yes, you may well say that we are more than sufficiently represented on the athletic field, but do not allow yourself to think that because of our interest in sports we cast aside studies. Certain proofs of this are vested in the personages of Messrs. Merolla and Noble. While we dwell on the subject of athletics we must by no means omit the man who is justly rated as one of Alma Mater's outstanding grid stars and has earned such names as "Cyclone" and "Touchdown." I, of course, refer to the illustrious "Si" Titus. We must not desert track either, for there we are represented by "Cliff" Randolph. And when it comes to entertaining we are not to be outdone: "Red" McAmphill aids in supplying harmony to the Prep Glee Club and "Gerry" Hogan takes his stand among the members of the Dramatic Club.

Perhaps my reader is by this time wondering who could be so fortunate as to be given the pleasant task of feeding knowledge into the eager mouths of these and other equally fine fellows. To Mr. Sullivan, S.J., is entrusted the task of teaching to us the intricacies of "The ancient language." Mr. Wedder shows to his attentive class the marvels of nature in Biology. For our knowledge of the "King's English" we owe thanks to Mr. A. Fitzgerald. The work of untangling the mysteries of Algebra has been committed to Mr. Sullivan and for our spiritual needs we seek out Rev. Father Henderson, S.J. Mr. Devlin teaches us the how and why of our government in the Civics class.

"Tempus Fugit," said the Latins, but no matter how fast time does fly it cannot impede the present bond of friendship which exists among these students of Brooklyn Prep. For the breeze created by the flying of time cannot uproot the friendships planted among us in these last two years at the Prep.

YOUTH, unless, of course, it be extreme, is no handicap. How often are we struck with the truth of these words. Everywhere, in all lines of activity, we find the young prominent, their enthusiasm and fighting spirit often prevailing over the decisions of more experienced but mechanical and unimaginative thinkers whose hair has turned gray in the service. Where could we search for an example of this with better hope of success than in a school? Let the school be Brooklyn Prep, and then let us pick out a worthy example of our contention. No better example can be found than 2-B-2.

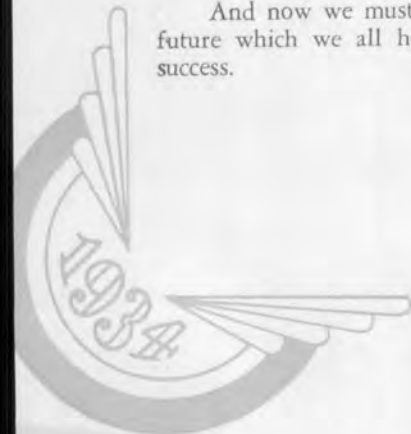

This class brought before the student body some hitherto unknown youngsters who bid fair to lay claim at some future date to a niche in the Brooklyn Prep Hall of Fame. The section is noted for its athletic and aesthetic achievements. We will consider the former first. The team which represented 2-B-2 in the Interclass Basketball Tournament, though composed of inexperienced players save one, in the person of Bill Stewart, who deserves mention here, completely outclassed all its opponents and came back with the palm of victory in its hands. On the gridiron also the class contributed its share with Stone, Smith, Steinbugler, and Fitzgerald forming the nucleus of the Jayvee squad. If the section lives up to the record in athletics which it has already made for itself, the Prep need never worry about material for its teams. The manager of baseball is yours truly.

The class also boasts of many sterling scholars, mainly George Sheehan, Vinny Doyle, Charlie Steinbugler, Walt Pfizenmayer, Walt Anderson and Jack Dies being among those excelling. Here allow me to say a word about George Sheehan. George not only excels in scholarship but also in sports and popularity; this is proved by the fact that he has been represented on all the class teams, in fact he is captain of two, and what is more his winning personality gained for him the presidency of class. Our group also was duly represented in the play, especially the marvelous performance of Vinny Doyle, and several others who were in the Glee Club, Joe Braun, Walt Anderson, Eddy O'Connell, and Dan Sallows.

Aside from this we have our fun in class, too. What could be more comical than the inimitable Jack Fitzgerald delivering a speech on British Broadcasting on Sunday, or our famed elocutionist, Francis Smith, emitting that famed composition of Stevenson, "Twinkle, Twinkle, Little Star," or Joe Genoversa, the class Beau Brummel, dramatically vocalizing his idea on "how to kill a polar bear with an icicle." These punsters together with Ed O'Connell terrifying us with his horrible grimaces, Willy McKnight and Johnny McCafferty of the famed Rockaway Ramblers, Joe Braun, our edition of Joe Penner, Vinny Doyle, whose (stentorian) laugh reverberating through the room reminds us of Nero, the ancient Roman Emperor. I must mention, too, Bud Allen, a basketball star, and John MacAteer, whose humorous antics often send the class into spasms of laughter.

And now we must close the door on the second semester, and look ahead, to the future which we all hope holds great things in store for us, mainly happiness and success.

THE CLASS OF 2-B-3

The Class of 2-B-3

"DUM haec in Venetis geruntur," quadratic equations, simultaneous systems, inflation, legal tender, protozoa, digestional tract, correlative words, sentence structure. Oh! my head, I'll have to rest awhile. I'll just sit in front of the log fire awhile and loaf.

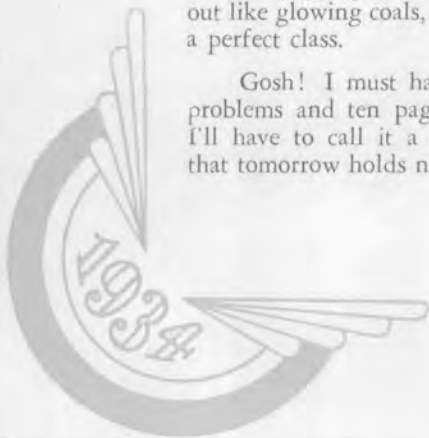

What is this I see? The flames are taking shape and I see before me the teachers of 2-B-3. Mr. McCabe, ardent follower of the activities of Caesar; Mr. Wedder, strictly concerned with the ways of nature; Mr. Quinn, takes care of the trickier things of life (math); Mr. Giegengack, helps the young politician with the affairs of the government of our nation, and Mr. Horigan, S. J. takes care of all things connected with the native tongue. As these flames flicker and die down I see other flames. There is Ed Grant, member of the Glee Club, impersonating Bing Crosby singing "Throw another log on the fire." Can this be possible? Here comes Bill Deegan, baseball star and class beadle, carrying a large absentee pad, and in compliance with Grant's song is throwing not another log but the absentee pad on the fire. On each sheet are the names of a few members of 2-B-3. I'll try my best to get the names before the sheets curl up and burn.

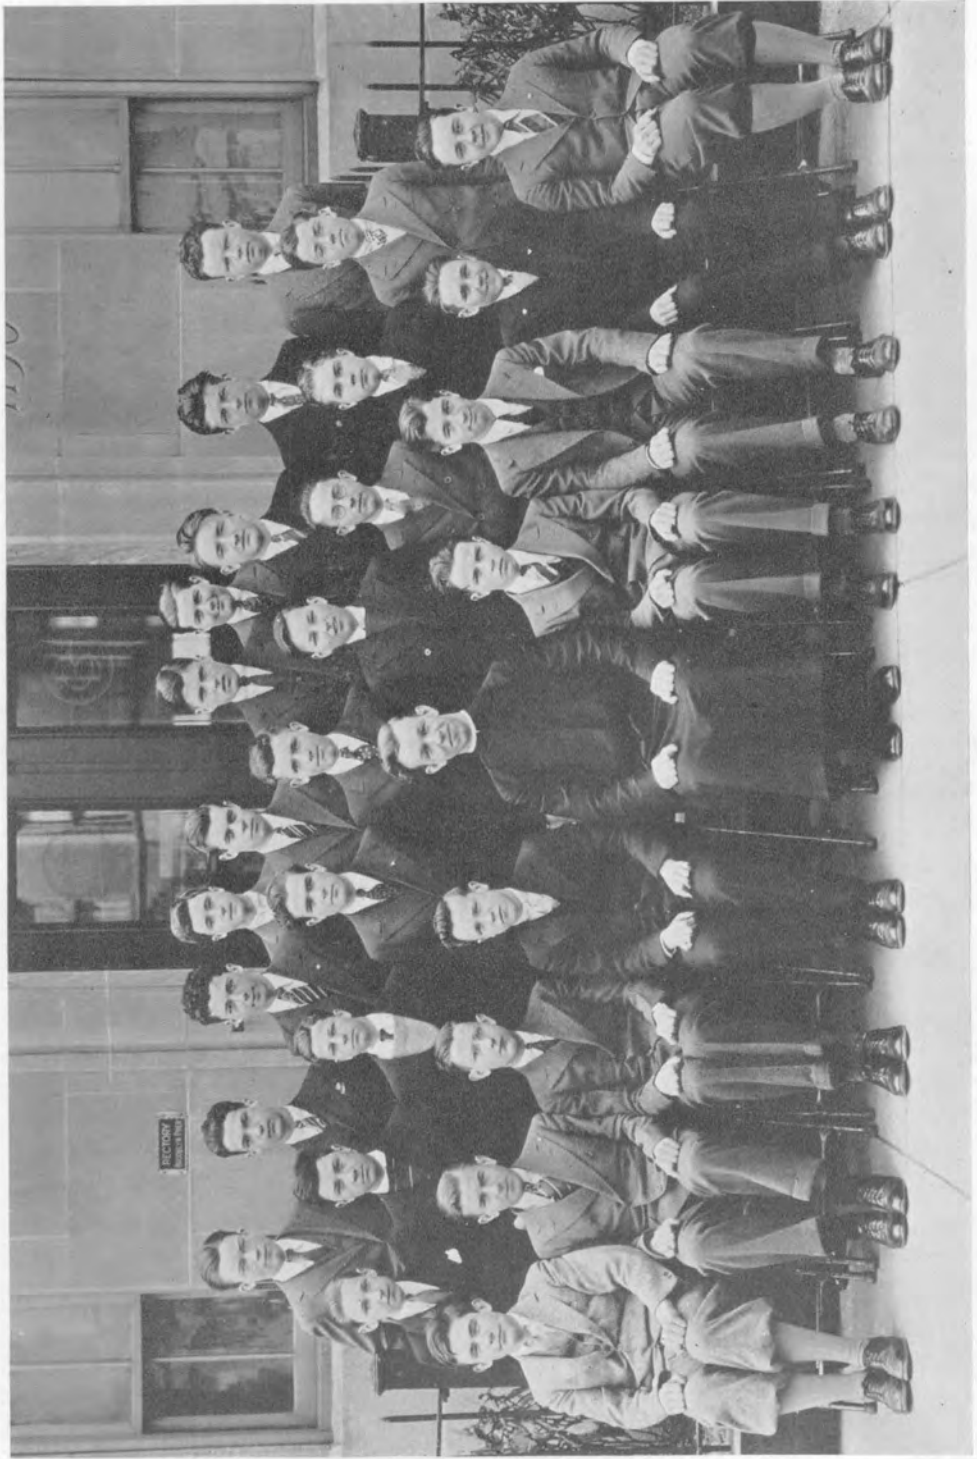

The first sheet is a jug list which I will have to let burn because there are too many names on it for me to read in such a short time. On the second sheet, I see Jim Regan, Herb Whalen and Bruce McEvoy, all enthusiastic followers of the gridiron sport. Next comes a sheet with the word Baseball printed across the top and on that sheet I see Bill Dugan and Frankie Valentine who are both well out in front in the race for a berth on the varsity nine. The next has the names of two big financial men, if you know what I mean, Ed Goodwin and Mike Charles. The following sheet is pretty hot and burning fast, and why not, with such dramatic talent gracing the page. You guessed it, Dick Moses and Phil McFarland, both members of the cast of "Old Heidelberg." Now, to stop those pages from burning so fast, we are grateful for the next which has to do with water, and the names of the mermen are Joe Lawler, Dan Carroll and Jim Coyle. The following page contains boys who rank high in scholastic ability, John "Tiger" Finnegan, John Savage, "Syl" Kenny, Dick Moses, Ed Grant and Bill Kelly, who also knows the restaurant business from A to Z.

That is all for that pad; but stay around, for here comes "Syl" Russo running up with a new pad. Naturally, Russo being a track man himself, the first page is devoted to track. I see Bob White, "Syl" Russo and Bruce McEvoy. Frank McPadden's name is also on the list although he is not a track man he necessarily has to be a good runner to keep one jump ahead of the Student Police. The next sheet contains miscellaneous names. Harry Martin, famed debater, Bill Amoroso, well dressed man and fashion plate of the Prep; Joe Daly, John Douglas, Anthony Gallagher and Harry Kane, a group who are always ready to give us a big smile, especially when the teachers are in a jugging mood. And now, just before the pad turns to ashes I see two standing out like glowing coals, Joe Shea and Hazen Tyler, two names that help greatly to make up a perfect class.

Gosh! I must have fallen asleep, and I still have Latin translation, a few Math problems and ten pages of Civics to do. Oh! but look at the time, 12:00 o'clock, I'll have to call it a day and hope for a better one tomorrow even though I know that tomorrow holds nothing (zeros in recitations) for me.

"Friends of the radio audience, in just a few moments you will become the guests of the Great Review about to be presented by the members of the class of 2-A-1.

As the curtain rises we see five young valiants dodging, passing and shooting in a manner which would make any great basketball team envious. They are: Mario Garcia, John Hartz, Dick Everroad, Tom Humphreys and Frank Young. These boys are the principal stars of the 2-A-1 class basketball team.

Hardly has the basketball team disappeared when we behold several boys in baseball togs. In the foreground is John Smith, well known mentor of the J. V. team. Next comes Austin Cahill, Bernard Rasmussen, Robert King and Tom Lund, who will probably cause much annoyance to their adversaries in the interclass baseball league.

Now in order to give those of our audience who are not so interested in athletics their share of enjoyment, we present our greatest scholars. George Wiseman, the first to make his appearance, can tell you almost anything you wish to know about American history. Who is this approaching the microphone so deeply absorbed in Caesar's Gallic Wars? Why! It's none other than Joe Peck, the boy who can read and speak Latin as fluently as English. And speaking of English, allow us to present to you William Milton, whose fine diction and pronunciation are almost equal to President Roosevelt's. But now, since every great group of scholars must have a great mathematician, we take pleasure in introducing to you Joseph McMullen, who, we are certain, will some day show Professor Einstein a thing or two.

It can't be! Yet it is. Ladies and gentlemen, forgive me for my exclamation, but two boys resembling Daniel Webster and Henry Clay have just made their appearance in the studio and at first I thought that two of the most famous of our country's orators were once again in our midst. But in their stead we have Bill Thoet and William Martens, the most able representatives of 2-A-1 in the Sophomore Debating Society.

Pat Persicano, the first fellow to advance towards us, is well known for his expression, "Boy, that's juicy." Next comes Joe Hogan, who aspires to pin Jim Londos to the mat in the not far distant future; and Bill Buell, who is following in the footsteps of "Red" Grange. We are quite certain that Jerry Dalton, whose acting in "Old Heidelberg" was very fine, will some day become one of America's foremost actors. John Flaherty, who is now approaching the microphone, is the official pun-maker of the class. Joseph Canfield, who is standing beside John, supplies the necessary humor when the pun-maker is not in the right humor. Marshall MacDonald is a perfect example of the studious pupil. John Reynolds, the little fellow who is now coming towards us, gets in your hair as well as your soda in the lunchroom.

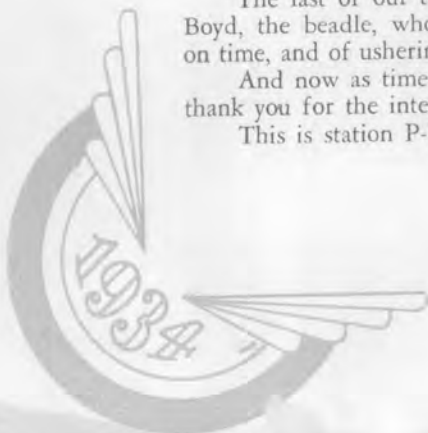

These boys who are just arriving are newcomers who have already proven themselves loyal men of 2-A-1 in various ways. They are Tom Pugh, Joseph Arambarry and Frank Goetz.

The last of our troupe is now boring his way to the microphone. He is Charles Boyd, the beadle, who had the responsibility of getting all the men into the studio on time, and of ushering them into their places.

And now as time is rapidly fleeing, we bid you all goodbye for another year, and thank you for the interest you have displayed in our program.

LUKE S. HAYDEN.

THE CLASS OF 2-A-2

The Class of 2-A-2

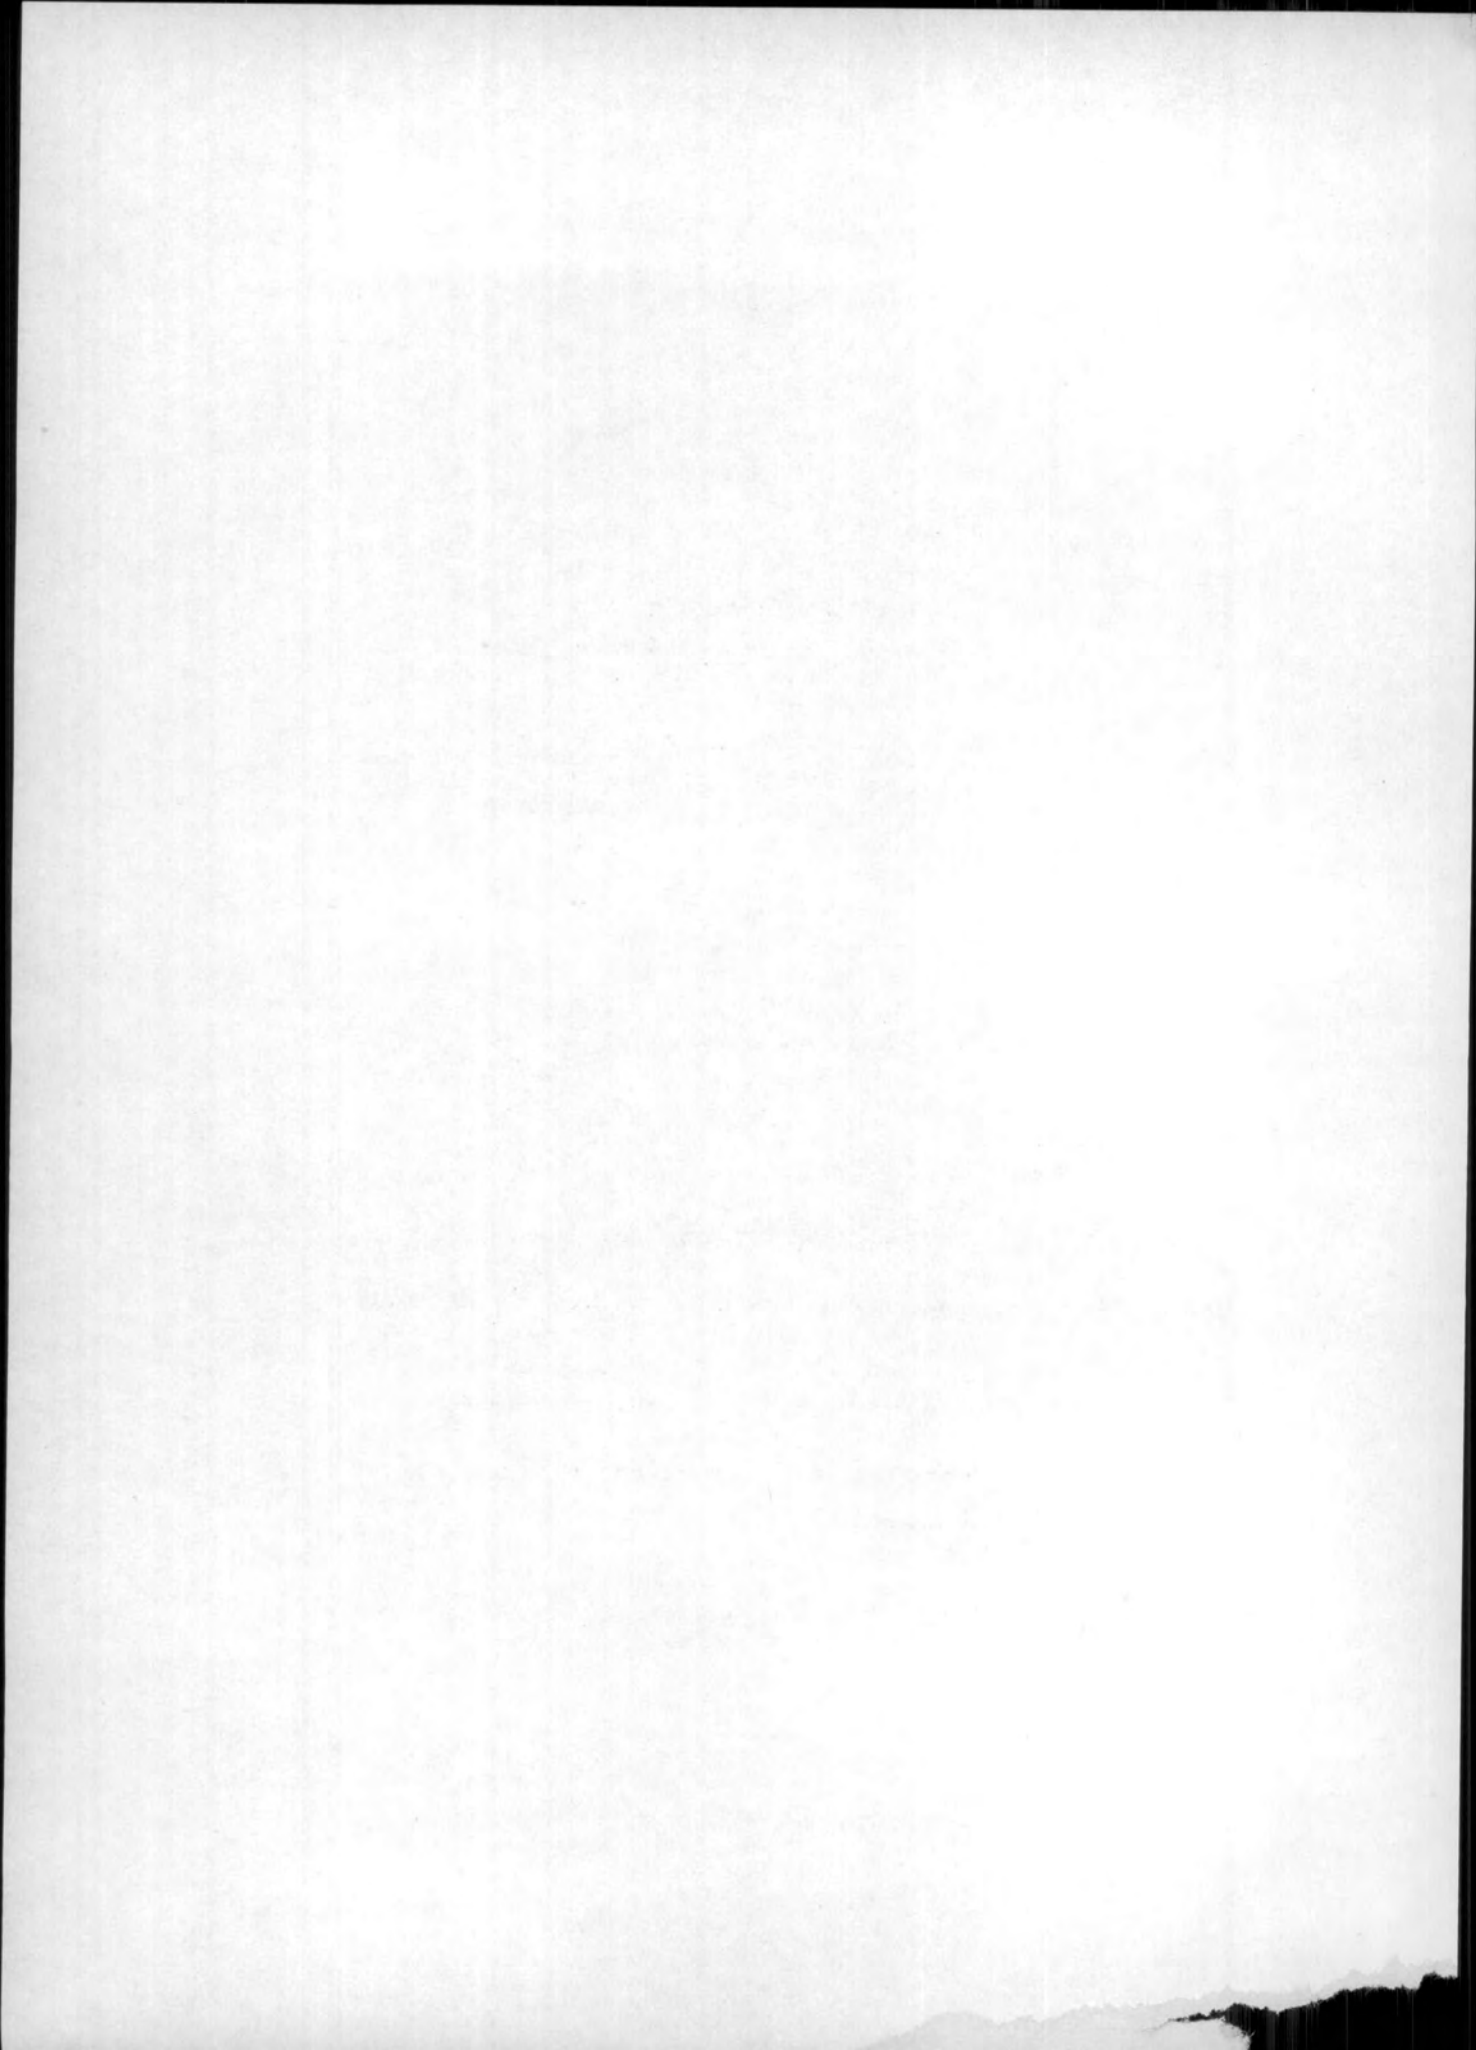

Whether we be portrayed as a valiant ship of state,
Or as an army battling great foes,
Or if to 1984 you wish to jump the date,
To us that does not matter for in class we sit in rows.
Now in row one, our beadle first, his name is Flynn;
And then appears George Kirscher, the class' leading name.
Third comes Mr. O'Hara, the man with a whimsical grin.
Who is next? Oh, little Champion, a man of honor-roll fame.
Bill Carroll, the man who rides a horse is here,
Signor Cavagnaro, the man who splits the bull's-eye.
Following comes jovial faced Kinane, of his weight we have no fear.
Now Appel, who not even to a math teacher ever told a lie;
Then Bill Harvey, whose remarks set the class straight.
There one plainly sees handsome John Hickey, the fiddler;
Then shy Larry Brueckner, though very smart, is often in a nervous state.
And now yours truly, who tries to be a rhymester, not a riddler.
In row three Baron Ludeke, the man who lost his monocle.
Bill McSherry is next, the man whose interrupted rr's seem comical.
A basketball player is Jack McNulty. To him some day a crown!
And then we have Jack Masterson with a way all his own.
Now appears Bill Higgins, whose humorous quirks induce a smile.
Our lead-off man, McGiness, who'd rather play ball than go home,
Followed by "Cafeteria" Bill Birmingham, who hands out Mel-O-Roll the while.
Ed Finley next, the man with the orator's persuading deep voice.
Then we see Ed McLaughlin, who in height is o'er us all.
Upon reaching the Prep trolley-ride Zacharewicz has reason to rejoice.
And here is Dick Howley, blessed with big heart although he's small,
And second in the last row is Ed Fagan, the silver tongue of the class.
Gabriel Pellegrino, who in difficult studies can pass,
And last is Philip Maree, a football star who'll beat them all.

To all who read this rhyme,
Thanks, greetings, and all the rest.

Give us please a little time,
And you may be sure we'll be the best.

WILLIAM LARKIN.

FRESHMIEN

FORDHAM UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

THE CLASS OF 1-B-1

The Class of 1-B-1

FRESHMEN! Yes, freshmen we were, when, with the inspiring words of Father Jacobs ringing in our ears, we filed slowly out of the auditorium on that first memorable day. The worthy desire to accomplish something worth while during our years at Prep was firmly implanted in our hearts as we set forth on our freshman year.

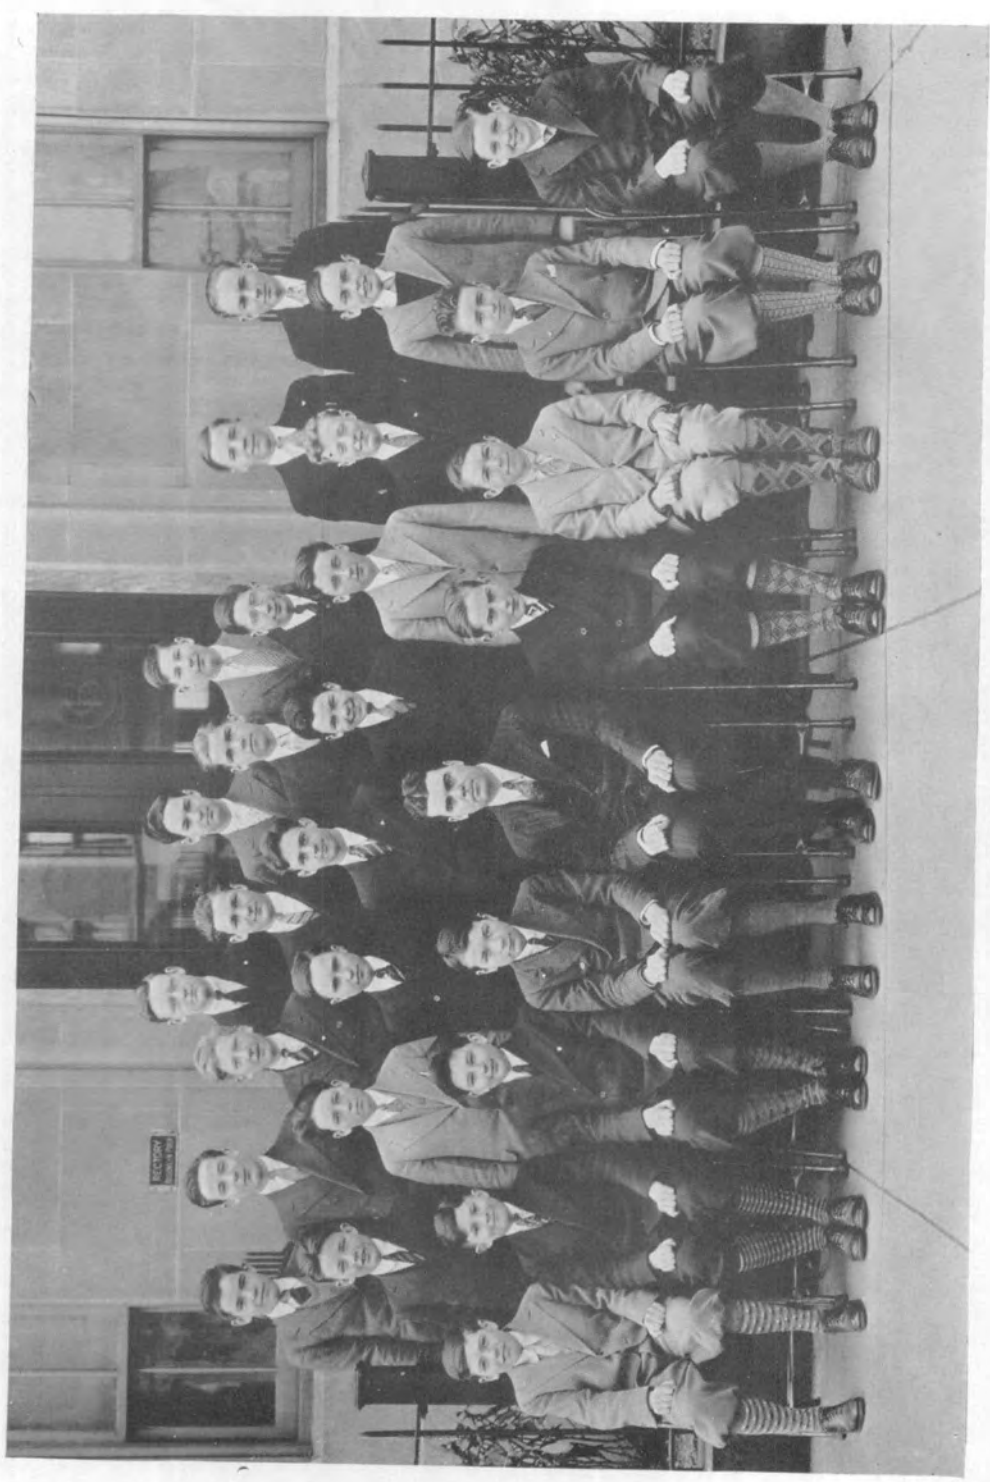

During the past semester we, the members of the class of 1-B-1, have been well represented in every extra-curricular activity at the Prep. Mr. Shanahan's call for football material was answered by Hoey, Smith and Welsh. Hedderson, Schwitter, Kane, McMann, Hodnett, Hall and O'Reilly, all placed their athletic ability at the disposal of the freshman baseball team. The ranks of the freshman basketball team were bolstered by the presence of Bob Dineen, our class president, and Jim Murphy, while Carberry appeared as a candidate for the track squad. "Don't forget the class basketball team which won the freshman division of the tournament," comes a voice from the rear of the room.

Not only in athletics, but in our studies as well, have we excelled. Among the honor students are Zoller, Patterson, Cuff, Dineen, Hodnett and O'Reilly. The friendship of Damon and Pythias of old might have referred to the friendship between McGrane and Scott, or Ryan and O'Brien. The inimitable Joe Carey has been dubbed the "Poet," while John Cuff bears the title of the Demosthenes of 1-B-1. Hal Sidler is a member of the Stamp and Coin Club and the Chess Club, and Grady is on the library staff. If anyone is heard speaking about the "Sleeping Beauty" you may be sure that they are referring to Ardery. The Messrs. Shanahan, O'Rourke, Cummings, and Giegengack have capably coached us through our courses of 1-B-1.

And so it is with justified pride that we have presented our class roster and take leave of you till another year has passed, when we will greet you again as Sophomores.

VINCENT CARBERRY.

THE CLASS OF 1-B-2

The Class of 1-B-2

IN September we begin practice in an endeavor to build a good football team. We developed some strong material, and we will certainly need it for the tougher games ahead.

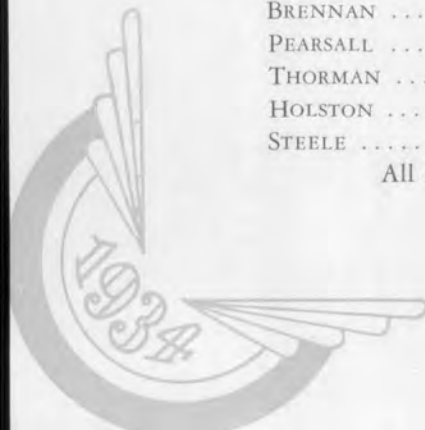

Only a small loss was suffered during the first half of our first game. The entire class was sorry to see one of its members left behind because of sickness. Beginning the second half we were instructed in Christian doctrine and morals by Father Henderson, S.J. Mr. Lyne's spirited attitude set a fine example for Latin scholars. Mr. McGrail, S.J. drilled into the skulls a literary sense which will later prove beneficial. Mr. Goode provided our squad with brain-teasing math problems to develop quick thinkers. Daily Mr. Reiners instructed us in the art of combat as used by the gladiators in ancient Rome.

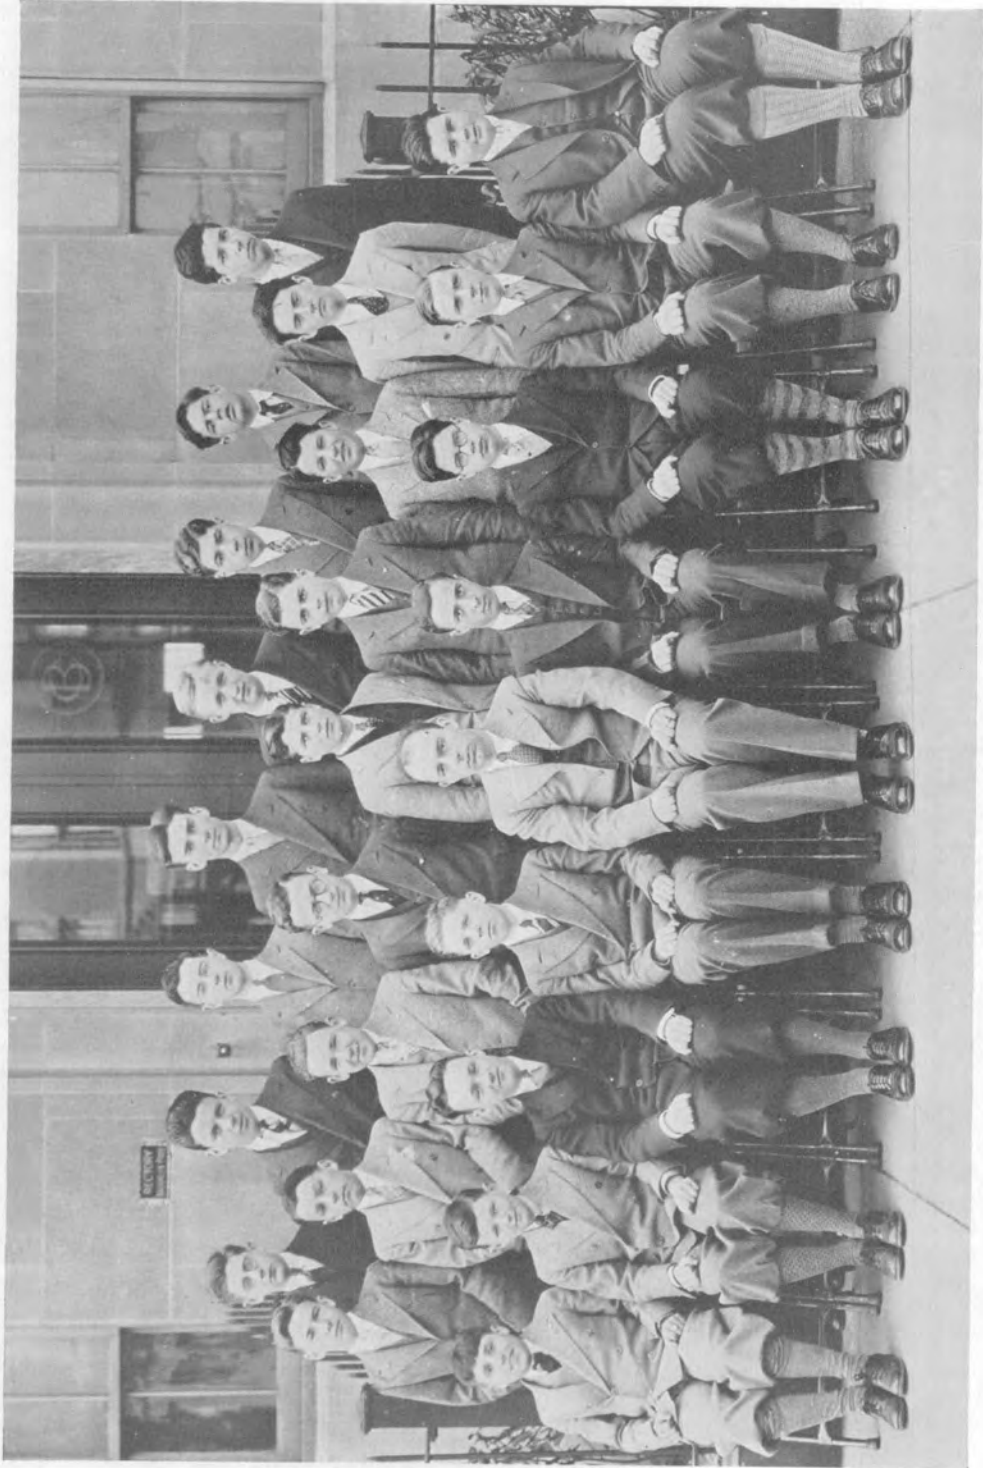

As we rapidly approach the second game we find new hopes in Ed McNulty, an outstanding candidate for a varsity berth on the school football team. Charlie Reilly, Bob Bannin, and John Maule are three track stars rivaled only by Cunningham, Bonthron and Venzke. Under the leadership of a class member as coach and captain, a strong basketball team was developed. Since we are not all athletes, let me acquaint you with the other members of the squad.

The Class of 1-B-3

I AM writing in behalf of my class, 1-B-3, which class I represent. All the boys seem to be content with the surroundings at the Prep and they admire its traditions and high standings, and I am sure that they will try their best to maintain, as previous Prepsters, the qualities of the Prep. It is my belief that they will enjoy their stay here.

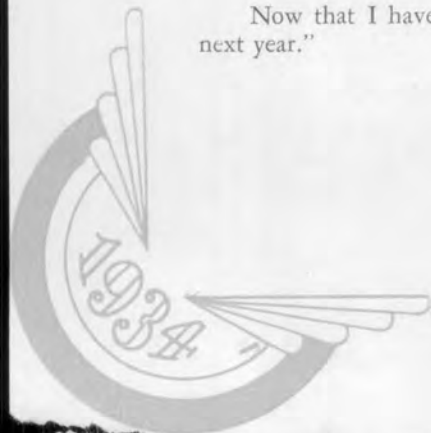

Now may I introduce those who lead the classes on to victory over the school boys' foes? They are the teachers, Messrs. Giegengack, Sullivan, Lyne, Fitzgerald, S.J. and Father Henderson, S.J., who teach us Latin, Math, History, English and Christian Doctrine respectively.

The Class of 1-A-1

INTO the Hall of Fame in this good old school, Brooklyn Prep, march twenty-six new members, the Freshmen of 1-A-1, headed by their instructors, Mr. Gibson, S.J., who teaches us the ways and means of conquering those great goblins of Latin; Mr. Carey, S.J., who instructs us in the strict rules and regulations of English grammar and literature; Mr. Goode, who mixes us up with the A B C's and X Y Z's of algebraic equations; Mr. Lyne, who completely baffles us with his imposing array of ancient names, and Father Henderson, S.J., who answers all our questions and solves all our difficulties in Religion.

Now for the class officers. Dave O'Connor, our class president and future Prep star on the gridiron; Eddie Whalen, the popular vice-president; Bob Dwyer, the secretary and director of our class teams; Larry Hickey, class representative in the Student Council; Edmond (Ducky) Butler, Grand Knight of the K.B.S., and last but not least, our very busy beadle, William Clark.

And now for the rest of us. Frank Linehan was high scorer in the inter-class basketball tournament. Joe Fellingham and John Esswein are fighting it out mightily for supremacy in studies. Frank Schad, the midget who fits in a locker, and whom everyone calls "the fish," is a great stamp enthusiast. Andie Isaacson is our marksman. Johnnie Gorman and "Sleepy" Bardwil are fine fellows when you wake them up. They are almost as noiseless as Tom Courtney and Tom Finnican. Pete Callery (20 of him to a meal) is a marvel at exams. Frank Dolan represented the class in the elocution contest in the Junior Division. "Red" Caddell is the best debater in the class. "Professor" Shannon from Red Hook is famed for this remark, "Just a minute, Mister, you get me all excited." Some of us must spend our time commuting. There's that apple-cheeked lad from East New York, Ray Strauss; and then Nick Cavagnaro and Joe Ingham, hailing from the far regions of Richmond Hill. Willie Jacobs shivers through the spring football training and Lester Hunkele pounds away at that famed drop pitch.

We've had a good time so far and there is a fine spirit in the class. We hope it continues all throughout our stay at the Prep.

THE CLASS OF 1-A-2

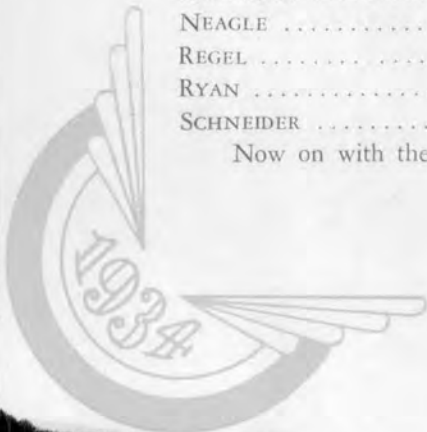

The Class of 1-A-2

HELLO folks! This is the big baseball broadcast being brought to you through the courtesy of the Blue Book Broadcasting Company. As you know, this contest is about to take place in the Brooklyn Prep Stadium on Crown and Carroll streets. The players are in the pink of condition after two months of training. Our club, 1-A-2, will cross bats with that all-champion team, "STUDIES." You will find the same familiar faces in their line-up—the three Latin brothers, LIT, COMP and SIGHT at first, second and shortstop. The terrible twins, the English boys, will be their battery. McNichols and Authors have a remarkable record of strikeouts. At third will be X.Y. Math, P.T. History and Christian Doctrine are in the outfield. This aggregation always plays without a substitute. Right down on our side of the diamond, the coaches are giving last minute instructions to the youngsters. Head Coach Mr. Carey, S.J., is warning all of the tricks played by the Latin brothers. Mr. Gibson, S.J., is exposing the deliveries of the battery, while Father Henderson, S.J., Messrs, Shanahan, Lynne and Goode are giving last minute instructions to their charges. Now folks, the umpire, Examinations, is walking out on the field. The team of 1-A-2 will be selected from the following aspirants. Now for a few words on these marvels.

ALLEN	A tiny mite, secretary, and "Beetle"
BRADY	Speedster, good in any position
BECKLEY	Dreamy, yet a star at basketball and always ready to ask questions
BENNETT	The little Confederate and Majordomo of the exercises
BRESLIN	"Smilin' Joe," and a coming star
CARLEY	"Bring 'em back alive." Owns a live alligator, McGraw's double
CLARK	Afraid of nothing. A star in every position
CONNOR	Can never make a bit down the third base line
DROLESKY	Pride of Queens Village. Could hold down the whole diamond
DUNN	Frightens any pitcher with his sneeze
DWYER	The wisecracker and Wanderer of the team

THE CLASS OF 1-A-3

The Class of 1-A-3

ABOUT a month ago a group of boys came to the Prep for the first time. These boys are now anxiously awaiting June when they will no longer be classed as "uncivilized freshmen."

We may compare the class with a large machine. Each boy represents some part. All parts must operate smoothly before the machine will function properly. Just as it is the engineer's duty to see that the machine is in order, so is it the duty of the class president to keep the class in order. The teachers are the men who operate the machine. They see that all runs smoothly before they give the final test.

The teachers, since they operate the engine, must take especial care of the mechanism. Each engineer tends to his own section. When the parts slow down the engineer applies a generous dose of study-oil. In the Latin part of the machine the cogs that run most smoothly are J. Finley and J. Clavin. In mathematics the parts that work best are J. Sullivan and J. Clavin. The English machine has as its main cogs Woltman et al. In history the finest parts are J. Finley and J. Gillen. The four engineers who carry out their part of the work are Mr. Lahey, the Latin engineer, Mr. Sullivan for algebra, Mr. Devlin, the English engineer, and the history instructor, Mr. Gibson, S.J. Some spare parts represent the class in sports. The most prominent of these are, R. Shaw, J. Sullivan, N. Martini, J. Buckley, H. Dunckley, and E. Hogan.

The engineers hope they will perfect their parts of the machine and, when the final test has been finished, find that they have produced a good engine.

CHARLES WOLTMANN.

Through the Year

AFTER a long summer of ease and loafing, life at the Prep is renewed with vigor. The students are anxious to meet once again old friends and once again experience the happy days at the Prep.

Amidst such a spirit the Mass of the Holy Ghost is celebrated in the auditorium on September 13th. The Prep welcomed the new Student Counselor, Fr. Elmer Henderson, S.J. There were a few new additions to the faculty. Some of the new teachers are: Fr. Hearn, S.J. and Messrs. Sullivan, S.J., Matthews, S.J., Fitzgerald, S.J., A. Fitzgerald. Joe McManus assumed the presidency of the Student Council. A successful and productive administration is expected. Reorganization and re-election feature these, the first weeks of our school year. The Debating Societies, under their respective moderators, the Chess Club, under Fr. Reilly, S.J., the Stamp and Coin Club, all begin to function smoothly. Joe Carroll, as Editor-in-Chief of the Blue Jug, publishes the first issue.

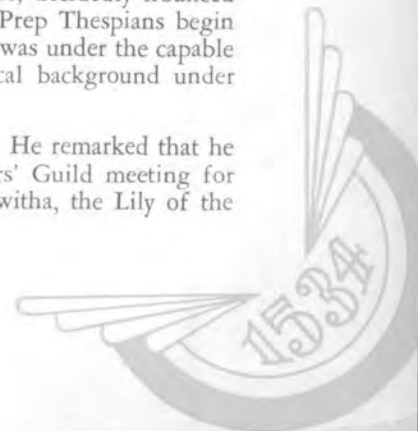

STUDENT COUNCIL OFFICERS—FIRST TERM

At the first call for football candidates, a number of boys, eager to do their part in beating Poly or any other school, turn out and report to "Hymie" Shanahan, the coach. A few weeks of training, hard and intensive, and the boys take the field against Fordham Prep. Victory! Much rejoicing as our boys "bring home the bacon." The annual fall tennis tournament is finally won by Jack Needham, though not without a struggle. Other sports are started. Many a loyal Prepster goes out, ready to give his all for the Prep. The cross-country team inaugurates its season by defeating St. Ann's School. The rifle team and the golf team prepare to overwhelm all opposition, a truly fine ambition. Columbus day comes and goes. No sign of inactivity. Everyone is getting accustomed to the routine of school work.

Drawing to the close of October the Prepsters make a three-day retreat, to be followed on the fourth by the annual Communion Breakfast. The retreat is under the inspiring direction of the Rev. Eugene Kennedy, S.J., and the Rev. Elmer J. Henderson, S.J. The football team, riding roughshod over the St. Paul gridders, decidedly trounced the Garden City lads. At this time the Prep Glee Club and the Prep Thespians begin rehearsals for the musical play "Old Heidelberg." The production was under the capable direction of our Dramatic Coach, Mr. Stuart Fox and the musical background under Mr. Frederick Joslyn's direction.

November! Prep is honored by the visit of Fr. Connell, S.J. He remarked that he was well pleased with the conditions at the Prep. At the Fathers' Guild meeting for this month, Rev. John J. Wynne, S.J., spoke about "Kateri Tekakwitha, the Lily of the Mohawks. The students manifest their desire to take part in Catholic action. Some of them give catechetical instruction to students of public schools. Resolutions are made either to start studying if one is under, or to keep up the good work if one has passed all the subjects. "Stormy Weather" which seems to hover over every Brooklyn Prep-Poly game, takes its toll and the Prep's lighter team falls before the Poly boys. All Saints' Day passes by. The natators get off to an inauspicious start by losing to the Flatbush Boys Club 41-29. But on the other hand our strong cross-country squad defeated Poly and Loughlin, piling up a big advantage in each meet. The golfers drove through their season with but one defeat and that at the hands of New Utrecht last year's city champs. The basketballers start tossing them through the hoop. Another smashing victory! 32-0! Flatbush School falls! Once again the hockey season rolls around. A season none too successful for the pucksters.

THE CHEERLEADERS

The first social event of the year, the Parents' Night, is held on November 24th. It is featured by an entertainment and social and is highly successful. Rest! Thanksgiving comes and with it the satisfaction of taking St. John's measure to the tune of 25-7. "Happy days are here again." Down to work again. The play staged and immediately met with such enthusiastic appreciation that it is to be put on at some later date. It is said by many, friends and critics, to be the best yet produced by the Prep. December 8th, the Feast of the Immaculate Conception. During the anticipation of the Christmas vacations the life at the Prep goes on at the same even tempo. The basketball team wins a game and then loses the next, but no one seems to mind, because they are all thrilled by the successful football season. Everyone is waiting for the two weeks' respite. It arrives! and amidst fond "so longs" we betake ourselves home for a much needed rest.

Back again! With this "home-coming" the first interscholastic debate of the Prep year is held. We come out the victors over St. Peter's Prep. Quite a few obstacles, in the form of exams are encountered. We hope for the best. Then a card party, the second big social event undertaken by the Fathers' Guild. It is a huge success and everybody is well pleased. In fact, everyone who attended wished for another in the very near future. The indoor track season is started and more interest is shown in this sport than ever before at the Prep. We are very strong in some events and expect to fare very well. Our swimmers place second in the league, losing only to the powerful St. Francis aggregation. The Prepsters do their bit for charity. They again present the musical comedy "Old Heidelberg," and as a consequence net a sizeable sum for the Nursing Sisters of the Sick Poor. Promotion! You are either under or over. Here's hoping! Yes, most of us get by. Joe Carroll now takes over the reins of the school government. The February grads hold their last meeting as Prep men. The Senior Banquet is well attended and is well received.

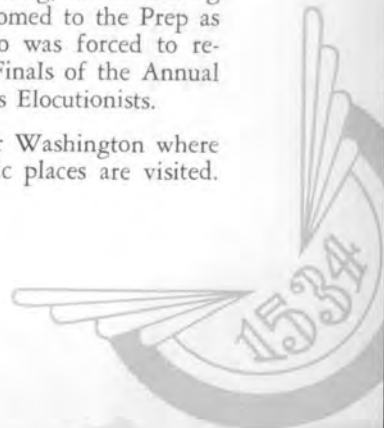

SODALITY OFFICERS—FIRST TERM

For the first time in four years, an inspired Prep quintet outfought Poly Prep to win a closely contested battle 21-19. Many and loud cheers on Crown Heights. The interesting column "Memories" written by Nick Mullins for the Blue Book is still boosting the circulation. A new organization at the Prep is formed. It is the Press Club which is to see that the school gets more and better publicity. Here's an important item. A Literary Academy is formed by the Sodalinity, the purpose of which is to acquaint the students with Catholic literature and Catholic authors. The hockey team does not fare so well. But at the same time the swimmers end their season well over the .500 mark. The Prep quintet end it all in the quarter finals of the Knights of Columbus Tournament. In this tournament they defeated St. John's who in two previous encounters had soundly trounced our team. It was a most edifying sight to see the Prepsters and their dads attend the Annual Fathers and Sons Communion breakfast. Among the prominent speakers were Fr. Thomas Chetwood, S.J., Professor of Philosophy at St. Peter's College, and Jim Crowley, Head Football Coach at Fordham University. A new organization! a large one! Yes, I mean the newly founded Alumni Association. . . . An excellent idea and a body which the Prep has needed for a long time.

Spring comes and with it comes baseball and also something new, Spring football training is for the first time inaugurated at the Prep. John Adams High School defeats the Prep debaters. The topic is "Resolved that the Baumes Law be repealed." Everything goes on in routine fashion, days come and go, one test after another, baseball practice this day, Student Council meeting the next, an occasional holiday. Finally the long-desired Easter vacations. And are the boys glad! Many a cheery countenance do we see as the boys leave the Prep for the vacation. Kappa Beta Pi holds its Annual Spring Social on the Wednesday after Easter. Back to the old grind. Each day you can see plenty of young energetic fellows out on the field. Some are running, others batting and still another group are tackling. Father Gabriel Zema is welcomed to the Prep as our new Student Counsellor. He succeeds Father Henderson who was forced to relinquish the position because of illness. Once more the Elocution Finals of the Annual Contest are upon us. Many fine pieces are rendered by the ambitious Elocutionists.

Time passes quickly, May! A number of students entrain for Washington where they take in all the sights. All the most famous and most historic places are visited.

Then home again after this week-end of pleasure and instruction. Reports come, reports go and school goes on to June. The Concert, featuring the Glee Club, Orchestra, Faculty Quartet and visiting artists perform to the greatest enjoyment of all. The track squad and the baseball team, both decked out in brand new uniforms do their best to win every meet and every ball game. They do not fare so badly. The racquet wielders, browned from long exposure to the sun, are driving their way to as many victories as possible. Then on May 25th we sail up the Hudson to Bear Mountain,

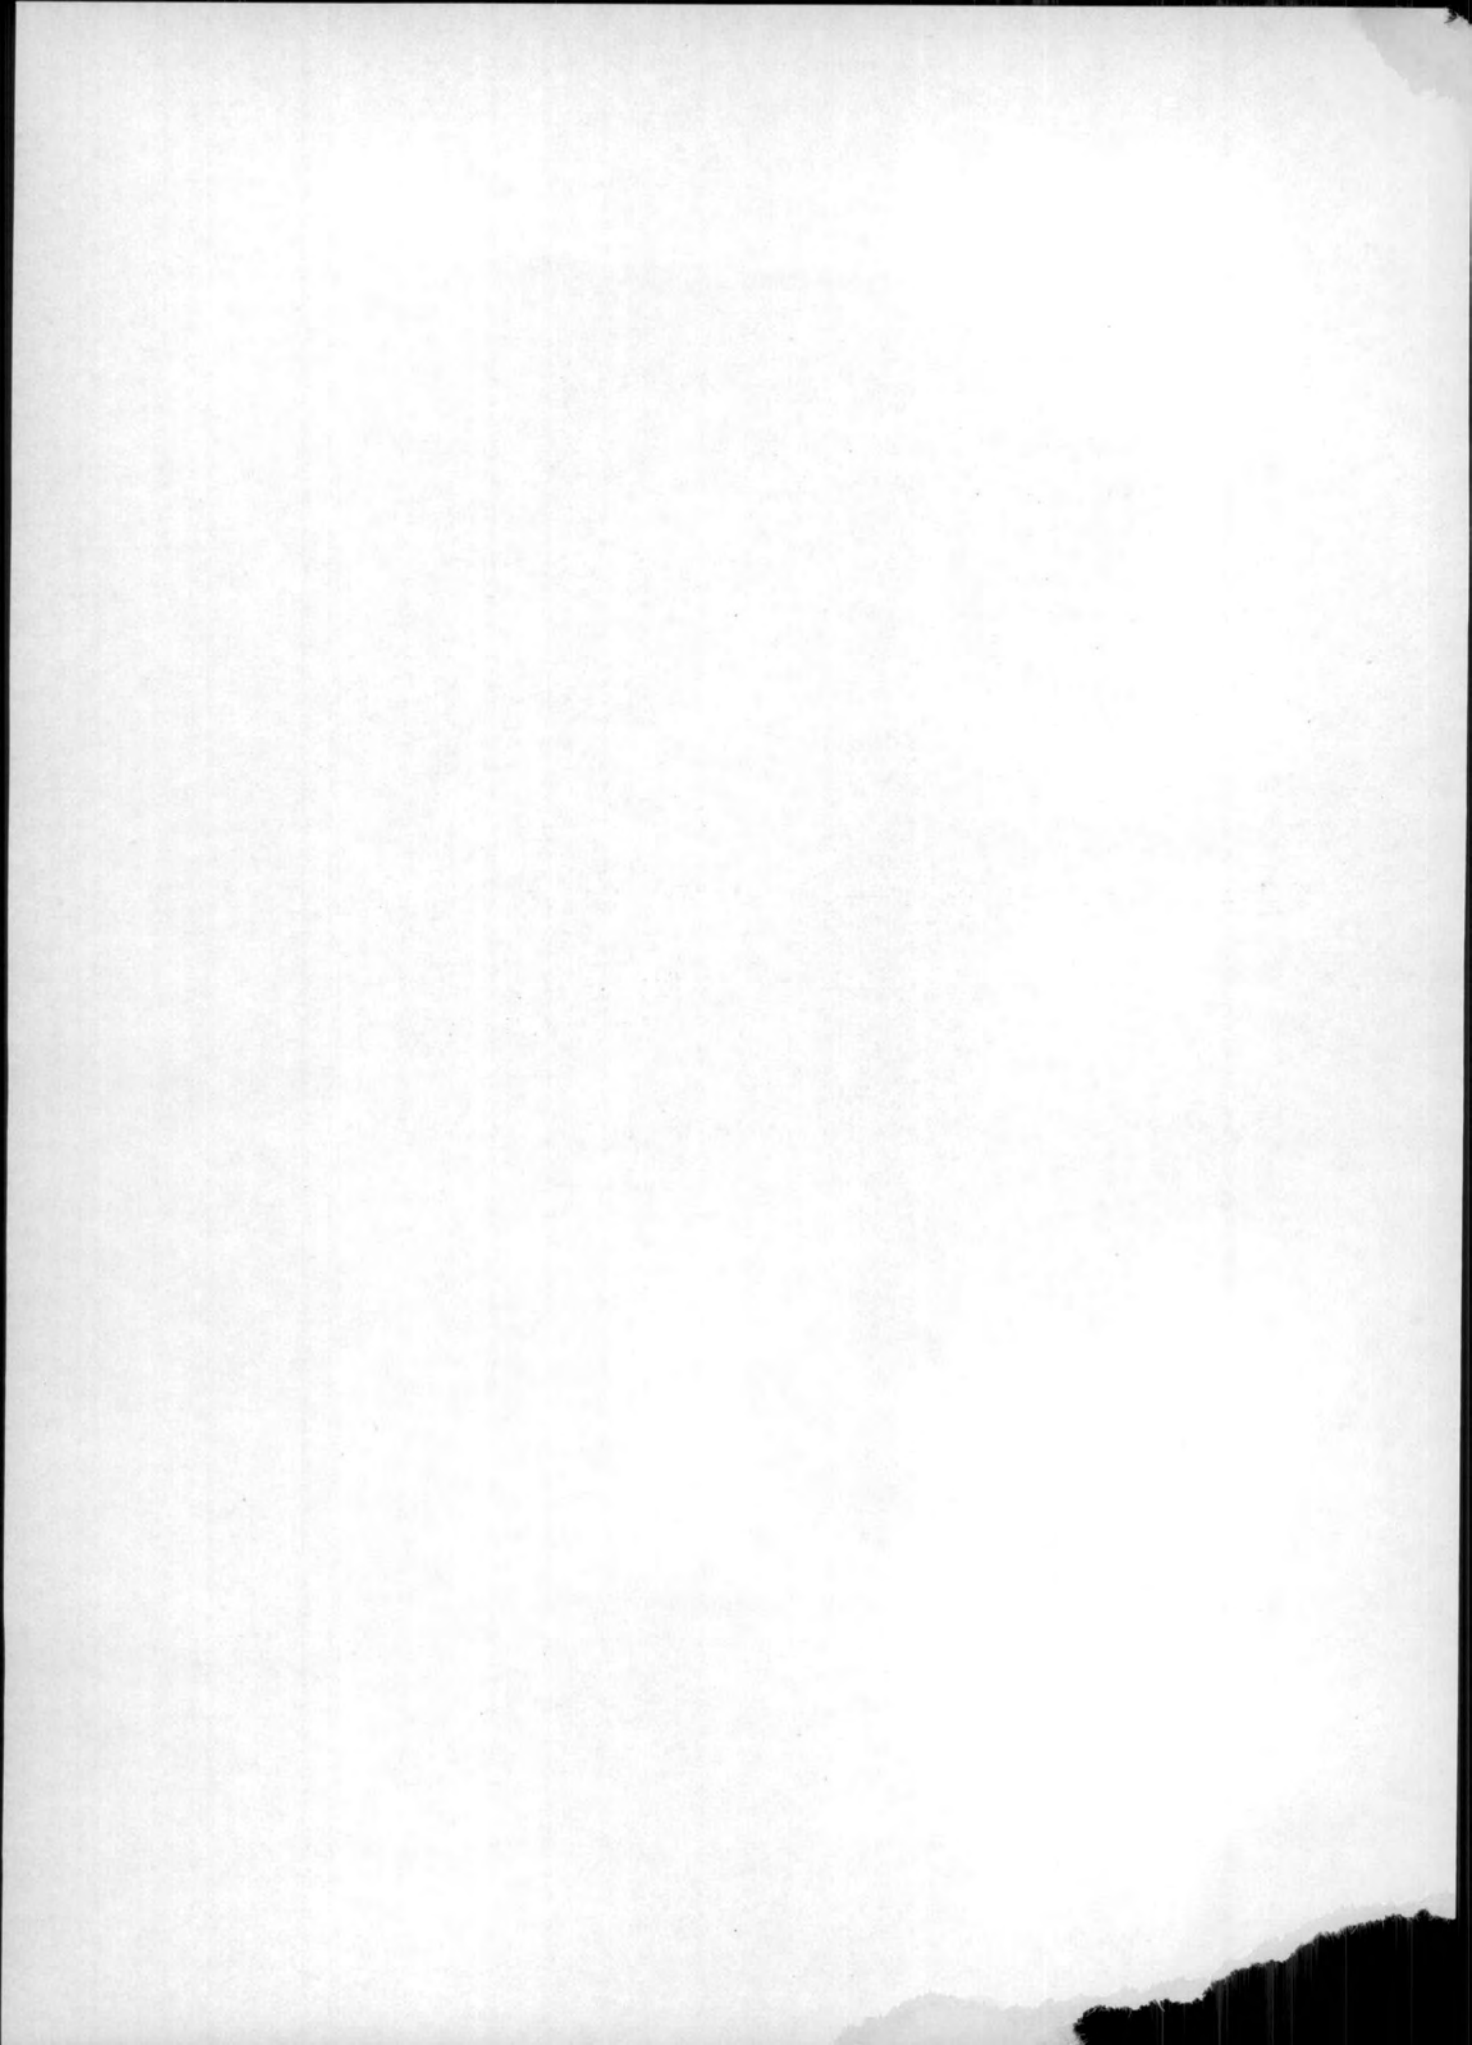

Varsity Relay Squad

there to enjoy all which the place offers. Then back to school. Last minute repetitions, final cramming and then! tests. Plenty of them! But still the school year is not officially ended. The last official meeting is the Commencement Exercise, at which we bid farewell to many a friend. So you see there was no inactivity at the prep. In fact there was so much activity that the months just seemed to fly past.

Senior Sodality

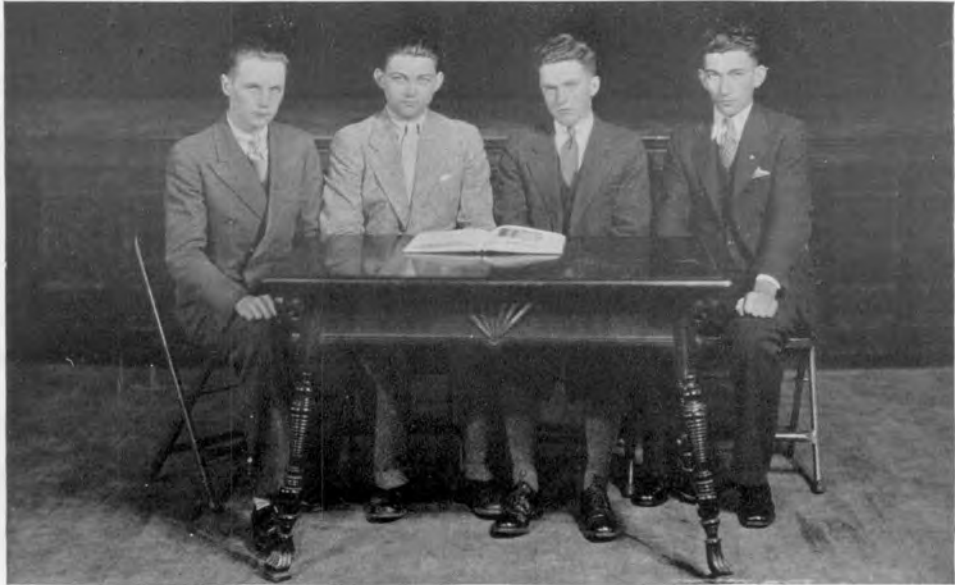

THE joys of the Sodality this past year have without a doubt been twofold. In the first place Our Blessed Mother must surely have been pleased to see the fervor and devotion of that faithful group of students that banded together each Tuesday morning to pay their respect and devotion to her. Secondly, the sodalists themselves have continually expressed their satisfaction by a regular attendance at the meetings.

For the past year Father Henderson, S.J., has worked diligently and has accomplished much toward the improvement and advancement of the spiritual organizations in general, especially our own Sodality. The meetings are now held in the Faculty Chapel in the presence of the Blessed Sacrament, where, needless to say, a most decidedly uplifting and spiritual atmosphere prevails. Another point in the constructive plan of our spiritual adviser was the addition of a guest speaker each week, who delivered a short talk on some instructing and interesting phase of Catholicism. And finally came the most pleasing innovation of all, the addition of Christ's presence, which we did not enjoy in Loyola Hall, due to the lack of facilities. Each meeting is closed with Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament, besides the usual closing hymn.

In concluding, the Seniors desire to extend their appreciation and sincere thanks to their spiritual director, Father Henderson, S.J., for his unselfish and untiring efforts in their behalf. Moreover, they wish those men who have spoken before the Sodality on various occasions, to know that a keen sense of gratitude is felt toward them for their kind and sensible contributions to the Sodality. In concluding, might we add to our thanks a whispered prayer to Mary that our adopted missionary, Father Pollock, S.J., may persevere and continue steadfastly in his blessed work.

THIS year the Junior Sodality has become more active than ever. Its membership has increased and it is a pleasing spectacle to observe the fervor and devotion shown by each member to Our Blessed Mother. The Sodality seems this year to be made up of first term candidates for the most part; and their repeated attendance, coupled with their excellent behavior, marks them to be possessed already of those qualities which every member who has been received possesses.

The meetings this year took place every Wednesday morning at 8:30 in the Faculty Chapel, under the direction of our Spiritual Adviser, Father Henderson, S.J. Under his guidance the Sodality has grown into a well organized and efficient organization. At the meetings the Office of the Blessed Virgin was recited by all, and after a short talk by the Moderator or by some Jesuit Faculty Member, Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament took place.

The Sodality offers to those who join it the privilege of becoming a "dear friend" of our Blessed Mother, and makes of him a devoted servant to Her.

Brooklyn Prep Alumni Society

A NEW era in the progress of Brooklyn Prep was begun when more than six hundred smiling and enthusiastic old classmates, men from all walks of life, young and middle-aged alike, greeted each other on Wednesday night, March 14th, when twenty-five years after the organization of Brooklyn Preparatory, the first regular meeting of the Alumni Society was held. Mr. John Middlemiss, the acting chairman, presided over the meeting.

At a preliminary meeting some time ago, representatives from each class had drawn up a tentative constitution, subject to changes by the members, and had appointed Mr. Middlemiss as temporary chairman.

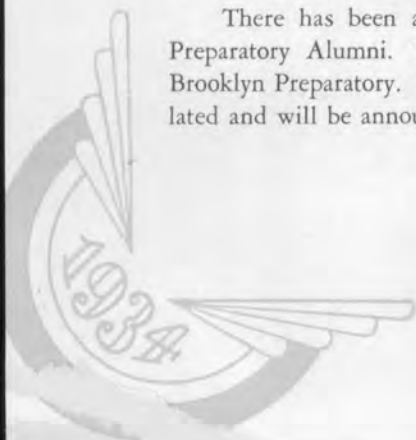

Membership in the society is open to all the graduates of Brooklyn Prep and of Brooklyn College. Men who have spent one or more years at the Prep, but who did not graduate, must be approved by the Executive Committee before they are granted membership. It is believed that the membership will increase notably with each subsequent meeting, for news of the society has not reached many of the old grads because of a change of address since their graduation. Many of the younger alumni were unable to attend the first meeting because of their attendance at a university or a college away from New York.

The purpose of the society is to perpetuate friendships formed at school, by mutual aid to benefit its members, and to further the interests of Brooklyn Prep. The rules of procedure are unique in the fact that measures are not confined to committees, but discussed by the whole assembly during the regular meetings; with all the members interesting themselves in the society and taking part in the discussions, it is truly a society governed by the governed.

The first meeting was concluded with brief addresses by Rev. Father Rector and Father Jacobs, S.J., both of whom expressed their pleasure at the spirit and enthusiasm shown, and asked the Alumni to take an active interest in the school and in its activities. The officers who are to be elected at a later meeting, are a president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, financial secretary, historian and an executive committee consisting of seven, all of whom must be graduates of different classes.

There has been a Brooklyn College Alumni, but never an organized Brooklyn Preparatory Alumni. The newly instituted body will be the permanent Alumni of Brooklyn Preparatory. Plans to celebrate the Silver Jubilee of the Prep are being formulated and will be announced later.

Senior Debating Society

THE past year has seen the Senior Debating Society take one of the greatest steps forward in the history of debating in this school. During this year, the Senior Debating Society has shown itself to possess not only a Varsity team of great worth but also a large group of members who are deeply interested in the art of debating and enthusiastically support their teams. This year also marked the re-entrance of Prep into the public eye as a school with a debating body which proved its worth in the numerous public appearances it made.

At the first meeting of the year George Dies was elected President, Thomas Concannon Vice-President, while John Britt took over the task of Secretary. The season quickly started and the Society was amazed at the fire and brilliance of the debaters held before them at the regular weekly meetings. Then, for the first time in its history, a Prep team met a team from St. Peter's Prep of Jersey City, when the Senior Debating Society played host to the lads from across the Hudson on November 23rd. A strong Varsity team composed of George Dies, William Mattison and John Gann clearly showed its superiority over the Jersey team when they were unanimously declared the victors by virtue of their delivery, thought and diction.

At the end of the first semester, elections were held for the coming term, and Thomas Concannon was chosen to take over the gavel, assisted by John Britt as Vice-President, and Joseph O'Sullivan as Secretary. The rules of procedure of the preceding year which allowed the members to judge the debates and concerning the apportioning of debates to the members at the beginning of the term were retained. The regular weekly meetings were well attended and the debates were characterized with the same vigor as heretofore.

In the early part of March the Prep returned the visit of St. Peter's and the Varsity team composed of J. Stuckart, R. Hyland and T. Concannon upholding the affirmative of the question, "Resolved: That Free Higher Education Be Abolished," went down in defeat after putting up a splendid battle.

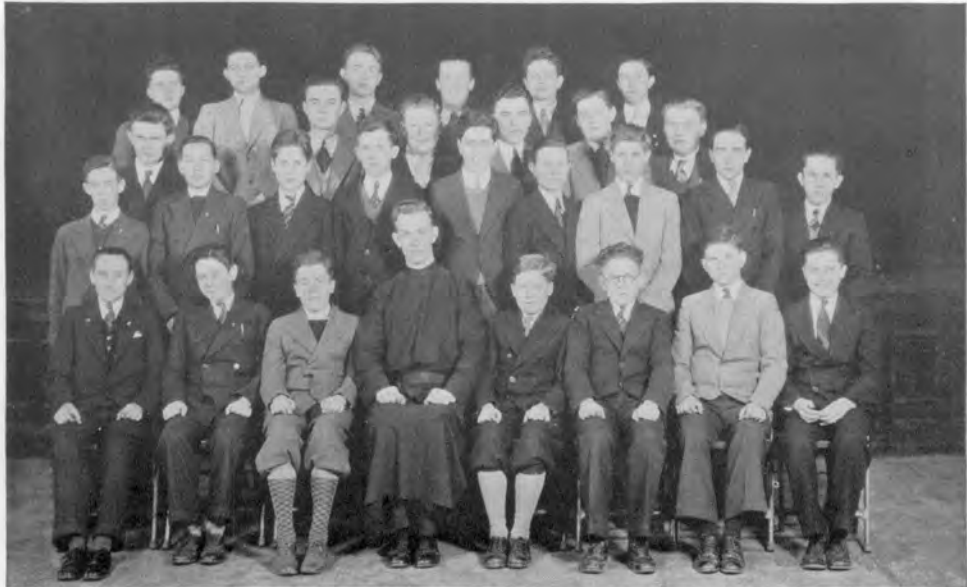

Later in the month a Prep team composed of Thomas Concannon, William Mattison and Ralph Hyland, with John Britt as alternate, again lost another contest when it met John Adams High School at Ozone Park and defended the affirmative side of the question, "Resolved: That the Baumes Law Be Repealed." But, hampered by the unexpected illness of one of its members, the Prep team went down to defeat by a vote of two to one in a very close contest.

The Debating Society realizes that it owes whatever success it has attained in the past year to its Moderator, Mr. James J. Walsh. In Mr. Walsh, it is fortunate to have a man who has a vast knowledge of the art of debating and knows how to impart this knowledge so that others benefit by it. His candid criticisms and lucid analyses of the debates held at the weekly meetings as well as his clever handling of the Varsity team can be readily appreciated by every member of the Society and they wish to take this opportunity to thank him publicly for his earnest labor on their part.

With such a successful season behind it the Senior Debating Society has every reason to look forward to having not only Varsity teams which will be without peer in their public performances but also a large, well organized and interested Society which will train its members not only for their life here in school but also for that future life as intelligent citizens for which we are now preparing.

SOPHOMORE DEBATING

Sophomore Debating Society

THE Place: Room 304. The Time: 2:35 on any Thursday afternoon. At the word of the presiding officer, a venerable gentleman of fifteen summers, the whispering, arguing and rustling of briefs suddenly ceases. This is a momentous occasion, the weekly meeting of the Sophomore Debaters. Here all important questions of state are settled. Here the results of elections, decisions of the Supreme Court, and national policies are hashed and rehashed. Finally, when the decision of the gathering is announced to a hushed and expectant throng, the legislators of the nation know just what to do. Little does it matter to us that Congress pays no heed to our advice, that our decisions are not recorded in the columns of newspapers, for we are but orators in the embryo, and though our style is somewhat crude we usually get the facts.

But on with the meeting! Our Secretary, Walter Anderson, has returned to his seat after giving a concise report of the previous meeting. The first speaker for the affirmative is advancing with a judicial air to present his case. The Moderator, Mr. Fitzgerald, S.J., gazes benignly at the gathering from a point of vantage. Here we leave you. Enough to say that during the remainder of the session the question under discussion will be thoroughly analyzed and attacked from all angles.

The young man who thus confidently bears down upon his audience may employ the fiery style of Bill Larkin, the flowery language of Vin Doyle, or the ponderous facts of Norman Noble, but you may rest assured that those present will leave the room with a better understanding of the subject than they possessed when they entered.

Our one important debate of the year, a contest with the Freshman team, on the merits of Mr. La Guardia as a mayor, resulted in a victory for the team of Kelly, Larkin and Carr.

EDWARD CARR.

FRESHMAN DEBATING

The Freshman Debating Society

IT is a moderately warm Thursday afternoon in the Court of the Appellate Division of the State of New York. Cool zephyrs are floating through the congested city streets around the Court. This center of justice happens to be none other than Room 201 and the activities are the operations of the Freshman body of future Daniel Websters, the Freshman Debating Society.

We get there rather early for the regular meeting and we sit back and watch the spectators file through the door. First come the over-eager 1-A men, fired with ambition. These generally settle themselves in the seats up front. Some more come in, their countenances telling the success or failure of the day's work. A few pessimists remain as near the door as is possible.

Mr. Carey, S. J., our Moderator who sits by, allowing the President to perform his duties, comes in and opens the session with a prayer. Our President, Mr. Dick Carroll, raps for order and introduces the accused (the question for the day). The lawyers (usually two on each side, but sometimes three) for the plaintiff start the ball rolling. Whereupon the attorneys for the defence come back, assert their right ideas and facts. The cross examination is found in the rebuttals. The jury, usually made up of the whole Society, but in interscholastic debates of three jurists, then gives its decision. The palm of victory is awarded. This is followed by a general discussion among the jurists. The session is brought to a close with a prayer. These are the usual proceedings.

In the first meeting of the term, Dick Carroll was elected President, a position which he fills most capably. The functions of secretary are performed admirably by Joe Ryan. Bill Richardson is our Vice-President.

Our team, composed of Fred Joslyn, Vin Santare and Bill Richardson, ventured forth onto the grounds of St. Peter's Prep with rather a disastrous result, but we hope to go forward again and return with the spoils of victory.

WILLIAM J. RICHARDSON.

THE PREP PLAYERS

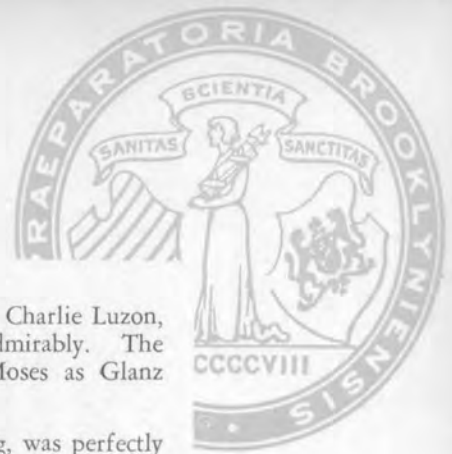

The Prep Players

TO the largest and most enthusiastic audience in the history of the annual Prep presentations the epic romance, "Old Heidelberg," written by Wilhelm Meyer-Forster, was presented for the delectation of a packed house in the Academy of Music. More than two months of arduous rehearsals were capped by the superb production, given earlier than usual, on the 7th of December. The combined efforts of the Glee Club and the Prep Players were united in a flawless performance which was undoubtedly the finest ever staged by our Thespians.

Gerald Hogan, brother of Ray Hogan of former Prep plays, as Karl Heinrich, Crown Prince of Sachsen-Karlsburg, who lived in the seclusion of the castle at Karlsburg until his short-lived liberation at Heidelberg, aroused the sympathy and admiration of all those present. His frustrated love for the young Fraulein, Kathie, constituted the major plot of the play. Phil McFarland, as Kathie, portrayed the little servant girl to perfection. Admired and loved by all the Heidelberg students, she wins, in vain, the love of the handsome young Prince. As the kindly old Doctor Juttner, the private tutor of the Prince, Joe Irwin gave a characterization never to be forgotten by Prep playgoers. The jovial schoolmaster, whose words of wisdom guided Karl Heinrich in his younger life, meets death before the final curtain. These three characters formed the nucleus about which the story centered.

With an air of unapproachable responsibility, Bill Mattison, as Herr Lutz, the valet-de-chambre of the Prince, furnished many of the lighter moments in the play. Bored to the extreme by Heidelberg and the students, his discomforts proved most amusing. Bud Weeks capably filled the shoes as equerry to Herr Lutz. Under the guise of Prime Minister von Haugk, Joe Callahan performed the unwelcome duties of his position with feeling and understanding. His kindly sympathy in the face of his conflicting duties aroused the commendation of all in the audience. As Baron von Passarge, Count von Metzsig and Baron von Breitenberg, respectively, Charlie Luzon, Harold Graves and George Leonard enacted the parts as courtiers admirably. The palace was most efficiently serviced by Peter Viscardi and Richard Moses as Glanz and Reuter.

The character of Kellerman, an aged waiter at the inn of Heidelberg, was perfectly interpreted by Joe McGrane and enthusiastically received by the audience. If it is asked whether anyone "stole the show," unquestionably the characterization of the old servant receives this award. Gerry Dalton, as Ruder the innkeeper, and Vinnie Doyle, Ruder's son, Fritz, lent a Bavarian atmosphere to the presentation.

The numerous university corps were well represented. As leader of the Saxons, George Whitney, portraying Count von Wedell, "put one over" on his fellow corps leaders by investing the Prince into the Saxon Corps immediately upon his arrival in Heidelberg. In the persons of fellow corps leaders, Matt Shannon as Hart Duifield of the Vandals, Ray Fullam as Otto Heise of the Suabians, "Chub" O'Connor as George Zimmerman of the Rhenanians, Joe O'Sullivan, head of the Westphalians, and Ed Riley, personifying Count von Wedell, competed with each other for the affection of Kathie. As members of the aforementioned corps more than fifty students lent their talents.

By far the greatest credit is due to Stuart Fox, renowned actor and coach who, as in former years, directed this year's play. His patience and kindly advice endeared him to his pupils. Along with the task of smoothly blending the Glee Club with the Players, Mr. Fox had to handle the largest talking cast since the first play was put on. This was the first time that "Old Heidelberg" was produced by amateurs. The unquestionable success in the face of this is another feather in Mr. Fox's hat. Much credit is also due to Mr. Frederick Joslyn for his excellent work with the Glee Club. Our thanks are also presented to Mr. Carey, S.J., through whose interest and enthusiasm the play achieved its great financial success. Also to George Dies, Bob Walton and Don Robinson a rising vote of thanks is accorded for their welcome assistance to Mr. Carey.

Because of the widespread approbation manifested by all those who witnessed the first production, the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Nursing Sisters of the Sick Poor requested that the play be again presented for the benefit of the Nursing Sisters. Most graciously the Reverend Headmaster acquiesced, and on January 31st the Thespians again enacted "Old Heidelberg" before an appreciative audience in St. Teresa's Auditorium at Sterling and Classon Avenues.

Now as we look back on the unprecedented success achieved despite so many almost insurmountable obstacles, the conclusion is clearly drawn that each year the Prep annual stage productions advance to greater heights. The energy of the Glee Club and the Players proved to be but another stepping stone in our progress.

THE STAFF.

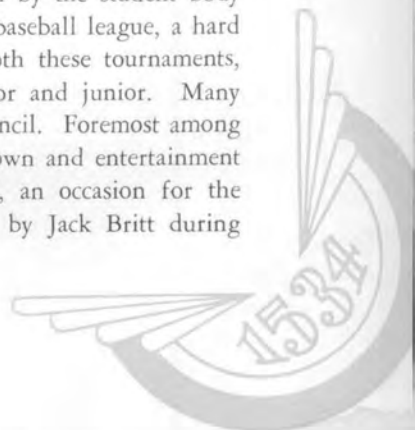

OFFICERS

The Student Council

DURING this, the fifth year of its existence, the Student Council of Brooklyn Prep has accomplished much towards the improvement of extra-curricular activity at the Prep. The two administrations of Joe McManus and Joe Carroll have both been equally successful.

Joe McManus took over the reins in September, 1933. Joe Carroll was vice-president and George Dies was secretary. In the following months until January, he led the organization through a period of achievement. Arrangements were made for class socials and it was decided that members of the sophomore classes would be eligible for the awarding of the extra-curricular plaques.

Upon the graduation of Joe McManus, the Vice-President, Joe Carroll, assumed the responsibilities of the presidency, while Jack Britt was Vice-President and Jerry Coyle was Secretary. The first action was the formation of an interclass basketball league, which fairly took the school by storm. Such interest was shown by the student body that it was decided to form, in addition to the customary indoor baseball league, a hard ball league with games played at the Parade Grounds. For both these tournaments, medals were awarded to the winners in each division, the senior and junior. Many successful class socials were given with financial aid from the Council. Foremost among these was the Freshman social, at which motion pictures were shown and entertainment was afforded to all present. The idea of the Freshman social, an occasion for the formation of friendship among the new freshmen, was offered by Jack Britt during the beginning of the semester, and it was decided that this event will be sponsored annually by the Council.

At this time it is fitting to thank Mr. James J. Walsh, the Moderator, for his untiring efforts in the interests of this organization. It was through his efforts that much of its success was attained.

Now on leaving the Prep we sincerely trust that the future years will bring to its Student Council as much and as great success as the 1933-34 term has brought.

JOSEPH CARROLL.

THE DISCIPLINE COMMITTEE

ORCHESTRA

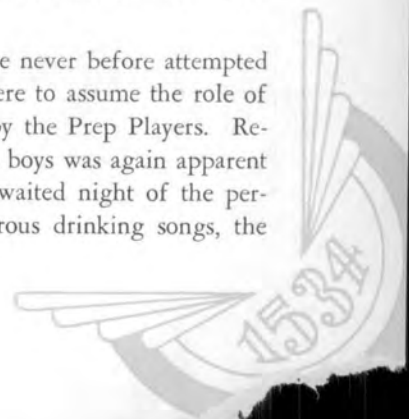

The Musical Clubs

MANY schools encourage music in a large way. Several institutions sponsor an orchestra and a glee club. But to possess musical clubs of the calibre of Brooklyn Prep, whose efforts have been so crowned with success this year, is the accomplishment and boast of very few.

It was evident from the very outset that this year was to be a banner one when, at the first meeting, representatives of practically every class, from diminutive freshmen to burly football players, met our widely known director, Mr. Frederic Joslyn eager to lend their voices to the harmony of his Glee Club. The Orchestra, too, although diminished by the graduation of several stars of the year before, showed that they were going to make up with enthusiasm and volume what they lacked in numbers.

The debut of the 1933-34 edition of the Prep musical clubs took place in November at a new event in the Prep, Parents' Night. The manner in which the orchestra and the Glee Club added to the enjoyment of that pleasant evening was very much in evidence from the spontaneous bursts of applause with which their numbers were received.

It was then that preparations were begun for a performance never before attempted by the Prep. The members of the Glee Club for the first time were to assume the role of actors as the chorus in the presentation of "Old Heidelberg" by the Prep Players. Rehearsals were frequent and lengthy but the splendid spirit of the boys was again apparent from the total absence of complaints of any sort. The long awaited night of the performance arrived, and the Glee Club's rendition of the boisterous drinking songs, the quiet "Gaudeamus igitur," and the beautiful climax "Heidelberg," sent the large Academy of Music audience through the exits, humming the tunes between their praises of the superb acting of the players.

The call of charity next occupied the efforts of our singers. Another flawless presentation of "Old Heidelberg," this time for the Nursing Sisters of the Sick Poor, spread the fame of our Glee Club farther and created many new friends. In the meantime, appearances of both the orchestra and the Glee Club at the school Christmas entertainment and at the Elocution Contest, and of the Glee Club alone at the Fathers and Sons Communion Mass, were the signals for the success and enjoyment of each one of these annual Prep events.

The Concert in May was the usual gala occasion it has been in past years. With a rousing overture the Orchestra surprised even the most optimistic of its supporters and again the Glee Club surpassed itself in a program that presented perfection in every respect. New talent, uncovered in the person of a soloist from the Glee Club, a string quartet from the Orchestra and a two-piano act by two of our own students, lent variety to an evening thoroughly enjoyed by every one present.

In view of these extraordinary successes it must be remembered that too much credit cannot be given to Mr. Joslyn, who in a few years has given to Brooklyn Prep a musical background which, we are confident, is surpassed by very few Prep schools anywhere.

CHESS TEAM

The Chess Team

WE, the members of the Chess Team, here wish to extend our sincerest thanks to Father Francis Reilly, S.J., Moderator of the team, through whose efforts so thriving an organization has been made possible.

The Prep Chess Team has just opened what we all hope will be a most successful season. The team has again been entered in the Private School League and has a good chance to retain the "Mohr-De Goyler" trophy which was won by our championship team of last year.

This year there is but one veteran on the team, which is composed of Kelly (captain), Steele, Hume, Allen, and Gerra.

The first match of the season was played recently with Trinity High School. The outcome was a draw, Kelly and Steele winning their games for Prep. The remaining matches are with Regis, McBurney, Franklin, and Loyola.

LIBRARY STAFF

The Library

IN the library every possible step has been taken to place before the students the best and most suitable literature. Comfortable chairs and tables have been provided, at which many students engage in research in the afternoons. Those seeking information on any subject may refer to one of the numerous sets of reference books, prominent among which are the International and Catholic encyclopedias. Dictionaries are also provided, not only for the English language, but also for the Latin, Greek, French, German and Spanish tongues. There is a good collection of debating books constantly being augmented by new issues, which treat the most recent topics of controversy. The high circulation of the library is attributed to its truly representative collection of fiction. There are few students who cannot find upon the shelves the books which they desire.

In the past students have been hindered in their selection of research books because there has been no means of placing all the titles before them. But this condition has now been remedied by the Dewey decimal system, which has recently been completed.

Through the kindness of Mr. Reiners, sets of extremely interesting postal cards are continually on exhibition in the library, placing before the students scenes from all parts of the world. Among the most interesting of these was the set showing "Old Heidelberg," in connection with the Prep play.

Every accomplishment of the library may be traced to the untiring efforts of the faculty librarian, Mr. William A. Fitzgerald. He was assisted by Augustin Brady, in the first term, as head librarian, and the staff, including Austin Finan, Bernard Pfeiffer, Paul Nace, Joseph Catalano, Francis Blehl, George Grady, James Garafolo, John Britt, August Sidler and Francis McKeon. In the second term the vacancies created by graduation were filled by William Phelan, who became head librarian, Dominic Maggio and Thomas Darby.

The Fathers Guild

THE Fathers Guild is composed of the fathers and male guardians of Prep students. The purpose of this organization is to foster the interests of the school and all its activities, in conjunction with the faculty and the student body.

This year was a most happy one for the Guild. It conducted with outstanding success a "Parents' Night," on November 24, 1933. On this occasion seven hundred parents of the Prepsters, accompanied by their sons and daughters, were entertained by the Prep Glee Club, the Faculty Quartet and the Prep Orchestra. Refreshments were served while the parents became acquainted with one another and with the faculty.

On Friday evening, January 19, 1934, the Prep auditorium was filled to its seating capacity, where the annual Fathers Guild card party was held. More than three hundred guests attended, making this affair one more success which the members of the Guild have conducted.

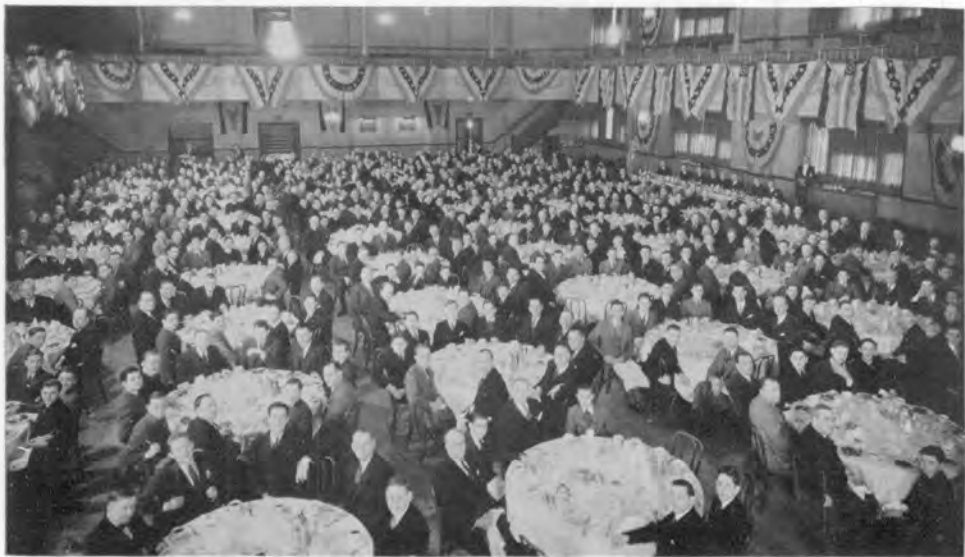

Under the sponsorship of the Guild the fourth Annual Fathers and Sons Communion Breakfast was held on March 11, 1934. This event as usual was highly successful and well attended. It was featured by several well known speakers, among whom were Rev. Thomas Chetwood, S.J., and "Sleepy Jim" Crowley, head football coach at Fordham.

Besides these extremely important happenings the Guild held its regular monthly meetings in the auditorium. At the meeting of November 17, 1933, the Guild was addressed by the Rev. John J. Wynne, S.J. The subject of his discourse was "Kateri Tekakwitha, the Lily of the Mohawks."

The December 4, 1933 meeting was featured by motion pictures shown through the courtesy of the telephone company and its representative, Mr. Michael J. Curley.

Rev. Wilfred Parsons, S.J., editor of America, spoke about the crises in Europe and the Orient at the meeting of March 3, 1934. At this same meeting all the officers were re-elected. They are: President James F. Donlon, Vice-President Francis V. Duffy, Secretary William R. Foley, Treasurer Everett Renz, and the Spiritual Director, Rev. John M. Jacobs, S.J.

VARSITY FOOTBALL SQUAD

THE day on which school opened, Coach Shanahan called together the candidates, from whom he would have to choose a team to represent the Prep on the gridiron. With only six members of the varsity squad of the year before available, the outlook was not very good. But, contrary to the usual Prep schedule, the first game was five weeks off.

After a few weeks of hard practice, Mr. Shanahan was able to choose a tentative varsity team. This lineup was very promising indeed, with "Hank" Melvin and Charlie Luzon at the end posts, Ed McGinty and Terry McPartlan as the tackles, Jack Whalen and Ray Lawlor at the guard positions, while Joe McManus capably filled the gap in the center of the line. In the backfield, Don La Vine called the signals with Cy Titus fighting hard to displace him, while Charlie Masterson, Danny Hicks, Elliot Renz, Joe Stuckat and Bill Stamm put up quite a fight for the other positions.

Before we realized it, the five weeks of training had come to an end, and a game with Fordham Prep, one of our two Jesuit school rivals, was played on the Fordham field.

In the first quarter of this game, the teams seemed very evenly matched, but in the second period, with Cy Titus leading the attack, the Prep team began to click. After a long end run Cy was downed on the Fordham 20 yard line. He then threw a perfect pass to Bill Stamm who brought the ball to the one foot line. From there, Titus took it over for Prep's first touchdown of the year. Then in the third quarter, after Captain "Hank" Melvin had blocked a kick on the Fordham 35 yard line, Don La Vine led the team right over the goal line, in a series of plunges, for the second score. Fordham scored once in this game. But then having converted their extra point, they were unable to do anything further. Thus, the first game ended with the Prep the victor to the tune of 12 to 7.

Next week, a smart and powerful Prep team appeared on the field at Garden City to oppose St. Pauls Prep. They whipped the fighting Long Island boys by a score of 25 to 0. Having intercepted a forward pass, "Cy" Titus ran seventy-five yards for the first score. Elliot Renz made the next from the three yard line. Don La Vine then drop-kicked the only extra point of the game. Before the first half ended, "Hilly" Renz again scored, this time from the fourteen yard line. During the third quarter, Don ously in a 6 to 0 defeat on a slippery and muddy field. One thing that will go down in the history of the combats between Poly and Prep is the remarkable kicking of Charlie Masterson on that day. During this game, which was played mostly in a driving rain, Charlie's punts averaged almost fifty yards, a truly noble feat.

After a week of rest the Prep eleven regained its peak when the team decisively drubbed Flatbush School by the score of 32 to 0. Prep was superior in every phase of the game. Their running attack functioned smoothly and their forward passes were consistent ground-gainers. The hard plunging backs ripped the Flatbush line to shreds, for first down after first down. Only twice did Flatbush get beyond their own 40 yard line and then both times because of long forward passes. Don La Vine scored three touchdowns while "Hilly" Renz scored the other two. Charlie Masterson and Don La Vine scored the two extra points, with line bucks.

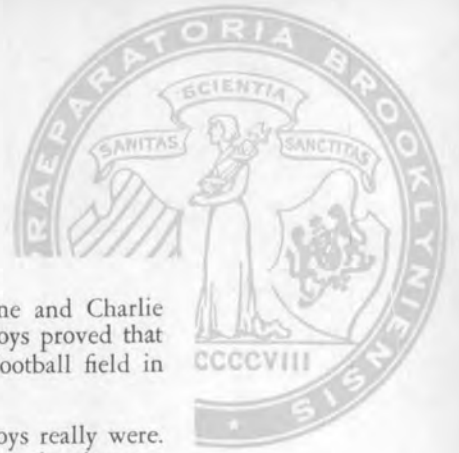

The following week our other Jesuit school rival travelled over to Brooklyn from Sixteenth Street to fall before a grim Prep team, by the score of 6 to 0. This game, with Xavier, was played on a field covered with slush, resulting from the first snowfall of the year. Don La Vine and Elliot Renz again starred for the Prep, Don scoring the only touchdown of the day, after a long run by Renz.

With a record of four wins and one defeat the Prep was ready for the annual game with St. Johns. St. Johns was, for the first time in the entire history of the series, the favorite, but the Prep boys certainly upset "old man dope." By the decisive score 25 to 7, Prep broke the two-year reign of supremacy, which St. John held. With touchdowns by Charlie Luzon, Danny Hicks, Don La Vine and Charlie Masterson, and with wonderful playing by every man on the team, the boys proved that they were the best team to uphold the honor of Brooklyn Prep on a football field in many a year.

As we look over the record we see what a wonderful team those boys really were. Not one school scored more than seven points against them all year and they lost but one game out of six.

Coach Shanahan certainly did a fine piece of work, when he polished up his raw material into such a fine machine, and it is the hope of every Prep boy that we may have many more such teams.

Our only regret is that so many of the regulars graduate before another football season will roll around. Among them are La Vine, Masterson, McManus, Whalen, Melvin, Luzon, McPartlan, McGinty, Hicks, McCoy, Stuckart, Stamm, Wynne, Fennelly and Lombardi.

THE 1933-34 season was one of the most successful in the history of Prep fives, for one reason. And that reason was because the Prep for the first time in four years was able to beat Poly, its traditional rival. Had not the ranks of the quintet been so depleted by the loss of four Varsitymen at the end of January through graduation, we are sure that the Prep would have had a fine chance of winning the Knights of Columbus Tournament. For it was not until the quarter-final had been played that the team was eliminated.

It would be extremely difficult to select any one of the five who played for the first part of the season as being more outstanding than his team mates. With Gerry Biggins at center (and incidentally getting us the tap every time), Joe O'Brien and Joe Irwin at the guard positions, with Joe McManus and Jack Needham at the forward posts, Mr. Shanahan presented to the scholastic circles of competition a team which was truly alert and fast and, as a coach would say, "smart." Although a bit erratic at times, on the whole the team played well, well enough to beat a powerful St. Augustine machine, 26-25, in mid-season.

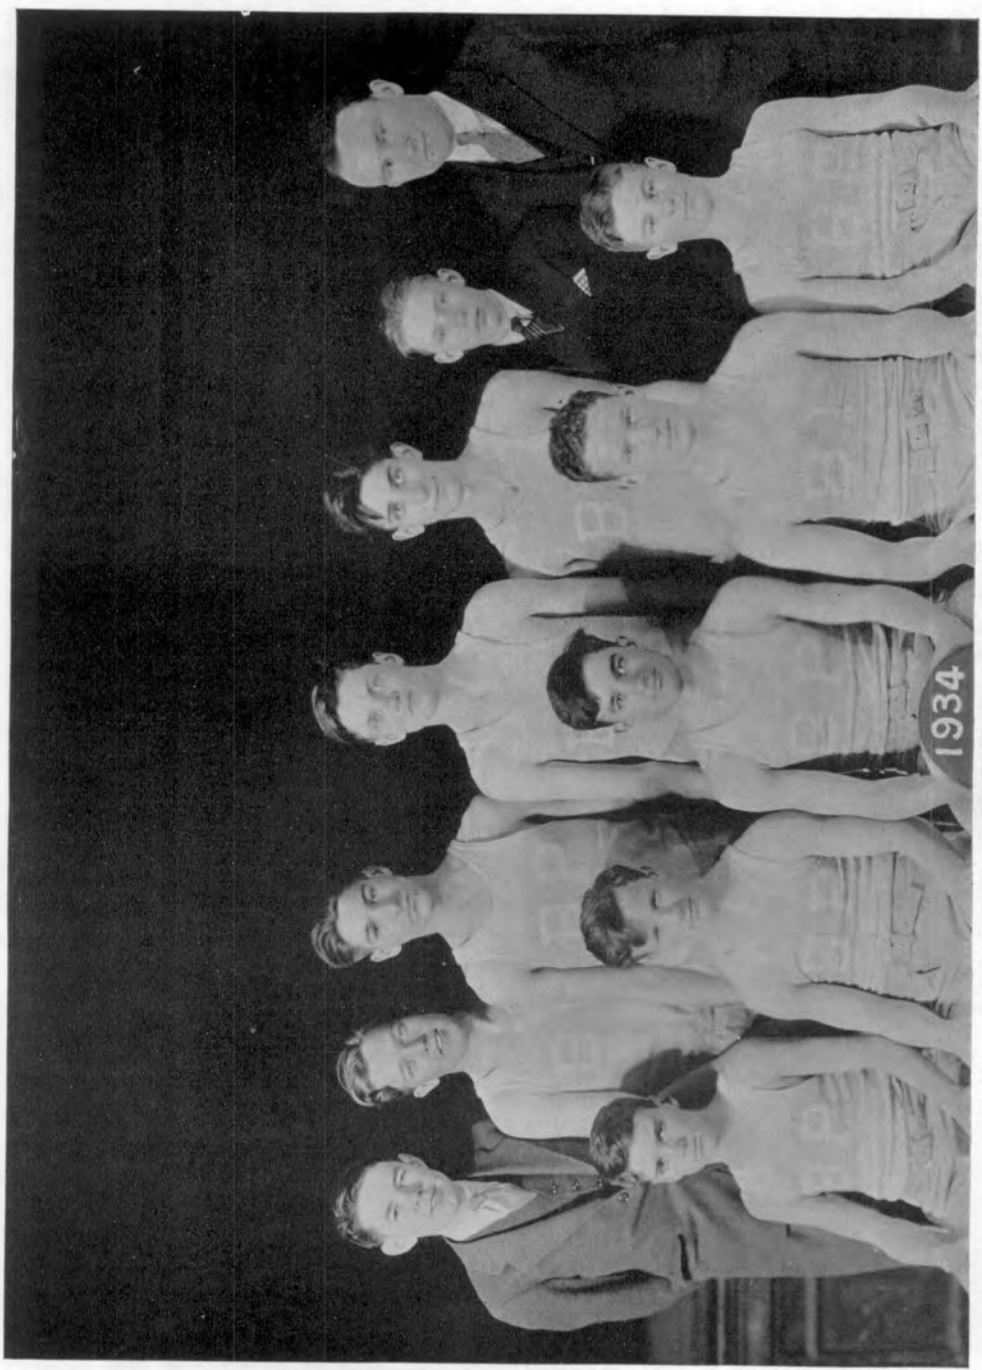

After February, four new faces appeared in the line-up. Biggins remained at center, but Leo Logan and Johnny Riches played forward, while Joe Kennedy and Jerry Coyle were stationed at guard.

It was in the latter part of the season that Prep defeated Poly. In the first three minutes of play, Biggins scored 6 points against a seemingly dumbfounded Poly aggregation. Thereafter the score seesawed back and forth. The result at the end of the half was 13-13. The game ended with the score being 21-19 in favor of the Prep, with Poly tossing up many wild shots from under our basket.

Although we have not mentioned the names of Aid Fearon, Jim Brady, Ed Lilly and Tony Messina, it must be said that they also played fine basketball in Varsity competition. The men whom the team will not lose by graduation are Kennedy, Logan, Biggins, Riches and Messina.

JOSEPH M. STUCKART, '34.

Baseball

WITH the advent of spring the great national pastime, baseball, finally arrived at the Prep. This year the Prep team is entered in the Catholic High School Athletic Association and bids fair to capture titular honors. Although many sterling stars of last year are gone, the remaining veterans and several promising recruits will constitute an imposing aggregation, one well capable of emulating the successes of former Prep nines.

The infield shapes up exceedingly well. Jim Corcoran, graduated from last year's successful Jayvee nine, covers the initial sack. Cy Titus and Dan Hicks combine to form a flashy double-play combination with Cy as pivot man at the keystone post. This season Dan Hicks has switched from the third base position and covers the shortfield. The hot corner is open with Jack Kelliher and Ed McCoy valiantly fighting for it.

The outfield is packed with batting power and fielding finesse. "Jasper" Kennedy, two-year veteran, roams the far stretches in right. "Chucky" Wolfe attends to the center gardening. Hank Melvin and Bucky Harris alternate in left field.

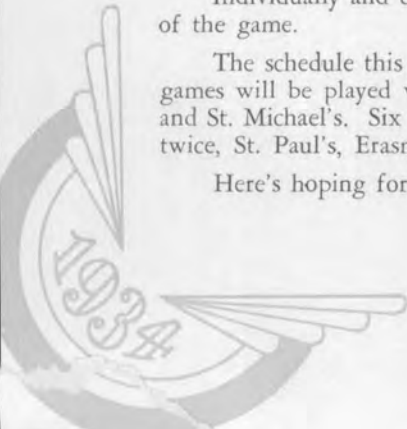

The hurling staff consisting of Charlie Luzon, Vinnie McNally and Jerry Higgins, is in tip-top shape and is about ready to subdue rival batsmen.

Individually and collectively it is a well balanced nine, versed in every department of the game.

The schedule this year calls for eighteen games, twelve of them league tilts. Two games will be played with St. Francis, Cathedral, St. John's, Loughlin, St. Augustine's and St. Michael's. Six non-league games have been arranged with Augustinian Academy twice, St. Paul's, Erasmus, Poly Prep and Adelphi once.

Here's hoping for a successful season and the right kind of record!

VINCENT M. McNALLY.

HOCKEY SQUAD

Hockey

THE Brooklyn Prep hockey squad in its sixth year of interscholastic competition was unable to defend its C. H. S. A. title, due to the disbanding of that league for a year. However, Manager Phelan presented a schedule calling for several games with P. S. A. L. teams and entry into the New York Coliseum Inter-County League. The team, although it played brilliantly at times, was unable to win a game.

The season was opened against Lynbrook. Led by Captain Danny Hicks, who scored three goals, the team obtained a 4-4 tie, which was followed by a 1-1 tie with Textile. In a hard fought game, in which Prep was vastly superior to her foe, the sextet went down to its first defeat at the hands of Manual.

Several weeks later Prep was invited to play in the Inter-County League, in which they finished fourth of seven teams. Jamaica vanquished them, 2-1; then Riverdale, runner-up in the league, triumphed 1-0 in a hotly contested struggle. The La Salle cadets then downed the Prepsters 6-2; the Crown Heights pucksters scoring the most goals tallied against the league winners. Lynbrook was again played to a tie, while St. John's Prep and Theodore Roosevelt forfeited.

Coach Edward Dougherty built his team around Danny Hicks and Tony Timmes, who with Ed Burke, formed the front line. George Scannel, Dick Fennelly and Vic Connelly composed the defense for George Miles, net tender. The shock troops were Joe Leary, Al Maguire, Gerard Reil, Ed McLaughlin, Al Geary, Bill Phelan, Hugh Duffey, George Smith and Jud Swift. The prospects for the title defense next year are fairly bright, although graduation will take a heavy toll. Dan Hicks, captain, high scorer, and without doubt the greatest hockey player in Prep's history, Tony Timmes, veteran center, Al Maguire, Bill Phelan and Vic Connelly are among those who have played their last game for the Blue and White.

SWIMMING TEAM

Swimming

UNDER the supervision of Mr. Philip Carey, S.J., the Blue and White mermen started the season with seven veterans and an abundance of new material. The new material developed rapidly and when the first meet with Far Rockaway rolled around, the team was in fine form and they extended the city champions to the utmost before they were finally conquered 36-35.

In the titular dual meets at the K. of C. pool the Prep natators went through the Catholic League with but one defeat, that at the hands of St. Francis, and finished in second place.

The team placed second in both the Brooklyn and Metropolitan Catholic School championships and fifth in the Private School championships. The number of victories in dual meets outweighed the number of defeats by a wide margin and many excellent performances were turned in by the boys during the long season.

Captain Bob Lilly was outstanding in the work of a successful team and is the only Prepster able to boast of an individual title. Bob finished in a dead heat for first place with Bill Kane of St. Francis in the 40 yard free style Metropolitan championships.

The relay quartet, composed of Al Maguire, Joe Lawler, Bill Marguet and Bob Lilly, with Dan Carroll as an alternate, could always be counted on to score its share of the points.

Al Maguire and Bill Marguet deserve praise because of their fine showing. Although they were not outstanding in early season competition, they both finished with bursts of speed which carried them to the fore among the 50 yard free stylers.

Dick Huisking again proved his calibre by capturing second place in both the Brooklyn and Metropolitan championships, in the 40 yard backstroke, while Murt Lawrence, star diver, showed an improvement over last year by his fine diving all season.

George Rafter and Jack Quinn, 220 men, demonstrated their ability by repeated victories and were certain point scorers in any meet.

With such a splendid array of talent and with the loss of only two of this year's team, Al Maguire and Bill Marguet, the outlook for next year's team is very bright, since Jack Coakley, Martin Grennan, Jack Shapiro, Ed Finley, George Ferguson and Gerry Holloway are seen as potential stars and will be available next year to fill in the vacant places.

TRACK SQUAD

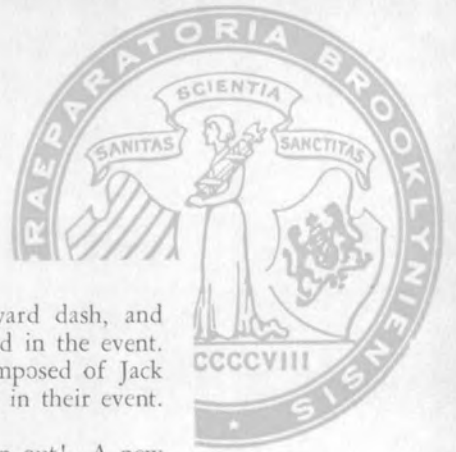

Track

THE Blue and White again scored a triumph with its track team, for this year the team has a remarkable record. Under the new regime of Coach Bob Giegengack the Prep team began cross-country work last fall. The team this year was well balanced and presented itself as a formidable foe in the field of hill-and-dalers. Having first defeated Poly Prep on their own course, the team took to the wind-swept fields of Van Cortlandt Park. There they subdued the mighty teams of St. Ann's School, Loughlin and placed fourth in the Catholic championships, and third in the private school championships. However, two teams overpowered the Prep, St. Augustine and Manhattan Prep. The work of the season had rested on the shoulders of Bill Dobbins, Bill Chandler, Tommy Tollner, Luke Hayden, Lou Lawrence and Sal Russo. They worked and won for us our reputation.

Tempus fugit! Soon our indoor season was inaugurated. In the Stuyvesant High School meet, the blue of the Prep jerseys crossed the line close behind the winners, for in this meet Prep placed seventh out of a field of forty-three schools. A fine showing! Lou Lawrence and Captain Bill Dobbins rolled up the score when they placed second in their two sections of the half-mile. The novice relay composed of Ed Wollen, Jack O'Reilly, Homer Leppien, E. Wollam and E. O'Hara were beaten to the tape by a scant margin and were thus eliminated from the finals. Behold! A towering building! Yes, Madison Square Garden, where Prep's mile relay team, consisting of Bill Chandler, Jack O'Reilly, Bill Dobbins, Lou Lawrence and Joe Callahan made a wonderful showing during the season. It was here also that Captain Bill Dobbins placed third in the Eastern Interscholastic Track Meet in the half-mile, showing his wares were not made of brass.

Cheered on by several hundred Prep rooters, the track team took a stand upon the floor of the 13th Regiment Armory to fight for the Catholic championship; however, they fell short of the mark and placed fifth, one-half point behind fourth. Bill Dobbins and Lou Lawrence placed third and fourth respectively in the half-mile event.

Joe Stefano, our "Express Unlimited," placed third in the hundred yard dash, and Charlie Luzon heaved the shotput for more than forty feet to place third in the event. Dick Kelleher tied for fourth in the high jump, and the relay team composed of Jack O'Reilly, Homer Leppien, Joe Callahan and Luke Hayden, placed fourth in their event. And so passed the Blue and White's indoor season.

News spreads fast and wide! New track uniforms were to be given out! A new outdoor track was to be built! Was it true? Yes, our dreams were to materialize, for during the Easter holidays the track squad remodeled their track and shortly after received their new uniforms.

Now a first rate team is preparing for its forthcoming outdoor season. No words can express the sincerity with which Coach Bob Giegengack has worked to build up his team and gain for it a name worthy of Prep. Captain Lou Lawrence will pilot the outdoor season, which is filled with good prospects. Before us loom the private and Catholic school championships, in which Prep must defend its relay title. With winged feet may the team speed on through their new season and gain more prizes for their belts.

JOHN F. X. BRITT.

GOLF TEAM

Golf

GOLF, an increasingly popular sport, initiating its third season at the Prep, has been dealt a severe blow by February graduation when it lost two of its best players. However, the team faces a tough spring schedule with grim determination, hoping for a successful season.

Last fall the team was quite successful, scoring clean sweeps over Regis and Dwight, and being defeated by the slight margin of 2-1 by New Utrecht, a championship team. Members of the fall season team included Dick Bean and Johnny Smith, alternate first men; Austin Parks, Ed Duffy, alternate second men; and Art McNamara and Cliff Randolph, alternate third men.

This season's schedule includes Fordham University Freshmen, Fordham Prep, Regis Prep, McBurney School, Dwight School, and Garden City High.

JAMES A. McNAMARA.

RIFLE TEAM

The Rifle Club

THE Rifle Club entered its fifth season in the fall of last year and, like all Prep organizations, it has its cycles.

The loss of seven members of last year's team was felt by the new squad. Five of our old members were graduated and two were lost to us through change of residence.

Kelly, Treacy, Leppien, the Captain, and Wolfram, the Manager, alone remained of last year's team. These, together with Cavagnaro, Kenny, Curley, Mullins and Maxcy, all new members, compose our present squad.

Sadly we look forward to the future when Curley, Kelly, Leppien and Wolfram will complete their senior year.

However, there is hope the fledglings of this year will have sprouted their wings. Their experience of this season will aid them considerably in carrying on for the glory of Brooklyn Prep.

In Cavagnaro we have one who undoubtedly will be high scorer next year. Kenny and Maxcy may be depended upon to make their presence felt against the keenest opposition. "Red" Mullins increases the average weight of the team considerably.

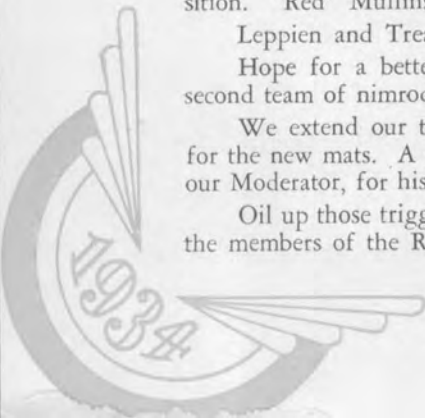

Leppien and Treacy, respectively, have been our high scorers for the season.

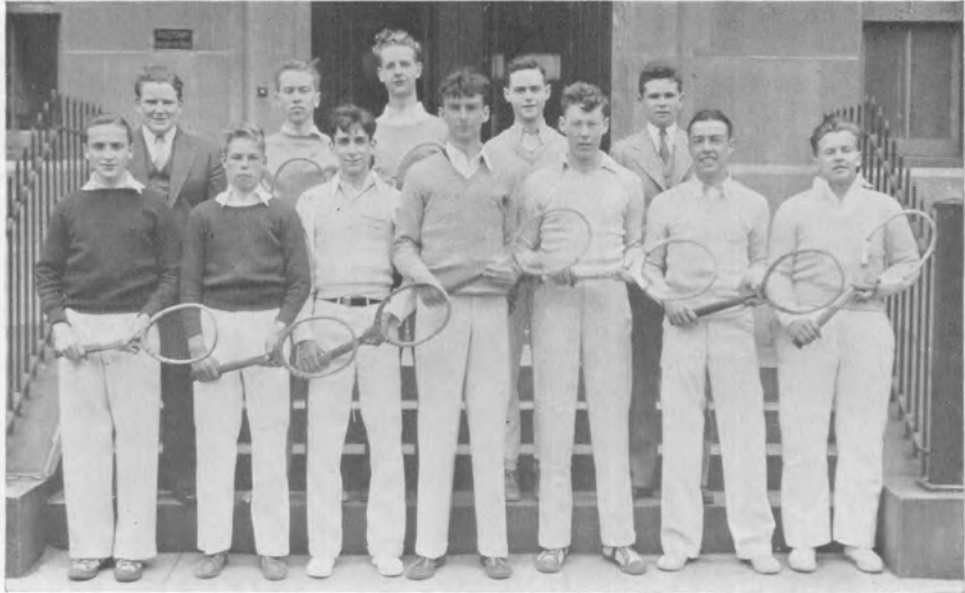

Hope for a better era dawns in the many applications received from last year's second team of nimrods.

We extend our thanks to Father Jacobs for his kind assistance and interest, and for the new mats. A rising vote of thanks is also in order for Mr. Anthony Fitzgerald, our Moderator, for his solicitude in our behalf.

Oil up those triggers. Clean out those barrels. On with the match, one and all, you the members of the Rifle Club!

ROBERT S. WOLFRAM.

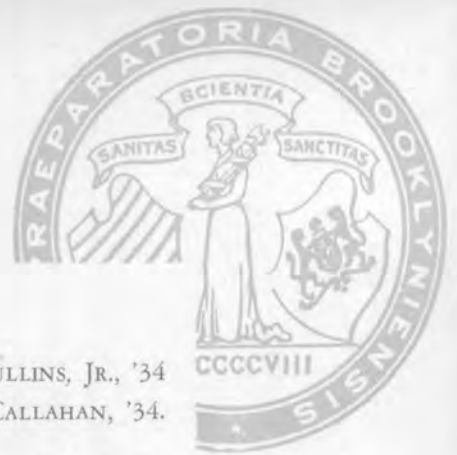

TENNIS TEAM

Tennis Team

WHEN the candidates for the tennis team were called this spring more than fifty future Bill Tilden, Jrs. reported to gain for themselves a place on the Prep tennis team. Outstanding among these aspirants were Walt Notter, Joe Bier, Hugh Duffy and Ade Driggs, the bulwarks of last year's team, and also Hen Jakoby, Bill Phelan, Ed O'Connor, Jack Kelly, and our up and coming freshman stars, Bill Schwitter and Jack Redmond. With such promising material we hope to win a good many games this spring, even though we face such formidable opposition as Poly Prep, St. Paul's, Fordham Prep, Xavier, St. Peter's Prep, James Madison, Friends and Marquand.

Dental decay is one of the worst inflictions of mankind. Without question, Nature did not intend us to suffer from toothache and decayed teeth with all their attendant ills.

Dr. Weston A. Price, an authority on this whole subject, finds that decay is a symptom of nutritional deficiency and is corrected by supplying the proper minerals and vitamins in the food. It turns out that an increased intake of phosphorous and calcium with Vitamins D and A will greatly, if not completely, prevent tooth decay and, at the same time, improve our general health.

"The lack of Vitamin D is probably the most serious nutritional deficiency in the world today," writes Dr. E. V. McCollum, the great nutritional authority at Johns Hopkins University. There is very little of this vitamin in natural foods. Bond Bread contains a rich supply of Vitamin D and, therefore, is at the same time both an excellent food and a protection against decay. Exhaustive tests with several hundred children carried on over a period of a year have just been completed by the University of Toronto which show that the mere addition of Vitamin D—so richly provided in Bond Bread—cuts tooth decay in half.
